

HALF MILLION NON-SERVICE CASES TREATED BY VA

By FRANK CAREY
WASHINGTON (AP)—Nearly half a million American veterans are receiving free medical treatment, under the government's far-flung Veterans Administration, for ailments and disabilities having no connection with their service in uniform.
Such benefits are legal, approved by Congress, and have existed since World War I.
But the snow-balling cost of free medical aid for the nation's aging veteran population, viewed against a background of huge defense outlays and rising federal expenditures, may prompt the new 87th Congress to take a harder look at the VA's free-treatment policies.
Are American taxpayers being victimized by a "gigantic giveaway" to pay for the care of war veterans who have non-service connected disabilities?
Are VA medical costs excessive and would it be cheaper for the government to pay for the care of veterans in private hospitals?
The American Medical Association's Council on Federal Medical Services says the answer to both these questions is yes. The Veterans Administration says no.
Allegations aired in Congress and elsewhere also claim that significant numbers of ineligible veterans are chiseling and lying in order to get free VA hospital care—including some "who drive up to VA hospitals in their own Cadillacs . . . and (others) who enter with several thousand dollars in their pockets."
VA officials promptly declared that all studies made by themselves and by others indicate that "chiseling" is practiced by only half of one per cent of the thousands of non-service-connected cases handled annually by VA.
Under present law, veterans with non-service connected ailments may get free care in VA hospitals if beds are available and the veteran signs an affidavit that he is unable to pay for medical care.
Many private doctors object to Uncle Sam paying the bills for non-service-connected cases. The Maryland State Medical Society has urged the American Medical Association to seek a full-dress congressional hearing on the subject. The Marylanders contend non-service-connected cases constitute more than 85 per cent of all those treated by VA.
VA says 66 per cent of all its hospital patients are non-service-connected ones and that of these, 8 per cent also have service-connected disabilities.
The AMA's policy-making house of delegates has approved the Maryland proposals but referred it for further study.
Just what is the scope of the VA medical department

Want U.S. Might Hiked to Bolster Hand in K Talks
By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy spent 3 1/2 hours Saturday with top military and diplomatic advisers reportedly considering ways to bolster U. S. might in preparation for negotiations with Russia.
The buildup process is expected to take months but does not rule out a completely informal meeting between Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the spring. Kennedy is understood to be willing to have such a get-acquainted session.

Should plans for an informal talk develop—there are none yet — Kennedy would meet first with one or more Allied leaders, diplomats said. The possibility of a session between the new president and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who is

ARTHUR BEAUMONT Another First

U.S. Station Under 20 Feet of Ice

(How it feels to be marooned a week under 20 feet of ice at the South Pole is told in this account by Arthur Beaumont, celebrated marine painter, "Beau," as he is known to his Long Beach friends, is back from three months with Operation Deepfreeze in the Antarctic. He is the first artist to visit both poles and on this trip became the first artist to paint at the South Pole.)

By ARTHUR BEAUMONT As Told To VERA WILLIAMS

Mission accomplished. I'm back from a three-month cruise in Antarctica, with 14 paintings and 130 sketches. I made the first painting at the South Pole and the first painting visualizing the atomic plant on Observation Hill—the plant which may change the whole outlook of Antarctica in future years.

We were marooned seven days and nights at the Pole, a rugged and exhausting business. We were cut off from everyone and everything—sometimes even our radio was dead.
THE SOUTH POLE has an altitude of 9,500 feet, which in that rare atmosphere is the equivalent of 12,500 feet here, under normal conditions. The temperature wavers between 20 and 32 degrees below zero. Complete exhaustion follows any activity, due to the shortage of oxygen.
On top of this is the distress occasioned by severe headaches, due to the starvation of oxygen in the brain, and the weight of the heavy weather gear one must wear

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Eight persons were killed and 11 injured when a kerosene cook-stove exploded and fire swept through a neighborhood area Saturday. Nearly 120 persons were left homeless.

NATO Envoy Post Goes to Finletter

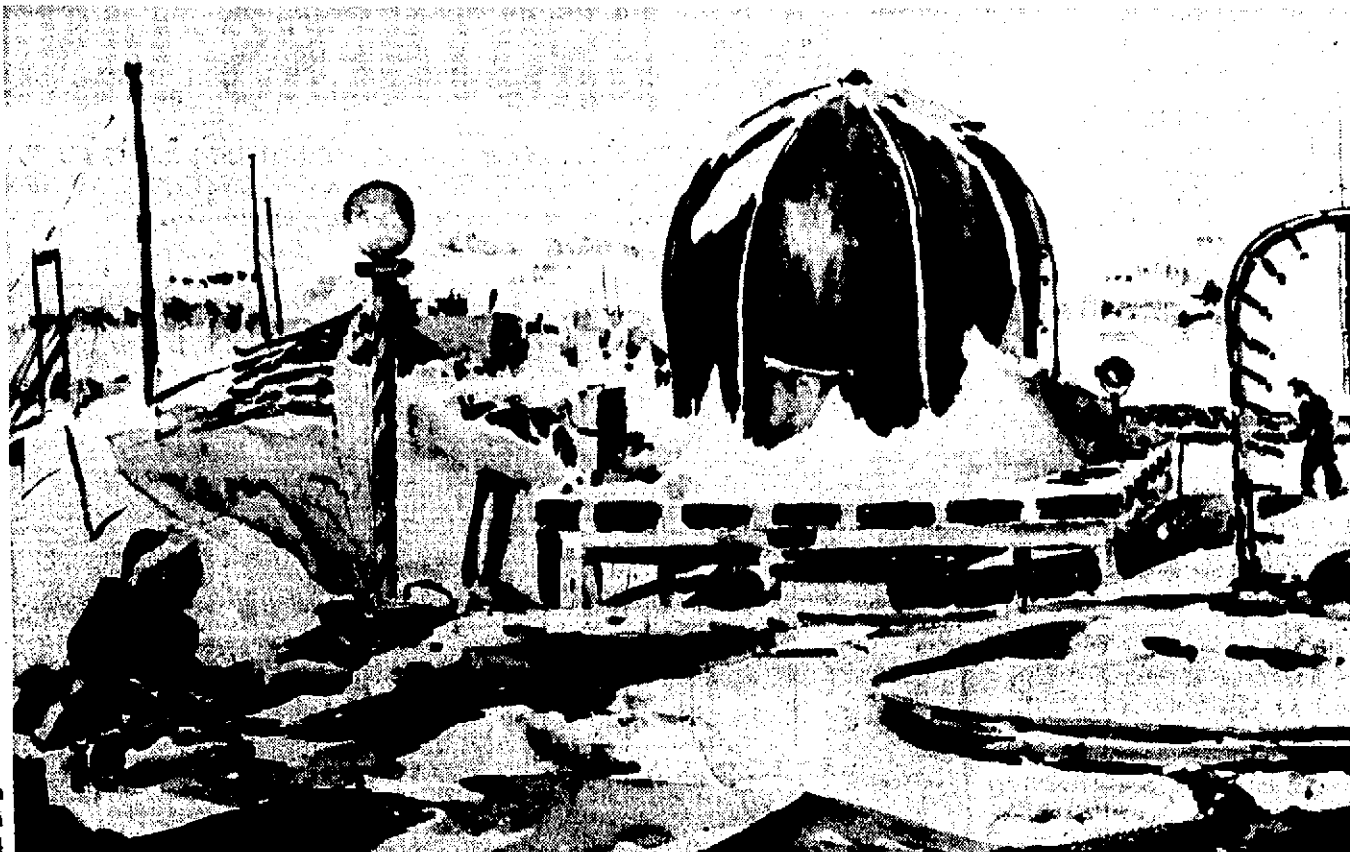

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy announced Saturday he will name former Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter as U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.
Finletter, who was Air Force secretary from 1950 to 1953, is a leader of the "reform" faction of the Democratic party in New York.
He is an attorney and investment banker who, before heading the Air Force, was minister in charge of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission to the United Kingdom from 1948 to 1949.
Kennedy's announcement came shortly after he selected veteran broadcaster Edward R. Murrow to head the United States Information Agency and Henry Richardson LaBouisse as director in the International Cooperation Administration, which administers foreign aid.
Finletter, 67, was chosen to succeed W. Randolph Burgess. He technically will be U.S. representative to the North Atlantic Council with the rank of ambassador and envoy plenipotentiary.

New Mass Hypnosis Drug Described

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Swedish medical researcher disclosed Saturday he is experimenting with a drug that conceivably could brainwash a nation's population in hours or days.
The initial effect in humans is to increase their acceptance of suggestions, he said. Its testing has been under way only three months, so its powers have been far from fully determined.
Added to the water supply, this drug might bring about a profound change in the thinking or behavior of a community before anyone was aware of its workings, said Dr. Holger Hyden, the investigator.
Dr. Hyden, a specialist in cell functioning, addressed a symposium on control of

Rayburn in Showdown for Control of House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Sam Rayburn Saturday challenged a Southern Democratic-Republican coalition to a winner-take-all fight for control of the House legislative machinery.
The veteran Texan spurned any compromise in the fight over the make-up of the Rules Committee which controls the flow of bills to the House floor.
Rayburn told a news conference that the issue will be settled in a House floor fight next Tuesday, as scheduled.
HE INDICATED he believed that the outcome will determine what success President Kennedy can expect in pushing his legislative program through this Congress.
Rayburn forecast a close vote but said he believed he would win. Should the conservative coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats triumph, he said he would interpret it as a "blow" to Kennedy's program.
The question to be put before the House is approval of Rayburn's plan to liberalize the Rules Committee by enlarging it to 15 members.
The vote will determine whether Rayburn or rules chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., will dominate the committee.
In the past when the committee membership consisted of 12 House members, a coalition of four Republicans and two Southern Democrats was able to block consideration of leadership backed legislation.
IF THE COMMITTEE is expanded to 15 members, Rayburn would be able to name two Democrats favorable to Kennedy programs and thus break the deadlock.
Compromise talks initiated by Southern Democrats collapsed Friday after Smith refused to give Rayburn assurances that if the conservative coalition were left in control no legislation favored by Kennedy and Rayburn would be pigeonholed.
At his news conference, Rayburn brushed aside talk of compromise.
"Here never has been any basis for compromise between Mr. Smith and me," he declared.

Congo Bush Swept by Fighting

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (UPI)—Violent fighting erupted across the Congo bush country Saturday and the United States joined other Western nations in demanding safe passage for some 300 whites, including some Americans, trapped by rampaging Congo soldiers.
Col. Joseph Mobutu's forces claimed victory over troops backing jailed ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba in a bloody firefight at Bumba in Equator province, the current goal of the spreading Lumumba tide. The victory may have helped check the pro-Lumumba drive to take over the province.
Sources said Mobutu's forces intercepted a pro-Lumumba column marching down from the Lumumba stronghold of Stanleyville, Oriental province, killing 65 and seizing 165 prisoners and two armored cars.
More fighting was reported continuing between Baluba tribesmen and gendarmes in secessionist Katanga province where 300 pro-Lumumba soldiers threatened an attack.

Greta Fights Waves, Stalled for 3 Hours

HONOLULU (UPI)—Greta Andersen, the durable Danish swimming instructor who now lives in Long Beach, Calif., was held in nearly one spot for three hours Saturday by strong currents but continued her battle to make the 28-mile swim from Molokai to Oahu.
As of 4:30 p.m. (HST), (7:30 p.m. PST) the 31-year-old Olympic champion was reported about 17 miles from her destination. This was some 9 1/2 hours after she dived into 70-degree surf and started her bid to be the first ever to swim the Kaiwi Channel which separates the two islands.
A spokesman said that she asked to be pulled from the water early Saturday afternoon but her husband-coach, John Sonnichsen, and persons in accompanying boats urged her on.
DURING HER LAST feeding, Miss Andersen paused and yelled, "How do you think I'm doing?" Those in the boats applauded and then she put her goggles back on and resumed her fight with the shark-filled channel.

Rebel Chief, Admiral Will Meet at Sea

Pair Will Discuss Plans to Remove 620 From Liner
RECIFE, Brazil (UPI)—The commander of the U.S. Navy's Caribbean Sea Frontier Saturday night arranged a rendezvous at sea with the hijacked Portuguese liner Santa Maria, presumably to discuss removal of passengers.
A U.S. Navy spokesman at Recife, a port in northern Brazil, said the rendezvous would take place 50 miles at sea, probably Monday.
Adm. Allen Smith Jr., the commander, flew to Belem, Brazil's other major northern port, Saturday and planned to board the destroyer Wilson.

Cuba Asks Death for 6 Americans

HAVANA (AP) — The government Saturday demanded the death penalty for six American adventurers tried on charges of trying to join anti-Castro forces in Cuba.
Their trial before a five-man military court at La Cabana Fortress was completed in 2 hours and 35 minutes. The verdict may not be returned until Monday.
The Americans claimed they came to Cuba to join Fidel Castro's revolutionary government and not his opponents.
Their court-appointed Cuban attorneys asked the court to acquit or deport them as a sign of good will toward the new U.S. administration of President Kennedy.
The defendants are George R. Beck, 24, of Norton, Mass.; Tommy L. Baker, 28, of Dothan, Ala.; Donald Joe Green, 28, of Gastonia, N.C.; James E. Bean, 34, of Cedar Falls, N.C.; Alfred Eugene Gibson, 32, of Mount Gilead, N.C.; and Leonard Louis Schmidt, 21, of Chicago.

1 Dies in Fight Over Woman

BELL (CNS) — A quarrel over a woman ended Saturday in the fatal shooting of Cornelius O'Brien, 32, of Lynwood.
Police booked Manuel Rodriguez, 23, of Los Angeles, and James Thomas, 24, South Gate, on suspicion of murder. Rodriguez and Thomas were wounded.
The shooting occurred during a party at Bell.
The girl, Cruz Valdez, 32, N.C., was held as a material witness. Rodriguez admitted the shooting, but said it was in self-defense.

L.A.C. Says: Rugged Individualism?

When the President gives his State of the Union message to Congress Monday millions of people will be listening to hear what it provides for them personally. Oldsters, farmers, unemployed and other groups will ask: "What is there in it for me?" If all the campaign promises were kept it would mean government providing something for about everyone—but it would be for services and securities the people in past generations provided for themselves. Now we have become ever more dependent on big government and are rapidly losing our self-reliance—and freedom.

The Pacific Telephone Co. is doing something about informing its employees of the economic facts of life. In a recent bulletin it quotes from a Rotary Club article which was reproduced in the Congressional Record. It tells how so many of us have lost our perspective in viewing the heavy spending by government for what is called the welfare of the people. The following is the example given:

"A young man lived with his parents in a public housing development. He attended public school, rode the free school bus, and participated in the free lunch program. He entered the Army, and upon discharge retained his national service insurance. He enrolled in the state university, working part time in the state capital to supplement his GI education check.

"Upon graduation he married a public health nurse, bought a farm with an FHA loan, and obtained an RFC loan to go into business. His baby was born in the county hospital. He bought a ranch with the aid of the veterans' land program and obtained emergency feed from the government.

"Later he put part of his land in the soil bank and the payments soon paid out his farm and ranch. His father and mother lived very comfortably on the ranch on their social security and old age assistance checks. REA lines supplied electricity. The government helped clear his land. The county agent showed him how to terrace it; then the government built him a fishpond and stocked it with fish. The government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products at highest prices.

"Books from the public library were delivered at his door. The government insured the money he banked. His children grew up, entered the public schools, ate free lunches, rode free school buses, played in public parks, swam in public pools, and joined the FFA. They owned an automobile so he favored the federal highway program.

"He signed a petition seeking federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area. He was a leader in obtaining the new post office and federal building, and went to Washington with a group to ask the government to build a dam costing millions so that the area could get cheap electricity. He petitioned the government to give the local air base to the county. He also was a leader in the movement to get his specific type of farming special tax exemptions.

"Then one day he wrote his congressman: I wish to protest these excessive governmental expenditures and attendant high taxes. I believe in rugged individualism. I think people should stand on their own two feet without handouts. I am opposed to all socialistic trends and I demand a return to the principles of our Constitution and the policies of states' rights."

Towboats Freed in Ice

CAIRO, Ill. (UPI)—The most seriously threatened of seven towboats locked in a giant ice jam in the Mississippi River was freed Saturday night and four others managed to wrench themselves loose and go to the assistance of the remaining two.

Ten of 30 barges caught in the ice gorge, thought to extend nearly 50 miles up the river, also were freed.

The Havana Zephyr, pushed ashore and in danger of being chewed apart, was rescued by the towboat A. D. Haynes, which had freed itself earlier in the day.

a number of long-distance swimming records and an Olympic gold medal, plunged into the high surf at dawn, accompanied by four boats and two surfboard riders who were acting as convoys.

Shortly after she left the shore of Molokai a shark was sighted about 100 yards behind her. All personnel in the accompanying party were alerted and she was reported in no immediate danger.

Because of the high swells the original estimate of 14 hours for the grueling trip was revised and observers now said it would take her 16 hours. This would land her on Oahu about 11 p.m. HST (1 a.m. PST today).

AFTER A LITTLE more than an hour in the water, Miss Andersen was reported about two miles off the Molokai coast, swimming at a rate of about 60 strokes a minute.

Wind conditions were good for the swim under fair skies with temperatures in the mid-60s.

More than 30 officials and newsmen were riding in the boats accompanying the swimmer. Each was given a list of rules designed to make the swim official and to minimize the danger of shark attack.

Huge Liner, Freighter Crash

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—The giant liner Liberte, fresh from an overhaul in drydock, and a passenger-freighter collided in storm-tossed Le Havre harbor Saturday night.

There were no reported injuries, but damage to the vessels was believed considerable. The Liberte, with no passengers aboard and a skeleton crew, had been towed from drydock shortly before the accident.

8 KILLED, 1 MISSING Buried Alive, Fireman Tells Rescue

CHICAGO (AP)—Two firemen—one buried alive under flaming rubble for 20 minutes—told how they escaped death Saturday when a blazing factory wall toppled on them.

Eight firemen were killed in the fire at the Hilker & Bletsch bakery supply plant. Another was missing and presumed dead.

Fourteen other firemen were rescued and hospitalized after the walls of one of two factory buildings destroyed in the near north-west side blaze caved in.

Several firemen who answered cries of help from those buried under the debris of the walls were crushed to death when the roof of the second building fell in on them.

RESCUERS BATTLED cold, debris, flaming timbers and onsetting darkness in their efforts to recover bodies.

From his hospital bed, fireman Edward La Tour recalled:

"I was going up a ladder.

"If (the wall) just collapsed around me, I was buried under it. There was an 8-by-8 beam over my legs.

"I was certain I was going to die....

"Some timbers were burning about an arms length away. When water hit it, it turned to steam. It burned my face....

"I thought I'd be cooked like a lobster.

"I would try to catch handfuls of water and put them on my face. I yelled and yelled.

"Finally they got to me. I can't believe I'm alive."

Also caught was Joseph Taylor, 25.

"I was about seven feet from the wall, trying to get a window down, said Taylor.

"I heard a rumble and started to run. But I couldn't take a step. It knocked me down.

"I just lay there waiting for that big bump that makes you nothing.

"When it didn't come I got up and ran. But I couldn't see where I was going. Finally I saw other guys running.

"One guy was running on a broken foot, but he ran."

"I got out, thank God."

A PRAYER of anguish came from beneath tons of rubble—"Please God, save me."

It was the voice of George Rees, a battalion fire chief trapped by the wall's collapse.

"My God! Oh, please God! Somebody please find me. Please get me out!"

Fire Commissioner Robert Quinn and a band of rescue workers who clambered over the wreckage heard the plea.

"Who is that? Is that you, Rees?" Quinn asked. "How far in are you. We can't see you."

"I don't know. Please hurry. Oh, my God, please hurry."

The talk went on as men worked feverishly, trying not to shift weight, trying to locate Rees. At length after 20 minutes, they saw him.

Quinn said later, "He was still alive. His voice was weak now. He didn't answer us any more. He just kept praying, 'Please God. Please God save me. Oh, my God, get me out!'"

When they carried him from the shambles, Rees was dead.

Navy Slates Rendezvous With Pirates

Santa Maria upon the Spanish Main.

Adm. Robert L. Dennison, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Fleet at Norfolk, Va., said a rendezvous at sea with a U.S. destroyer on Monday was one of several plans "under consideration."

Dennison had been in contact with Henrique Galvo, the washbuckling Portuguese rebel who seized the ship with Spaniards and Portuguese desperadoes last Sunday morning.

The fleet commander said he still was negotiating with Galvo by radio.

AT LAST REPORT, the Santa Maria was 500 miles off the Brazilian coast, headed toward a landfall.

The U. S. atomic submarine Seawolf was trailing the Santa Maria. A covey of U. S. Navy weather tracking planes also were keeping an eye on it, mainly interested in the protection of the Americans aboard.

A Brazilian Foreign Ministry source in Rio de Janeiro said an order forbidding the Navy from using Recife to track the ship had been cancelled after consultations.

The source said Brazil has decided that if the vessel lands it will be seized and returned to Portuguese authorities.

The 350 crewmen could disembark if the ship makes port in Brazil, the Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Some could remain as exiles, he said, presumably referring to those among the desperate band which hijacked the vessel with grenades and machine guns. But "the nature of their crime" would be examined, the source said.

IT WAS POINTED out that President-elect Janos Quadros takes office Tuesday in Brazil. He was considered more friendly to the rebel cause against the Portuguese government of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar than outgoing President Juscelino Kubitschek.

LUANDA, Angola (AP)—Opponents of Portugal's Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar said Saturday they had planned a revolution in this Portuguese colony to coincide with the seizure of the Santa Maria but decided against it because of the "shocking way" the hijacking was carried out.

"We didn't expect them (the hijackers) to seize a liner with its full complement of passengers and we were shocked by the killing of a crew member," said a spokesman for the tiny Salazar opposition in this vast Portuguese African territory.

Liberal Arts Advised for Engineer Schools

NEW YORK (UPI)—Half the engineering schools in the United States should "substantially increase" the time allotted to social sciences and the humanities, a study by the Institute of Higher Education of Teachers College, Columbia University said Saturday.

The study said that, in general, the schools should make every effort to give their students a broader knowledge of the major areas of learning.

On the average, the study noted, only about one-fifth of the four-year curricula of these schools is devoted to liberal arts.

The 132-page report was prepared by Dr. Edwin J. Holstein, associate professor of economics at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., and Prof. Earl J. McGrath, executive officer of the Institute of Higher Education.

Kennedy, Top Aides in Huddle meeting with French President Charles de Gaulle this weekend, is already being discussed with London.

SOME OF THE results of Kennedy's conference Saturday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and other officials will be reflected in his state-of-the-union message to Congress Monday.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said the conference was concerned with over-all world problems. He did not give details. Those present included Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and several other advisers.

Kennedy's intention in the past has been to avoid promoting or encouraging a return to New York by Khrushchev for attendance at the U. N. General Assembly session opening March 7. Khrushchev attended the General Assembly last fall and berated former President Eisenhower and the United States.

Since he has changed his tune with the advent of Kennedy, Khrushchev presumably would not have the same interest as before in coming to New York. But he might want to push the peace offensive he is building around his advocacy of better U. S.-Soviet relationships in the Kennedy era.

At any rate, if Khrushchev shows up in New York there is no doubt that Kennedy will be willing to see him. Although Ambassador Adlai Stevenson caused surprise in Washington by making a public statement to that effect Friday, informed officials here said he knew what he was talking about.

SHOULD Khrushchev not come to New York, the prospect for a meeting between him and Kennedy is much less certain.

The possibility of a quick Kennedy visit to Europe in late spring has not been ruled out. On such a trip, he could see several Allied leaders and meet briefly with Khrushchev in some neutral point like Geneva—or some point of common interest like Berlin.

WHAT IS BASIC in Kennedy's approach to all such future possibilities is his belief, repeatedly emphasized during the campaign and stressed in his inauguration speech a week ago, that effective U. S. and Allied military strength is vital to the success of any important negotiation with the Soviet government.

Kennedy apparently includes in his concept of strength not only an increase in nuclear rocket capability Saturday. One of the group for the United States, but also a large increase in this country's ability to fight limited wars.

More than 50,000 Legionnaires and their guests will be in Long Beach for the 43rd annual California department convention June 29 through July 2, the American Legion announced here Saturday.

In the first announcement of convention plans, officials said the program will include a four-hour parade through downtown Long Beach, a public memorial service and color guard, drill team, band, drum and bugle corps, and motorcycle drill-team contests.

Tentative plans for the convention were drawn up Saturday at a meeting in the Lafayette Hotel of local and state officials.

ATTENDING were John R. Hann, department commander, and Jack A. Stockman, department adjutant, both of San Francisco.

Hann said other groups convening at the same time will be the Legion's Women's Auxiliary, the Sons of the American Legion and the women's fun organization, 8 et 40.

Delegates to the convention will total some 4,000 with 1,500 alternates, Hann said. About 1,500 delegates and 500 alternates are expected for the auxiliary convention. Headquarters for men will be the Lafayette Hotel. The women will headquarter in the Wilton. Most business sessions will be held in Municipal Auditorium.

THE CONVENTION will mark the fifth time the group has met here. They held their last convention in Long Beach in 1957.

Also attending the meeting Saturday were Arch C. Bonzer, general chairman of the American Legion Convention Corp., the local group in charge of arrangements; E. R. Leonard, president; W. W. Matthie, secretary; Fred Nessler, parade and entertainment chairman; A. R. McKinsery, treasurer, all of Long Beach; and Richard C. Parks of Glendale, chairman of the musical organizations and uniform bodies commission.

U.S. Envoy Told to Push Bid to See U2 Flier

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials disclosed Saturday that the American ambassador to Moscow, Llewellyn E. Thompson, has been instructed to intensify efforts to see Francis Gary Powers, imprisoned American U2 spy-plane pilot.

Powers is serving a 10-year sentence in Russia on "aerial espionage" charges but no U.S. official has been permitted to interview him since he was downed 1,300 miles inside the Soviet Union last May 1.

Thompson, during the Eisenhower administration, made repeated but futile efforts through the Kremlin to talk with the pilot.

Officials said no effort was being made at present to get Powers released—as were the two U.S. RB47 fliers—but U.S. authorities want to check on his treatment and physical condition.

'Giant Giveaway' Charged to VA

around which such controversies swirl?

It has a $1,170,502,000 appropriation for this year—about one fifth of VA's total appropriation of $5,363,302,000.

It's a system of 173 hospitals, plus approximately 199 outpatient clinics and home-town medical services which together provide care for nearly two million patients yearly. VA also has many research laboratories.

The medical department employs about 120,000 of the VA's 155,000 employees.

VA hospitals presently have about 123,000 beds, with an average of 112,000 filled on any given day.

During the year ended last June 30—the latest period for which figures are available—

664,714 patients were treated in VA or VA-contract hospitals, plus thousands of others treated on an outpatient basis or by private doctors paid by VA.

Of the 664,714 treated in hospitals, 493,801 were general medical and surgical patients; 116,349 were neuropsychiatric; 31,074 tuberculous and 23,490 neurological.

THE MOST RECENT cost-of-treatment squabble between VA and AMA representatives occurred in 1958. At that time the AMA's federal medical services committee reported on a study comparing VA costs with those of non-federal state and private hospitals.

The VA had said in the past that valid comparisons could not be made because VA's cost figures include such additional things as physicians' salaries, more varied staffs, different administrative methods, complete rehabilitation of the patient and even recreational programs.

So, the AMA committee said, its study "attempted to derive adjusted cost data covering only those VA services which may be considered common to all hospitals."

Their conclusion was that "after 'extra' VA services have been excluded, the average case costs three times as much as the average non-federal case."

The average costs were obtained by multiplying the daily average cost per patient by the length of stay in a hospital whether it was general medical and surgical, neuropsychiatric or tuberculous.

Lengths of stay are actually shorter for neuropsychiatric and T.B. patients in VA than in non-federal hospitals, the report said. But for general medical and surgical patients, the stay runs about 30 days

LONG BEACH VA HOSPITAL—One-Fourth Are Service-Connected Cases

1,378 Are Treated

At Long Beach VA Hospital last week, 1,378 patients were being treated in the 1,500-bed facility.

One-fourth of these patients had service-connected disorders.

Only 3.5 per cent suffered psychiatric illness. The percentage is small since only acute cases are treated here. Chronic mental patients in this area are assigned to Brentwood or Sepulveda VA hospitals.

Patients are admitted to VA hospitals according to this priority: 1—Medical emergencies. 2—Veterans with service-connected disorders. 3—Vets with non-service-connected illness, provided bed is available and patient states he is unable to pay for medical care.

THE VA COUNTERED promptly declaring the entire comparison was invalid. The agency said that for one thing "the VA has sought and obtained funds from Congress to provide medical care of high quality — not average quality. . . . Certainly the question of differences in the quality of care provided in VA hospitals and that provided in the average non-federal hospital are pertinent factors."

VA and private hospital costs were not comparable, the VA said, since "at least 50 per cent of the patient load in VA general medical and surgical hospitals is comprised of long-term patients as compared with only about 13 per cent in non-federal hospitals."

VA officials told a reporter that one reason the stay in a VA general hospital is longer and therefore more costly is that "in most cases when a patient enters a VA hospital he is a medical unknown" and must be given a complete physical exam and diagnosis requiring as much as three or four days. Further, he is kept in the hospital until he's ready to go back to work.

In most cases, they say, a private patient would have to pay a doctor for these preliminary and convalescent services—exclusive of his hospital bill.

Dr. H. Martin Engle, VA's deputy chief medical director, says a very high percentage of all VA hospital patients have chronic, degenerative

20 Volunteers to Aid Asians

TORONTO (AP)—Laval and Toronto universities are raising $20,000 to send about 20 volunteer graduates to India and Ceylon for a year's work under welfare authorities there. diseases which require lengthy treatment. On any given day, says VA, more than half of its average 112,000 hospitalized patients are neuropsychiatric cases.

TO CRITICS who suggest that service-connected cases should be treated in military or private hospitals rather than in VA institutions, VA's medical director, Dr. William S. Middleton says there just wouldn't be room.

The AMA holds that "the cost of providing care through the VA hospital system is an

Falling Tower Misses Storied Tomb of Juliet

VERONA, Italy (UPI)—The tower of the centuries-old church housing the legendary tomb of Shakespeare's Juliet collapsed Saturday.

The 82-foot tower at the church of the convent of the Holy Cross of the Benedictines did not fall on the tomb which is in another part of the convent.

The 12th century church was the setting of the tragic end of the romance of Romeo and Juliet, according to Shakespeare.

The tower had been weakened by World War II bombings and recent heavy rains seeping into its foundations may have contributed to the collapse.

'Doubleheader' Set at U.S. Missile Base

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—This test center buzzed with activity Saturday as the United States prepared a spectacular rocket doubleheader for this week—the launching of a chimpanzee to the fringes of space and the first firing of a new intercontinental range missile designed to give this nation pushbutton war capability.

Six young chimpanzees went through final training stages and frolicked in their cages as the time neared for them to ride a rocket 115 miles into space. The launching is set for Tuesday morning.

A few hundred yards away, another group of missilemen groomed the first Minuteman rocket for a crucial launching which could come as early as Monday.

THE AIR FORCE will be shooting the works on the initial firing of this "second generation" ICBM which will prowls the countryside on special railroad cars or sit cocked in an underground hole, ready for launching on a few seconds' notice if war should come.

China Parley Postponed to March 7

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department said Saturday the Kennedy administration's first conference-table meeting with the Chinese Communists has been postponed one month to March 7.

The discussion on release of five Americans still held in Red China was deferred from its original Feb. 2 date to allow the new administration to review previous talks, U.S. officials said.

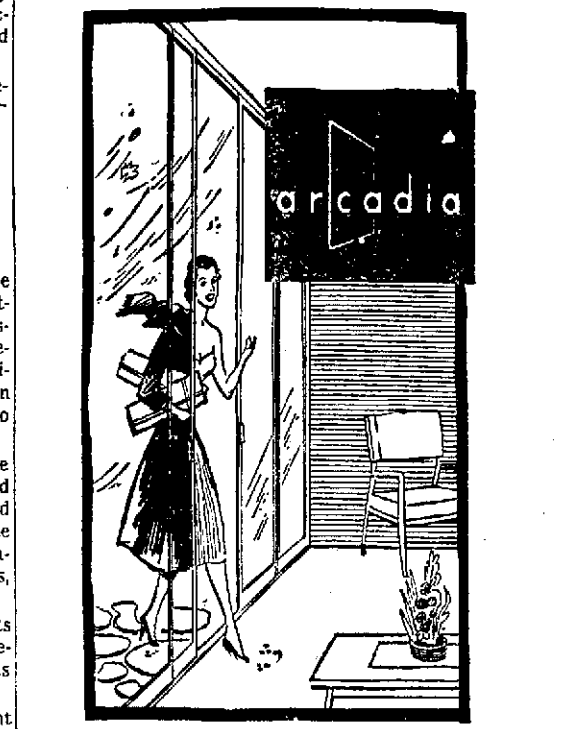

The Chinese Communists agreed to the delay, State Department spokesman Francis W. Tully Jr. said.

Officials said postponement of the meeting between U.S. and Chinese ambassadors in Warsaw did not foreshadow any new American proposal or policy pronouncement.

Rather, the officials said, the absence of a U.S. expert on China during February was one of the main factors in the change.

TOO BUSY FOR GIRLS

Playboy Tag Irks Aga After Years of Work

By WATSON SIMS

KARACHI (AP)—After three years of hard work, Prince Karim Aga Khan wonders how many more it will take to persuade everyone that he is not a playboy.

"Some people, and particularly some newspapers, simply refuse to believe that I am more interested in my work than in young women," says the 23-year-old graduate of Harvard.

"Almost every month one newspaper or another reports I am engaged or about to become engaged to this girl or that. Sometimes I've never even met the girl involved. The truth is that I am busy with my work—too busy even to think of marrying now."

The Aga Khan is one of the world's richest and most eligible young bachelors. But he is also the 49th Imam, or spiritual leader, of 12,000,000 Ismaili Moslems scattered throughout Africa, the Middle East and Central Asia, on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

SINCE INHERITING the role of Imam on his grandfather's death in 1957, Prince Karim says he has been far too busy to worry about being an eligible bachelor. While gossip columns speculate endlessly on his marital future, the son of the late playboy Aly Khan is usually off visiting his followers.

Since 1957 the Aga Khan has traveled 280,000 miles in 17 countries. This October alone, he traveled 15,000 miles in both parts of Pakistan, including driving six days by jeep over dangerous mountain roads to the remote states of Gilgit and Hunza on the border of Chinese Sinkiang. It was the first time the people of Gilgit and Hunza had seen their Imam, although a majority of people in both states were converted to the Ismaili sect in the 11th Century.

Wherever the Aga Khan went, telegrams and letters followed. Whenever a post office was near he received an average of 150 to 200 letters daily. And although Hunza has only a single shaky telephone, a handful of urgent messages awaited his arrival there.

What are the messages about?

"Almost anything," grins the tall young man who could easily pass for a handsome but somewhat serious motion picture star. "This isn't just a religious function, you know; the Imam concerns himself with all of his people's needs."

AN ISMAILI may ask the Imam whether he should enter a certain type of business; whether a particular individual would be a reliable business partner; if a certain college is suitable for his son. Whatever the question, the Aga Khan provides an answer. He personally dictates and signs replies to each message, keeping three secretaries busy up to 16 hours a day.

Along with advice on daily life, the Aga Khan invariably exhorts his followers to be good citizens of the countries in which they live. In Hunza, where 90 per cent of the people are Ismailis, he urged his followers to respect the rights of non-Ismailis. In East Africa he opened Ismaili schools and hospitals to all Africans. Such gestures have helped the popularity of the Ismailis, who usually form a distinct, often prosperous, minority in their various communities.

Besides giving advice on investments, the Aga Khan does much investing of his own, since along with his title he inherited an estate worth nearly a billion dollars. Consulting with advisers in many countries, the Aga Khan has put money into fields ranging from Wall Street stocks to African real estate.

FAR MORE OFTEN, however, he has invested in schools, hospitals, housing and other facilities for Ismailis. In Pakistan alone there are 30 health centers for Ismailis.

While the Aga Khan differs from his immediate ancestors by shunning playboy activities, there is one type of play in which he is unusually adept. He is a devoted skier and so good at the sport that he is being mentioned as a possibility for Britain's Olympic team in 1964.

Four Gambling Suspects Freed on Bond Here

Four gambling suspects, arrested after a three-day police investigation of dice games during a convention here, Saturday were released on court order from Long Beach City Jail after posting bail.

Posting $1,575 bond each were Frank Distaso, 46, of 12143 Centura St., Studio City; Ralph Gene Altman, 32, of 3900 Long Beach Blvd.; Kenneth Leon Altma, 31, of 11081 Bunker Hill Rd., Los Alamitos; and Emil Umann Jr., 40, of 4428 Conquista Ave., Lakewood.

Police, who charged the men with conspiracy to commit grand theft, said that more than 50 loaded or illegally marked dice were confiscated from the suspects' two cars and persons.

ALSO TAKEN by officers were a suit with a man's sock sewn in the pocket, several tampered decks of playing cards, and a stash apron used for hiding dice after use.

Police received their first tip that the games were being held, usually in hallways at convention headquarters, during the painting contractors' convention when two of the victims, who lost $225 and $150, called them.

The biggest loser said he became suspicious of the dice when one of the suspects made seven consecutive passes.

Trade Plan Defies Policy of Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Producers of copper and tobacco, the two main exports of the Central African Federation, plan to trade with the Soviet Union despite a government policy to the contrary. The copper companies have been selling to the Soviet Union since 1959.

Navy Nabs Pacifists Trying to Hook Ride

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—The Navy Saturday took into custody three pacifists who had waged a harassing battle by attempting to hook a raft to the Polaris submarine tender Proteus.

Two pacifists scrambled aboard the nuclear submarine George Washington before they were nabbed. The third was taken into custody after he set out in a dinghy in an apparent attempt to aid friends.

The three, members of the Committee for Non-Violent Action, were identified by the Navy as William Henry, 28, of Lodi, Wis., Donald Martin, 20, of Wellesley, Mass., and David Rhodes, 23, a student at Brandeis University, Massachusetts.

Naval officials said they will be charged with trespassing.

The pacifists' plan, announced in advance, was to hook a makeshift raft to the Proteus and ride it when the tender departs on a voyage to the Polaris base at Holy Loch, Scotland, next month.

The raft, about 12x12 feet and equipped with a stove and tent, was towed by a dinghy up the Thames.

Arrests came at the end of a harrowing afternoon during which the Navy and a complement of Marines repulsed several attempts by the pacifists to nose the dinghy against the Proteus so the raft could be secured.

Shortly before the arrests, two Navy tenders had hooked onto the dinghy and pulled it up the river and away from the Proteus.

Henry and Martin were to have remained aboard the raft for the crossing.

Both are under federal grand-jury indictment for interfering with the launching of the Polaris submarine Ethan Allen here last November.

Legislators' Expenses, Pay Listed

Salaries and expense money drawn last year by area state legislators were disclosed Saturday by the Office of the State Controller.

Reps. Joseph M. Kennick, D-44th District drew $10,550 and W. S. Grant, R-70th District, was paid $10,077. Both are of Long Beach.

Other salaries and expenses paid to area legislators included:

State Sen. John A. Murdy Jr., R-35th District, of Santa Ana, $9,270; State Sen. Richard Richards, D-38th District, of Los Angeles, $8,356; Rep. Ronald Brooks Camern, D-50th District, of Pico Rivera, $8,652; Rep. Carley V. Porter, D-69th District, of Compton, $11,587; Rep. Vincent Thomas, D-68th District, of San Pedro, $8,312; Rep. Bruce Sumner, R-74th District, of Santa Ana, $10,629; and Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-75th District, of Fullerton, $10,846.

The legislators draw $6,000 in salary plus mileage and living expenses.

Mine Negligence

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The Brussels Court of Appeal Saturday sentenced director Adolphe Calicis of the Bois du Cazier coal mine to a six months' suspended jail term and 2,000 francs ($40) fine for negligence at the pit on Aug. 8, 1956, when a fire killed 262 miners, including 136 Italians.

Frisky 100-Year-Old Convict Worries Parole Officers

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — "We was drunk and horsin' around and she just axidently got cut," Johnny Chase told Tacoma, Wash., police after they booked him on an assault charge in January, 1958.

"Like when the gun went off back in '52 when we came to get you that time?" a detective asked, laughing. "The gun went off four times 'axidently,' didn't it, Johnny?"

"Maybe it did," Johnny drawled lazily, "but I didn't hit nobody."

Shortly thereafter, amiable Johnny Chase went back to the Washington State Penitentiary at Walla Walla for the third time. Through the grace of the prosecuting attorney, the charge was reduced to parole violation.

Now the State Parole Board here is confronted with another possible parole for Johnny. The only thing worrying board members is whether 100-year-old John George Chase has lost enough of his friskiness.

If they decide he has, he will either return to Tacoma or move to Wagoner, Okla., to live with his granddaughter, Vernice Roberson. Oklahoma parole officials are currently checking to see if his relatives should be allowed to take in their wayward grandfather.

Chase's record of state and federal prison terms dates back to 1927, when he served 31 months of a three-year term in the Mississippi Penitentiary for manslaughter. Beyond that, records are bare of facts and law enforcement officials have only Johnny's word that he was born Aug. 8, 1860, in Bismarck, N. D.

He had lived what most men consider a full life when he began serving the manslaughter sentence at 67. But in succeeding years, Chase did two years at McAlester, Okla., for larceny, 13 months at the Leavenworth, Kans., federal prison for impersonating a government employee, and a two-year stretch at Walla Walla for grand larceny.

His first parole from Walla Walla didn't last long, though. A shooting fracas in which policemen missed being hit by the aforementioned bullets sent the then 92-year-old Negro back for a second time. His latest sentence came as a result of the razor slashing of a lady friend at a Tacoma party.

In 1950, when Johnny was 89, he had his first difficulty with Washington lawmen. The Pierce County prosecutor wrote of him: "This old man has known about or had his finger in about everything that has taken place in our 'Hollywood-by-the-tide-flats' area and has generally been cooperative with the police, but he has probably provoked as much trouble as he has reported."

The report also noted that Johnny had had three wives and 25 children—five of them then under 10 years of age.

Then, with gross understatement, the prosecutor added: "He is very active for his years."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

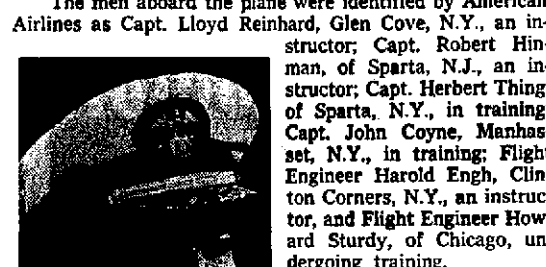

Jetliner Training Crash Kills Six

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (UPI)—A huge $5 million American Airlines Boeing 707 jetliner nose-dived into the Atlantic surf off a lonely windswept Long Island beach Saturday while performing training flight maneuvers. All six crewmen apparently were killed.

One of the four jet engines was ripped from a swept-back wing as the plane fell. The plane exploded about a quarter mile offshore.

The Coast Guard said one body had been recovered. Two others were sighted but had not been brought to shore. The other three bodies were missing.

The men aboard the plane were identified by American Airlines as Capt. Lloyd Reinhard, Glen Cove, N.Y., an instructor; Capt. Robert Hinman, of Sparta, N.J., an instructor; Capt. Herbert Thing, of Sparta, N.Y., in training; Capt. John Coyne, Manhasset, N.Y., in training; Flight Engineer Harold Engh, Clinton Corners, N.Y., an instructor, and Flight Engineer Howard Sturdy, of Chicago, undergoing training.

ADM. ARLEIGH BURKE Rewritten

Burke Speech Cut
WASHINGTON (AP) — A speech by Adm. Arleigh A. Burke was rewritten in line with President Kennedy's wish to omit anti-Soviet truculence from speeches by military leaders, administration officials said Saturday.

Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said people at the White House were "among those who counseled that it be rewritten." Kennedy himself did not see the speech, Salinger said.

The White House spokesman declined to say how the rewriting was done or what language was deleted.

Sen. Styles Bridges, R-N.H., protested, saying the White House was gagging the chief of naval operations.

"Does this mean that we are entering an era of appeasement with Communist Russia?" demanded Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Quake Hits Bakersfield, L.A.

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — One of Southern California's sharpest earthquakes in several years jolted parts of the area Saturday, rocking buildings in Barstow and Bakersfield and swaying some chandeliers in Los Angeles.

The epicenter apparently was in a sparsely populated desert region, however, and there were no reports of damage.

Seismologists at the University of California at Berkeley and at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena recorded a severe shock lasting 47 seconds starting at 12:13 a.m.

Laos Envoy Confers With JFK

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown Saturday flew home for "a short visit" and consultations with the Kennedy administration in the midst of a successful government drive against Communist-led rebels.

KENNEDY IN DILEMMA

Release of Fliers Poses Problems

By ROBERT E. LEE
I-P-T Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON—The first full week of the Kennedy administration was dominated—as will many future weeks be dominated—by concern over this nation's relations with the Soviet Union.

The release of the two RB47 crew members, while gratifying to all Americans, created touchy diplomatic problems that came close to impaling Kennedy and his foreign affairs on the horns of a dilemma.

As the President himself said, the return of the aviators removed a "serious obstacle" in the way of peaceful relations between Russia and the United States.

HOWEVER, other obstacles remain and there is every indication that neither Kennedy nor Secretary of State Dean Rusk thinks Russia's act last week alone is sufficient to pave the way to an easing of the tensions or for another summit meeting. This is the problem. The U.S. must tread carefully in order to avoid giving the impression to the rest of the world that is unnecessarily intransigent in the face of the Soviet concession. Yet the U.S. cannot afford to rush into negotiations with Russia at this point.

MEANWHILE, the secretary of state—who like the President is on record against meetings at the chief of state level without adequate preparation by ambassadors and foreign ministers leading to a reasonable hope of successful negotiation—said summit conferences would not be ruled out "on principle" as a diplomatic tool.

What nobody said was that it will be difficult if not impossible for Kennedy and Khrushchev to meet without talking business. In a real sense any meeting between the two leaders would be a summit meeting regardless of how it was billed and who else was present.

And in the latest television debate Kennedy had this to say about summit diplomacy: "I believe we should not go to the summit until there of the United Nations at New York and wants to see Kennedy then."

THE SITUATION has been further complicated by reports that Khrushchev plans to attend the April meeting of the United Nations at New York and wants to see Kennedy then.

Whether a meeting will materialize so soon is anyone's guess. But Kennedy and his chief foreign policy advisers have been treading around the question in a way not be successful."

that has seemed to spell indecision to some observers. Perhaps it is better described as extreme caution.

Asked point blank at his press conference about chances for a meeting with Khrushchev, Kennedy said there are no plans at present. Yet two days later U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, in a curiously undiplomatic statement, publicly guessed that Kennedy would be "happy" to see Khrushchev in April—but not within the framework of a formal summit conference.

Depressed Area Aid Snagged in Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic sponsors of a depressed areas aid bill are pushing to get through the Senate before the mid-February Lincoln Birthday break. But time appears to be running out on them.

At the moment, it isn't even clear whether the Senate Banking Subcommittee handling the $389.5 million measure has ended hearings on it.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., subcommittee chairman and chief sponsor of the bill, said after a series of witness testimonies testified Thursday that he had no more requests to appear.

DOUGLAS SAID he was anxious to go ahead with subcommittee action on the measure. He repeatedly expressed hope it could be passed before the breathing spell which Congress customarily takes to permit Republicans to fill speaking engagements in the period around Abraham Lincoln's Birthday.

Republicans say there are at least two reasons the subcommittee can not act on the bill promptly.

First, they say their side has not yet formally named subcommittee members for the 87th Congress.

Second, and more importantly, they insist that a Kennedy administration witness should appear on the depressed areas legislation.

Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn.,

AS AN ALTERNATIVE, President Kennedy wrote Congress Wednesday endorsing the Douglas bill—his first such communication on specific legislation.

Douglas, however, said he would be glad to have an administration witness appear. If such a hearing is scheduled, it seems highly unlikely the bill could get through the Senate by Feb. 9. This is the time tentatively set for the start of the Lincoln Day recess.

After the hearings end, the subcommittee must act. Then the measure goes to the full Banking Committee headed by Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., before it can reach the floor. Robertson has opposed the bill in the past.

Kennedy's letter on the Douglas bill caused some unhappiness among Democratic sponsors of the legislation. The President wrote that he believed the program should be supervised in the Commerce Department. Former President Eisenhower used to feel the same way, and Democrats strongly opposed his view on the subject.

KENNEDY DID say in his letter that if Congress wanted to set up a new independent agency to administer aid to distressed areas, he would be willing to go along. Douglas' bill provides for such an agency, and the senator said he did not plan to change this provision.

The bill would provide for loans to help industrial and rural areas suffering from chronic unemployment to build plants to attract new job-making industries. It also would authorize loans and grants to install public facilities needed by such industries.

Lakewood Man 2nd in Archery

A Lakewood man, Keith Clark of 4170 Carfax Ave., was second in the Southern California archery championship shoot Saturday at the Long Beach Municipal Archery Range. His score was 1076.

Top man in the meet was Bob Blair of Van Nuys, who shot 1119. Third place went to Jack Bice of San Diego.

The top woman shooter of the day was Artie Palkowski of Santa Fe Springs. She had a score of 1002. Other winners in the women's division were Betty Jackie of Arcadia, with 994, and Lucille Shine of Glendale, with 967.

More than 100 archers are competing in the tournament, which will end today at the Long Beach Municipal archery range, Carson Avenue and Bellflower Boulevard.

Truck Driver Seized in Death of Woman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Truck driver Louis P. Triche, 38, of Los Angeles, was arrested Saturday for fatally stabbing his common-law wife in the back with a carving knife, police reported.

Dead was Bernice Winfield, 32. Investigators said jealousy was the motive for the slaying which occurred shortly after 1 a. m. while the woman's two small daughters slept.

Secret Talks on World Problems Opened by Macmillan, De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and President Charles de Gaulle retired to an elegant salon Saturday to begin a weekend of private talks on pressing world problems.

The conversations began after the two statesmen had luncheon with their wives in the 14th century chateau of Rambouillet, located on the edge of a quiet village 30 miles southwest of Paris.

Macmillan and De Gaulle talked alone in the marble salon, a huge room decorated with slabs of marble and overlooking an artificial lake on the vast grounds of the estate.

THE ABSENCE of aides underscored the secrecy of the first round of talks. Today Macmillan and De Gaulle will be joined by a small group of British and French officials, but very little if any word on progress of the conversations is expected to be made public.

British and French spokesmen listed such questions as disarmament, nuclear matters, Laos and European political and economic unity as possible subjects for discussion.

Some French newspapers speculated Macmillan might put forward proposals for a scientific space - marriage of the British Blue Streak missile and the French Veronique. While the Blue Streak world scene.

has been suspended for financial reasons the French are pressing ahead with the relatively short range Veronique. The British hope to get European backing to use the Blue Streak for space research.

Coming little more than a week after inauguration of President Kennedy, the top level French - English talks could also be expected to deal with implications of the new U.S. administration on the world scene.

Tax Slipup May Tumble Tough Tony From Crime Throne

By BERNARD GAVZER

CHICAGO (AP) — Fat, rich and smug, Alphonse Capone swaggered into a federal court nearly 30 years ago and wound up in prison for cheating on his income tax.

Now Anthony Joseph Accardo—who used to sit in Scarface Al's Lexington Hotel headquarters with a sub-machine gun on his lap—faces prison for lying on his Form 1020.

The loud-mouthed Capone and the soft-spoken family man, Accardo, both were brought down by pencil wielders—government crime busters faster with adding machines than machine guns.

But from Capone to Accardo there's been a marked evolution in organized crime. It's the change from the goon with a flashy tie and a black limousine with bullet-proof windows, to the organization man in banker's gray and a status-symbol sports car.

Capone was well known as a matinee idol. Accardo—by design—could walk through Chicago's Loop tomorrow at high noon and not be recognized by 1 out of 100 people.

"That doesn't mean that Accardo is some smalltime punk," says Virgil Peterson, director of the Chicago Crime Commission. "Accardo is the head of the Capone mob. Capone was powerful, but Accardo's power exceeds that of the feudal lords of old."

EVEN THOUGH Accardo tried to move in shadows, investigators—from federal agencies, congressional committees and the Chicago police department—have built up quite a dossier. He knew he was closely watched and one day complained to an elder statesman of the mob: "I can't even take a bath without one of them college boy gumshoes is peeking through the venetian blinds."

When Accardo takes a bath, he has some luxurious choices. He can use the $10,000 tub cut from a solid block of Mexican onyx or settle his 195-pound, 5' 9½" frame into a tub where the water comes out of gold-plated faucets.

His 22-room mansion in elite suburban River Forest was built for about a half-million dollars by the late William C. Grunow, a radio magnate. It has an indoor swimming pool, with a roof garden above it, six bathrooms, two bowling alleys, a large pipe organ, a billiard room and a 40 by 24 foot living room—cozy for entertaining visitors like Sam (Mooney) Giancana, who is widely named as Accardo's likely successor, or Anthony de Grazio, the police lieutenant who was discharged after he and his wife went on a European jaunt with Accardo and his blond wife, Clarice, in 1959.

Clarice calls Accardo "Daddy" or "Father," and so, presumably, do his grown children, Anthony, Linda and Marie. Sometimes he calls himself "Joseph Batters." Elsewhere, he's called "Tough Tony."

22-ROOM MANSION IS Scene of Tony Accardo's Lawn Parties

HE SEEMS NOW to be self-conscious about the blue dove tattooed on the back of his left hand, between the thumb and forefinger. During his trial, he repeatedly covered the hand with his right hand. In lighter moments, he used to call the bird "my little stool pigeon."

"Accardo leads a fairly respectable family life and tries to fill the image of a conservative business executive," says Richard Ogilvie, the 37-year-old Justice Department prosecutor who directed the strategy against Accardo. "But he's also the man who was suspected of gunning Jake Lingle (a reporter with gangster ties) and being the chauffeur in the St. Valentine's Day Massacre (when seven men were rubbed out)."

"Capone, on the other hand, was gross, vulgar, flashy. He was a boozier, a lecher, a man of violence to the end."

In the Capone heyday, Chicago and many of its suburbs ran wide open. The streets belonged to the hoods. In a five-year span, 500 men died in gang wars. Capone ruled through assassination, terrorism and political corruption.

WHEN CAPONE WAS CONVICTED of income tax evasion and sent to Alcatraz to serve an 11-year sentence, an era approached its end. The final curtain came when living room—cozy for entertaining visitors like Sam (Mooney) Giancana, who is widely named as Accardo's likely successor, or Anthony de Grazio, the police lieutenant who was discharged after he and his wife went on a European jaunt with Accardo and his blond wife, Clarice, in 1959.

Clarice calls Accardo "Daddy" or "Father," and so, presumably, do his grown that time, he has been arrested at least 15 times on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to murder—but he's never spent a night in jail.

The mob today is known as the syndicate, the organization, the boys, the outfit, the Capone mob. All describe the same thing: an empire that seems better organized, more powerful and richer than anything Capone had.

Bootlegging vanished but there was the profitable field of labor racketeering and narcotics traffic. Anything and everything was fair game: night clubs, funeral parlors, dry cleaning plants, olive oil importing, barber supplies, trucking, garment factories.

The good, old reliable money-makers still operate. Within 200 yards of City Hall, there are bars where prostitutes openly solicit customers. But things are done more gentlemanly now.

RUDDY-FACED Joe Morris, head of the police department's newly-created Bureau on Organized Crime, says: "Guys like Accardo wanted to cut out any muscle. It brings too much heat."

One of the biggest changes but two big investigations was on the surface, in manners and dress. The ribald brawls tossed by Capone gave way to the polite Fourth of July lawn parties on Accardo's estate. Capone set the height of hood fashion—ties that screamed, pearl grey fedora (with brim bent low over his left cheek to hide a knife scar), and fawn-colored camel's hair polo coat. Accardo dresses in the image of a LaSalle Street stockbroker: cashmere coat, smartly tailored lounge suits, subdued ties.

"Accardo stays far from the guys who dirty their hands," says Morris. "It's hard to trace a dollar from some hustler or policy wheel to Accardo, but it gets there."

How then was Accardo brought down? "This case would never have been brought except that our office had an interest in Accardo," says Ogilvie. The office he speaks of is the Attorney General's Special Group on Organized Crime, which went out of existence at the end of 1960.

"We wanted him. We thought we could get him on to cut out any muscle. It brings too much heat."

failed to give us anything solid. We finally realized that Accardo's setup with Premium Beer Sales Inc. was a front. The Internal Revenue Service had been pressing him to be specific about income and itemize everything. So the front job was created to account for an income of $65,000 a year. We figured that any tax maneuvers involving the job had to have an element of fraud," Ogilvie says. "We found it when Accardo made deductions totaling $3994.93 for expenses in using his $5,768 Mercedes-Benz sports car as a beer salesman."

ACCARDO'S ATTORNEYS insisted he was a beer salesman and a darned good one. Said one lawyer, Stanford Clinton:

"His name was magic among beer drinkers and beer sellers as the name Babe Ruth was magic to candy lovers."

The prosecution said there was no evidence that Accardo was a real beer salesman. The jury agreed, and returned a verdict of guilty. U. S. District Judge Julius Hoffman set punishment at six years in prison, $15,000 fines.

"It is a technicality, but the law is clear on it. The mob has used technicalities so can we," said Ogilvie.

Yet another technicality—in the process of law—finds Accardo free in $25,000 bond, pending outcome of an appeal. He still hasn't spent a night behind bars.

The Quiet Man

Ask Death for Bayar, Menderes

YASSIADA, Turkey (UPI)—The government Saturday demanded the death penalty for ex-President Celal Bayar and again insisted on death for ex-Premier Adnan Menderes at their treason trial.

State prosecutor Antay Omer Sgesel accused both men of participating in an attempt to kill their chief political opponent during their years in power.

It was the first time the prosecutor for the military junta which toppled Menderes and Bayar last May had demanded the maximum penalty for Bayar.

The government said Bayar should be condemned with Menderes for alleged participation in an attempt to kill Peoples Party leader Ismet Inonu.

Denies Firing Father for Ending Boycott

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A chain drug store's (Walgreen's) district manager Saturday said the father of the boy who broke the white boycott at an integrated school was transferred—not fired—from his job.

J. M. Engster said the father—33-year-old John N. Thompson—has accepted his new assignment here in New Orleans and will report to work early next week.

Thompson, who worked as assistant fountain manager in a French Quarter store, will also be assistant fountain manager, but an easier job, Engster said, at another store.

THOMPSON, father of six, sent his eldest son to the integrated McDonogh 19 School Friday, Gregory, 9, was the first white child to attend since a white boycott started Nov. 17. Three Negro first graders go to McDonogh.

Thompson said he intended to send his 8-year-old Michael to McDonogh School with Gregory Monday—if the younger boy had recovered from a spell of asthma.

The end of the boycott drew police, a deputy U. S. marshal and a dozen neighborhood women to the school for the first time in weeks.

Artist Peers Up Through Ice

in the cold. The body and equipment weigh 20 per cent more at the Pole than at the equator due to gravity.

I painted, under these disadvantages, plus two pairs of gloves and a hand warmer.

The Pole station is under the ice 20 feet or so. Nothing but the Raydome which contains the radar equipment, the Auroradome used by the scientists, aials, smoke stacks for engines, galleys, heating, etc. sticking through the ice in an apparently haphazard manner indicate living quarters below.

Quarters are warm, but some need repair and some buildings already have collapsed. New ones are being built. All are connected with tunnels, from which hang icicles, and are lined with all sorts of equipment and material — food, canned goods, motion picture films, covered with snow.

Inside, running down is the famous ice mine, 90 feet deep and 62 degrees below zero.

WHEN WE received orders to be ready to go to the Pole, we were told to be sure to have heavy weather gear, take along a sleeping bag and report to the flag headquarters at McMurdo.

Taking the helicopter from the USS Glacier, an icebreaker, we flew over the ice-airfield. We boarded a C-130 Hercules, a turbo-jet. We flew up the 124-mile long Beardmore glacier to the polar plateau, the largest desert in the world, all ice.

At the Pole station the group returning to McMurdo was waiting in the 20-degree-below-zero weather.

We off-loaded and they on-loaded hurriedly. Twenty minutes is all the time allowed. Engines never stop, but scream and shriek, flinging cold air and snow over us. They must be off on the return trip. Time and gas are valuable and the safety margin too close for comfort.

We had expected to be at the Pole six hours, ample time to do the work I wanted to accomplish, and return on the next plane. Little did we know it would be SEVEN DAYS before the next plane came.

LUCKILY WE HAD sleeping bags. However, getting into them was horrible. I attempted to get off my thermal boots. Before I could untie them, I was exhausted, gasping for breath. I solved that problem by turning into the sleeping bag with boots and fully dressed.

I still was cold. I slept that way for seven nights, never taking clothes or boots off.

Washing was scanty—water scarce, all melted snow. The Pole itself is 700 yards from the Pole station. Little is there—the flagpole from which flies the ensign, surrounded by half-buried barrels, another smaller flagpole and a small building containing instruments for recording the elements, including the movement of the ice. Walking demands a lot of courage and energy.

Surrounding the whole territory are bundles, barrels and Ray Bliss, Ohio state Republican chairman, to head a from planes and all marked committee that will survey with the contents. Those methods for increasing the buried in the snow and ice are party's vote in metropolitan areas.

petual refrigerator whenever needed. Thus is saved much labor in double handling.

PLANES TRIED to find us, but due to aerial disturbances, could not contact us. They turned back—that safety factor always before them. Finally, however, we had contact—and could hardly believe it when a plane was announced as coming in!

At that, we stood two hours in 20-below weather, shivering, with beards and parka fur frozen together with our breath. We were determined to be on that plane in the time allotted us—and we were.

The world is small. At the end of it, I ran into two men who were with me in the Arctic in 1957. One spoke to me through a crop of Antarctic spinach on his face. He was co-pilot of the C130 that flew me there. How was I to recognize the pilot who had flown me all over the Arctic, through the Northwest Passage and Bellot Strait. The other was a galley cook on the Arctic trip.

Capt. Roy Champion took movies of me for use in a proposed motion picture. But when I fell through a snow bridge, slipping into a crevasse above the Ross Sea, all inclination to be a movie star faded. I did, however, make an artist's note of the beauty of the sun shining through the ice above me.

CHRISTMAS DAY we were at sea on the Glacier, four days ahead of schedule on the return trip because broken and bent propellers made it imperative that the ship go to Wellington, New Zealand, for repairs. This jump in schedule almost marooned me again. I had to catch up with the ship 30 miles away by helicopter. Thank heaven for helicopters—the burros of Antarctica.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy wrote a check for $90 Saturday as his initiation fee for membership in the National Press Club.

'Divine Doctor' Calmed Dooley During Ordeal

NEW YORK (AP) — He was by a Chinese division of the Sisters of Charity (I think), from death, and he knew it.

At times, his very soul seemed swept by wild winds from within and without. "Monstrous phantoms" he called them.

Dr. Tom Dooley knew that no earthly physician could heal his cancer-wracked body.

But there was a Divine Doctor to calm the heart and soul of Dr. Dooley—the man who had devoted his life's work to the ill and afflicted in the remote reaches of the earth.

The world-renowned "jungle doctor" of Laos lay in a Hong Kong hospital bed. It was Dec. 2, 1960. In just 47 days death was to enshroud him at the age of 34.

To the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, he confided by letter some of his last thoughts on life and death—and voiced a last wish which couldn't be fulfilled.

FATHER HESBURGH has now made public the letter. It said:

"Dear Father Hesburgh, 'They've got me down. Flat on the back . . . with plaster, sand bags and hot water bottles. It took the last three instruments to do it, however.

"Two things prompt this note to you, sir. The first is that whenever my cancer acts up . . . and it is certainly 'acting up' now . . . I turn inward a bit. Less do I think of my hospitals around the world, or of 84 doctors, fund raising and the like.

"More do I think of one Divine Doctor, and my own personal fund of grace. Is it enough?"

"IT HAS BECOME pretty definite that the cancer has spread to the lumbar vertebrae, accounting for all the back problems over the last two months. I have monstrous phantoms . . . as all men do. But I try to exercise them with all the fury of the middle ages. And inside and outside the wind blows.

"But when the time comes, like now, then the storm around me does not matter. The winds within me do not matter. Nothing human or earthly can touch me.

"A wilder storm of peace gathers in my heart. What seems unpossessable I can possess. What seems unfathomable, I fathom. What is unutterable, I can utter. Because I can pray. I can communicate. How do people endure anything on earth if they cannot have God?"

"I realize that external symbols that surround one when he prays are not important. The stark wooden cross on an altar of boxes in Haiphong with a tortured priest . . . the same magnificence of the Sacred Heart Bernini Altar . . . they are essentially the same. Both are symbols. It is the something else there that counts.

(Haiphong is in North Viet Nam but there was uncertainty as to what Dr. Dooley meant by "tortured priest." The Bernini Altar is in the Sacred Heart Church on the Notre Dame campus.)

"BUT JUST NOW . . . and just so many times, how I long for the Grotto.

(The Grotto, also on the Notre Dame campus, is an exact replica of the noted Catholic shrine at Lourdes, France.)

"Away from the Grotto, Dooley just prays. But at the Grotto, especially now when there must be snow everywhere and the lake is ice glass and that triangular fountain on the left is frozen solid and all the priests are bundled in their too-large, too-long old black coats and the students wear snow boots . . . if I could go to the Grotto now, then I think I could sing inside.

"I could be full of faith and poetry and loveliness and know more beauty, tenderness, and compassion. This is soggy sentimentalism I know. 'I don't mean to ramble. Yes, I do.

"The second reason I write to you just now is that I have in front of me the Notre Dame Alumnus of September 1960.

(The reference was to the Notre Dame alumni magazine.)

"And here in is a story. This is a Chinese hospital run by a Chinese division of the Sisters of Charity (I think),

Though my doctors are British the hospital is as Chinese as shark's fin soup. Every orderly, corpsman, nurse and nun know of my work in Asia, and each has taken it upon themselves to personally 'give' to the man they feel has given to their Asia.

As a consequence, I'm a bit smothered in tender, loving care.

"WITH A triumphant smile this morning one of the nuns brought me some American magazines (which are limp with age and which I must hold horizontal above my head to read . . .). An old National Geographic, two older Times and that unfortunate edition of Life . . . and with these, a copy of the Notre Dame Alumnus. How did it ever get here?

(The reference to Life magazine apparently was to an issue which contained a story of Dr. Dooley's medical missionary work and some reference to his fund raising methods which he considered uncomplimentary.)

"So Father Hesburgh, Notre Dame is twice on my mind . . . and always in my heart. That Grotto is the rock to which my life is anchored.

"Do the students ever appreciate what they have, while they have it? I know I never did. Spent most of my time being angry at the clergy at school . . . 10 p.m. bed check, assured for a 19-year-old veteran, etc. etc. etc.

"WON'T TAKE any more of your time, did just want to communicate for a moment, and again offer my thanks to my beloved Notre Dame.

"Though I lack a certain buoyancy in my bones just now, I lack none in my spirit. I must return to the states very soon, and I hope to sneak into that Grotto . . .

"My best wishes to the students, regards to the faculty, and respects to you.

"Very sincerely, "Tom Dooley."

WITH MALCOLM EPLEY

WHAT 30 years does to a man the man himself can hardly realize, it has all happened so gradually. Even an old snapshot may not bring home the sad realization, for he may surmise that he still looks much like the young fellow in the picture.

Today I must tell you about two gentlemen who got the shocker of their lives by looking at each other and being sharp enough to realize that what time had done to one it had no doubt done to the other.

This poignant little incident involves a Long Beach professional man and an eastern college professor who were fellow students and good friends in college 30 years ago. They hadn't seen one another since.

RECENTLY, the easterner sent word that he was coming to the West Coast, and suggested the pair get together. After some correspondence, they agreed to meet at the Huntington Library gate in San Marino.

It was dusk when the Long Beach man drove up. Several people were standing there, none of whom he recognized as his old friend.

He had told the professor what sort of car to look for. As he pulled to a stop, an upper-middle aged man detached himself from the little group and peered through thick glasses at the car and the man in it.

He hesitated, obviously puzzled that it seemed to be the car but not his man.

THUS they eyed each other for a minute or so. Had it not been for the car, probably, the reunion would never have occurred. But the circumstances forced the conclusion.

The professor left the curb and advanced. They peered intently and still unbelieving at each other.

At the window, the professor suddenly thrust out his hand as recognition came for sure.

"Why, you poor old fellow!" he exclaimed.

THESE were men of perception and good humor. Each was startled at what 30 years had done to the other, but each realized that it must have done something of the same to him (though secretly no doubt each thought it hadn't done quite so much to him.) They discussed it merrily as they drove to a nearby restaurant.

They sat down in front of a blazing fireplace to wait for their dinner call, aware of the mild dramatics of the situation in which they found themselves.

The professor accepted an offer of a drink, remarking that it had been several years since he had one. Mellowed by Scotch, the pair recounted their personal histories of three decades—the lives of a couple of fellows who had done all right and had much to report.

IT ALL ended on a hilarious note for these two old friends. The professor found the Scotch much to his liking after all these tee-totaling years, and the Long Beacher sort of kept up with him, a little cautiously because he must drive.

After dinner and healthy shot of cognac, they started away. Where, asked the Long Beacher, was the professor staying? The savant knew the name of the place in San Marino, but not the address. He thought he could recognize it. Two hours of driving through the myriad winding streets of the town, happy and carefree as when they were kids in college, finally ended at the right spot. Their merriment over their predicament, and its solution, erased the disturbing effects of the first meeting. They were a lot older, but they still could have a heckuva time together.

Poll Indicated to OK Added Oil Fund Use

By GEORGE WEEKS

Long Beach voters will probably be asked soon to case restrictions on the spending oil funds for development and maintenance of the shoreline.

For the third time in recent months, City Manager Sam E. Vickers has asked the City Council to submit charter amendments or special ballot propositions to this end.

Some action by the electorate is necessary to assure prompt completion of the downtown Convention and Exhibit Hall as well as supplementary improvements at Long Beach Marina, Vickers said.

Councilmen this week will begin reviewing the financial details, as well as the manager's recommendations, preliminary to a possible election call.

THE PROBLEM with the Exhibit Hall financing is that tideland fund outlays authorized by the voters on three separate occasions are still short of the estimated cost of the big improvement.

There is enough available in the $6,100,000 approved by the electorate to pay for the building itself, now under construction.

In addition $359,020 has been allotted from other tideland money—the $250,000 annually that may be spent without specific voter authorization.

But Vickers estimated there will be a deficiency, from the standpoint of city authorization, of some $1,447,000 needed for further site development, building equipment and contingencies.

On the other hand, the State Lands Commission—whose approval also is necessary before the city trust money may be released—has authorized a total of $7,259,250. That will cover all anticipated costs except building equipment, which the commission deferred for later decision.

AT THE MARINA the deficiency as compared with voter-approved authorization and other funds is estimated at $479,000, bringing the total for the two projects to more than $1,925,000. Some of it came about from underestimates of costs, the balance from gradual expansion of the improvements.

Money is on hand in the Tideland Oil Fund, but it can't be spent legally unless the voters act.

Vickers proposed two methods of getting authorization.

One would be a charter amendment increasing the annual allocation that may be spent on approval of the City Council without reference to the voters from $250,000 to $500,000.

The other would be to submit propositions for authorizing additional expenditures on the two projects—the fourth vote of that kind for the Exhibit Hall, the third for the marina.

TO FINANCE THE MORE URGENT PROJECTS at the small-craft harbor would take all the remaining accruals in the annual $250,000 allotment—currently estimated at some $336,000.

But that still leaves $479,000 of marina costs that would have to be deferred, Vickers said—items such as maintenance buildings and street improvements.

If the present limit of $250,000 on Council-approved tideland expenditures is left unchanged, it will take eight years to accumulate enough cash for all deficiencies on the two projects, the city manager estimated.

HE ALSO PROPOSED a charter amendment to remove another restriction. This one limits the funds that may be spent for operation and maintenance of tideland areas to $500,000 annually plus revenues from sources other than oil.

Improvements already completed have increased these costs to such a point that it was necessary to take $137,697 from the annual $250,000 tideland fund appropriation.

Among individual councilmen there is considerable grumbling about the erroneous estimates of project costs by city consultants and the necessity of repeatedly going to the voters to retrieve the lapses. However, the consensus appeared to be that some sort of corrective action must be taken.

Shots Fatal to Wife in L.B. Triangle

Julie Eve Bugbee, 22, a victim in a triangle shooting, died at 8:40 a.m. Saturday in Memorial Hospital.

Her sailor husband, Marvin D. Bugbee, 23, earlier was arraigned for the murder of Kenneth R. Williams, 19, a Navy man, in Municipal Court.

Police said Bugbee shot and killed Williams and wounded the wife Wednesday when he caught the pair together in the wife's apartment at 237½ Kennebeck Ave. Municipal Judge Charles T. Smith ordered Bugbee jailed without bail pending preliminary hearing Thursday.

Dan Ridder Named to Head Chest

Daniel H. Ridder, co-publisher of The Independent Press-Telegram, has been elected president of the board of directors of the United Neighbors Community Chest.

Other officers include Guy S. Balser and George A. Hart Jr., vice presidents, and Max E. Nichols, treasurer.

Ridder named James H. Crooker campaign chairman for the 1961 fund drive. Ridder held that post in the recent campaign.

Serving on the executive committee of the board are Crooker, Norbert W. Dean, Mrs. Roger T. Huffman and Victor A. Cross.

Capt. E. K. Schofield, Long Beach Naval Shipyard, was elected to the board to fill the vacancy caused by resignation of Adm. C. J. Palmer.

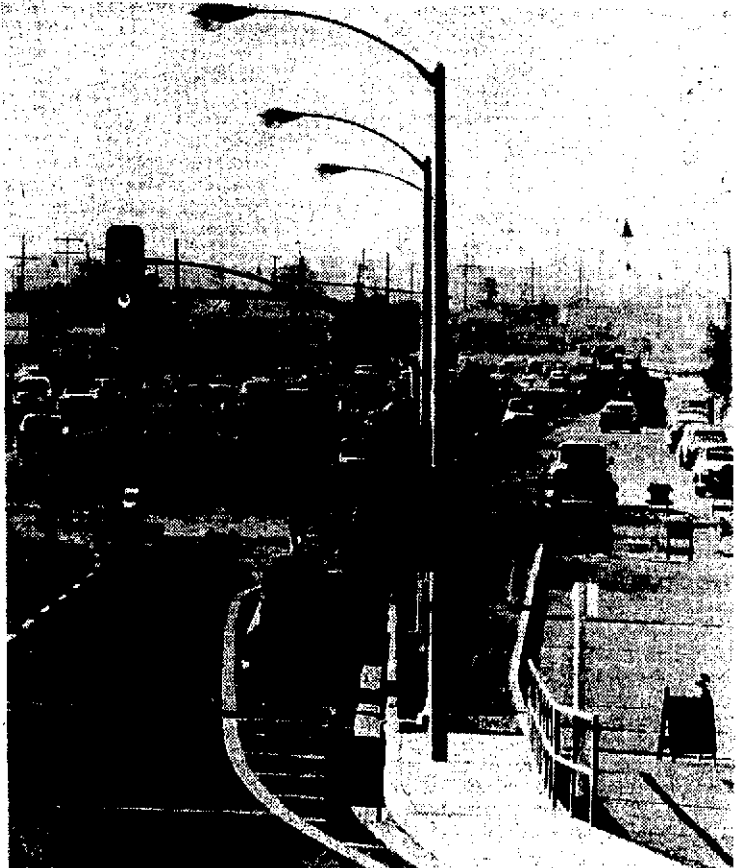

Ridder also is president of the Western Conference of Community Chests, United Funds and Councils. That group will have its annual conference here April 3-7.

Bar Burglarized

Pat's Place, a bar at 5432 Atlantic Ave., early Saturday was burglarized of $115, police said. Forty dollars was rifled from a coin-operated machine and $75 in currency from a hiding place.

No Naps in Naples

In the rattle of construction, Naples is no place for a siesta. On its northwest border, work has started on the Apian Way bridge over the channel linking Marine Stadium to Alamitos Bay. Connecting Sorrento Drive on the east side with Bayshore on the west, the span by August will provide direct access to the marina. Photo above shows a dragline nibbling out coffer dam on the east side.

In the heart of Naples from the Second Street bridge to the J. H. Davies bridge, Second Street is being widened to four lanes. View at left looking westward from the approach to the Davies span shows building of center island divider. Due for completion in March, this project will allot eight feet for a parking strip on the south side of the street. Controversy has been stirred by elimination of large parking area in the center of the thoroughfare. City officials say use of gas tax funds prevent allotting of extra parking space.—(Staff Photos by Roger Coar)

Dime March of Mothers Brings Drive to Climax

Threading through every block of the Long Beach Unified School District, a dedicated army of women will ring doorbells Tuesday night for the March of Dimes.

The Mothers March, annual climax of the month-long health fund, will aim at topping a goal of $125,000 for aid to local polio patients and other victims of crippling diseases.

Swelling the ranks of women marchers will be members of service clubs, civic organizations and youth groups throughout the area, which includes Lakewood, Signal Hill and Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, as well as Long Beach.

EACH MARCHER will be identified by a colorful blue lapel ribbon bearing a gold key insignia, and a large envelope of the same design to receive donations.

The marchers will be safeguarded during the evening hours of the campaign by neighborhood patrols of the Long Beach Auxiliary Police. The volunteer officers also will provide escort service for fund transfers to the central collection point.

The campaign workers will be under the direction of neighborhood captains in every school district, according to the Mothers March co-chairmen, Mrs. John T. Bohan, 3763 Lewis Ave., and

E. H. Nettleton Dies in Hemet

Nettleton operated the Nettleton Dental Laboratory on Pine Avenue before retiring a year ago. He is survived by his wife, Mary.

Enrollment for General Adult Division courses will be taken directly in the classroom at Poly, Jordan, Wilson, Millikan, Lakewood and West Adult centers and other locations.

At the Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., new day students will report to the gymnasium for counseling and registration. Evening students will go directly to the classroom.

REGISTRATION FOR day classes closed Friday at the Liberal Arts Division, 4901 E. Carson St., but will remain open for evening classes through Feb. 9. Students who missed the deadline for day enrollment at this campus may still enter liberal arts classes at the Business and Technology Division.

New headquarters for the Long Beach Evening High School is Room 301 on the Poly High Campus. Principal Wright Atwood advises all adults interested in obtaining a high school diploma to call for a counseling appointment. Office hours are 1-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8-5 p.m. Friday.

Adult classes available for the spring semester include citizenship, English for the foreign born, parent education, homemaking, art, music and many other subjects. A total of 51 classes in nine foreign languages will be offered at the various adult centers.

WEATHER OR NOT

Mrs. Carl Mansell, 3451 Sawyer St., one of hundreds of volunteers in the Mothers March here Tuesday night, prepares to make her rounds regardless of what the Weatherman holds in store. House-to-house solicitation is climax of month-long March of Dimes drive.

KISS FROM 'NUTTY GEORGE'

M. I. Masterson Sr., 5754 Lucia Walk, receives a kiss from pet pigeon, "Nuttie George." As Masterson puts it: "I didn't find George, he found me. He wouldn't get out of the way of my car in the alley when I spied him a week ago." Since that time, George prefers to stay in Masterson's house, feeds out of his hand. "At night, we have to put him out," Masterson said. "He gets mad and stays by the window, just glaring at us." When Masterson whistles for him the next morning, George comes flying.—(Staff Photo)

'Top Citizen' Jailed in Extortion

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Two charges of attempted extortion were lodged here Friday against a respected but insolvent contractor who sought to force money from officials of two Wilmington banks.

"He is a wonderful man, well thought of," said New Hanover Sheriff's Deputy R. A. Jarrell of Robert L. Mosher, 44-year-old general contractor who was apprehended in a branch of the Bank of Wilmington Friday during the second extortion attempt.

The deputy said Mosher, a Boy Scout leader, church and civic club member, admitted threatening the families of the two bank officials if money he demanded wasn't given him.

A conference among sheriff's officers, Chief of Police J. J. Padrick and Mrs. Mosher Saturday produced a full admission of guilt, said Padrick.

"Mrs. Mosher knew nothing about the plots," said Jarrell.

The first extortion came Jan. 6 against Robert H. Pate, senior vice president of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. He was instructed to leave $8,050 in the Wilmington library. He notified officers, left the money, but no one ever came for it.

The second extortion try for $15,000 — came Friday against Mrs. Francis M. Mal-mington, wife of the manager of a branch of the Bank of Wil-mington.

Noise, Noses Make News

(Prepared in collaboration with Medical Education Department, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER AND GEORGE X. TRIMBLE, M. D.

Noise in the workshop or factory need not be shattering for hearing impairment to result, Japanese researchers report. Noise considered not especially loud can also make one deaf.

In a business office, for example, accounting machines may possibly make their operators deaf, the researchers found after testing 17 business-machine workers. However, only those who operated accounting machines were victims. Those who handled other types of machines were not affected.

The Japanese study is summarized in Annals of Otolaryngology & Laryngology.

PLASTIC SURGEONS should carefully evaluate a patient seeking a change in the size or shape of his nose.

If such a patient should prove to be mentally ill, he may attack his doctor after his operation, say Drs. Patrick Carlson and David Stafford-Clark of Guy's Hospital, London.

Another possibility: the mentally ill patient who has undergone plastic surgery may attempt suicide.

One explanation is that the mental patient may view his plastic surgery as mutilation, no matter how successful the operation.

FOUND: ANOTHER USE for the artificial kidney—treatment of snakebite complications.

Doctors in Savannah, Ga., used the device to save the life of an 11-year-old boy bitten by a rattlesnake.

One of the bite complications was acute kidney failure. For six hours the boy was hooked up to the device, which purified his blood and gave his kidneys time to recover their normal function.

PATIENTS SHOULD NO LONGER be kept in the dark as to the identity of the prescription drugs they're taking, suggests Dr. William H. Havener of Ohio State University in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Labeling drugs is a safety factor, he explains.

Dr. Havener gives this example:

A heart specialist might prescribe the drug Diamox to relieve waterlogging caused by a cardiac condition, unaware that the patient already is taking the same drug for the eye ailment glaucoma. Result: overdose.

Yet the patient could point out the duplication if he were aware of the name of the drug prescribed by his eye doctor.

"THE 'CELERY ITCH,' suffered by some farm workers, could be avoided if harvesters protected their skin from sunlight, new research shows.

Juice in pink-rot celery contains a substance activated by sunlight, says a report in Archives of Dermatology. If a celery worker gets the juice on his arm, he may possibly suffer blisters followed by changes in skin pigmentation, provided, of course, his arms are exposed to the sun. If the skin is protected from the sun, the chemical reaction can't take place.

GERMAN MEASLES, or rubella, is a relatively mild disease but it sometimes can bring about a temporary arthritis.

Studies of 20 patients with the ailment are reported in California Medicine by doctors at Palo Alto Medical Clinic.

Fifteen female and five male patients were observed. All the men and a third of the women experienced knee-joint involvement after recovering from German measles. Most of the women suffered involvement of the small joints of the hands.

The condition, called rubella arthritis, persists 2 to 14 days when it occurs.

Pedestrian Hit by Car on Highway

A 69-year-old pedestrian was critically injured Saturday night when he was hit by a car on Pacific Coast Highway near Olive Avenue. The pedestrian, Charles Shay, whose address tentatively was listed as 2930 Long Beach Blvd., suffered severe head and leg injuries. He was taken to Memorial Hospital.

Patrolman Warren Simpson and T. C. Thompson said Shay was knocked approximately 95 feet by a car driven by Nicolas D. Connor, 19, of 2217 Pacific Ave.

Thompson said persons contacted at the Long Beach Boulevard address did not know Shay. Other persons contacted near the scene of the accident told police they believed Shay has a wife and several children living in Long Beach.

97 Employees Win Safety Awards

Ninety-seven employees of the City Public Service Department have qualified for awards for the rubbish-collecting equivalent of threading the needle, Worth Johnson, manager of the refuse-disposal division, announced Saturday.

The 97 received certificates for driving one year or more without so much as scratching a fence. Vice Mayor Bert Bond and other officials attended the presentation ceremony.

The employees had amassed a total of 310 years and 10 months of safe driving, or an average of nearly four years per man without being responsible for damage to any structure or other vehicle.

Johnson pointed out that much of the distance covered by the drivers is a sort of obstacle course of protruding telephone poles, fences and garages on the alley line of "T" and "L" turns.

IN SOME CASES operators have to maneuver an eight-foot-wide truck through an eight-foot, two-inch alley.

The record was one of several safety marks set by the division since it began to turn the heat on accidents in a program that has continued since 1957, Johnson said.

On-the-job inquiries during 1959 declined 20 per cent in frequency and 50 per cent in severity, division records show. Last year there was a further drop of 24 per cent in lost-time job injuries.

The program is directed by

Salvation Army to Build New Citadel

The Salvation Army's old Citadel at 329 Locust Ave. soon will give way to a new, modern, and larger Citadel to be built on Spring Street between Elm and Pasadena Avenues.

Lloyd Leedom, general campaign chairman of the Salvation Army's "Building for Service" campaign here, said the new Citadel is one of four projects included in the campaign goal of $472,000. The new building will be headquarters for the Home League, an organization of women of all denominations who meet weekly for fellowship services.

The League of Mercy, another Salvation Army service, also will be directed from the new structure. League workers visit the sick.

The new Citadel also will house the Red Shield Youth Center and contain meeting rooms for community use.

Leedom said a new building for family welfare work and quarters for needy women and children will be constructed at the old Citadel site.

Architects for the new building are Palmer W. Power and Delma J. Daniel Jr.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT He Didn't Get Japan Beauty

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — In the movies, Jimmy Shigeta is likely to play a Japanese who captured the American gal. Jimmy, who grew up in our 50th state, Hawaii, but later went to New York University, played a real life love scene in Japan recently that was just the reverse. Jimmy, the American boy, didn't get the Japanese beauty he wanted.

"It's a true story," Jimmy told me a recent afternoon at La Fonda del Sol. He was enjoying the South American and Spanish dishes because he can also play Latin parts believably.

"She was an actress named Kazuko," Jimmy smiled. "The girl didn't want to live in America. The Japanese are very close to their families."

"You couldn't blame her ... so it was a near miss," Jimmy said.

JIMMY SHIGETA'S background is going to get more confused as he gets more famous—and I'm sure some day you'll hear that he was really born in Brooklyn.

To make it more tangled, he's called "the Frank Sinatra of Japan"—but he's not called that by Jimmy Shigeta.

"I have too much respect for Frank Sinatra for that," he says.

"My parents are Hawaiian, my father's a constructionist. I went on my own free will to Japan after I first got out of the U. S. Marine Corps—and we old Hawaiians are still angry at the American missionaries for one thing," he added.

"For what?" I asked.

"For covering up our women!" he snapped ... but playfully.

WITH THE TREND toward the Oriental or the Latin getting the girl in pictures, Jimmy'll soon be able to get the girl in any language. When I saw him, he was off to Paris to finish a picture with Carroll Baker ("Bridge to the Sun"), and was getting ready to start "Flower Drum Song" in L. A. and San Francisco with Nancy Kwan.

By now he's the cosmopolite's cosmopolite. Six feet

TINA LOUISE
All Eyes on Parasol

Bikini No Match for Her Sunshade

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—No movie actress better fills a bikini than red-haired Tina Louise—and it came as no surprise that she scored a minor sensation along the French Riviera last season.

Tina, moviemaking in Europe for the last year or so, returned here recently. But with modesty unbecoming an actress, she disclosed that it was not the sight of her voluptuous frame in a bikini that caused the uproar.

"It was because I carried a parasol to match my bikini," she explains.

"I can't stand sun. It gives me freckles. I'm a natural redhead, you know."

Tina added: "Basically I'm an indoor girl, but on the Riviera everybody is outdoors, so I just had to join the crowd."

TINA IS AN OFFBEAT DOLL picked for movies because of her comedy timing as Appassionata von Climax in the original Broadway production of "L'il Abner." Producer Sidney Harmon saw her and cast her as the seductress of "God's Little Acre."

The movie had commercial and critical success, especially in Europe. Italian producers beckoned. Tina did a picture for Roberto Rossellini in which she got the script the first day of shooting.

"That wasn't so bad," says Tina, "but it was all in Italian. I was just learning the language. One of the fastest ways to learn a language is to shoot an Italian movie with Italian actors. You either learn the language—or get scenes stolen from you. Now I speak it fluently."

As a producer, he recently made "Spartacus" in Hollywood.

"I'm only an actor here but I've watched all the production," he writes. "In general, equipment in Hollywood is vastly superior."

"Crews here (Austria) seem to work together as a team more than they do in Hollywood. There is a great pride of craftsmanship here among set workers, as strong as it is in Hollywood."

"In short, I believe pictures that require a foreign locale should be shot on the spot. Those that don't need it, should be shot in Hollywood. The money doesn't figure into it."

Alimony Payment Balk Jails Actor

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Actor Cameron Mitchell, here making a television series, was held under $50,000 bond in jail Saturday on a complaint he was delinquent in alimony payments.

The actor, filming a TV series called "The Beachcomber" in this central Florida area, was arrested Friday night.

Wildebess Caught by Wayne Rope

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—John Wayne has proved himself a real cowboy—even in Africa. Big Duke is in Arusha, Tanganyika, east Africa, making "Hatari" for Howard Hawks.

He recently roped a fleet wildebeest weighing 450 pounds. The wildebeest resembles the American bison but is vicious and as fleet as a deer.

Wayne made the capture from the front of a catching car speeding at up to 65 miles per hour over rough terrain. Strapped to a seat on the front fender, he had the animal subdued in 30 seconds from the time it started to run.

The local white hunters called his feat sensational, but a friend who wrote here about it said Wayne pooh-poohed it.

"A real range-riding cowboy would have bagged it in 15 seconds," said Wayne. "And I would have too, back in the days when I was making those eight-day westerns for Monogram."

GOAL: BROADWAY L.B. Play Scheduled for National Tour

Remember "Winter Wine," comedy drama by Luby Miller, Long Beach playwright, which ran a year ago in the Magnolia Theatre here?

It's on its way to making big time. The play, with Pat Brown, director of the Magnolia Theatre, as director and star, is presented at 8:30 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays in the Hollywood Center Theatre, Sunset Boulevard and Las Palmas, Hollywood.

"We next hope to take 'Winter Wine' on a national tour, and with a little luck we should have it in New York before the end of the year," says her husband, Gerald Brown, producer. "Luby Miller is a playwright of extraordinary ability. We have faith in 'Winter Wine.'"

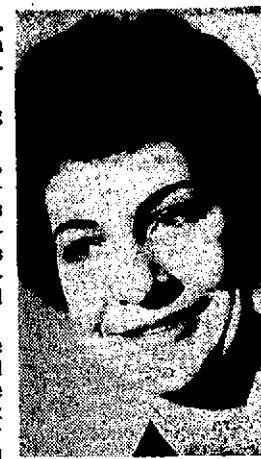

VIRGINIA ARNESS was slated to play the part of Lilian, romance-starved career woman who falls in love with the married man next door, but she became ill and Pat Brown took the role the night "Winter Wine" opened in Hollywood.

Hollywood, Los Angeles and Beverly Hills critics have praised the play and it rated a favorable mention in Variety.

Wrote one critic: "Winter Wine" is an intoxicating drink of excellent vintage."

WROTE ANOTHER: "Pat Brown's performance is superb. She creates a human being for us that is lucid, very responsive and ultimately fascinating. She knows how to emphasize what is in the script."

Ivan Bonar, the married man, and Ruth Gartler, sharp-tongued sister, are members of the original cast. Others are Pearl Shear, the invalid mother; Alycia Brooks, the flighty wife, and Burt Conroy, man-about-town.

Pat Brown is a former TV and stage actress of New York and Houston, Tex. Gerald Brown, former drama instructor at Brown University, was an NBC producer in New York.

The Browns will feel at home when "Winter Wine" reaches New York.

Rediscover Mood Music. 'Silent' Idea

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—George Hamilton, who wasn't born in the days of silent pictures, recently revived an old silent film custom.

In "By Love Possessed," he hired three musicians to supply mood music while he made screen love to Susan Kohner, his real life romantic interest. There was no dialogue.

Director John Sturges said the scene was shot in one take.

"I think I'll do it in all my pictures," the director added.

"I guess everybody on the set thought I was some kind of nut," says Hamilton, "but soft, romantic music creates the right kind of mood for a love scene."

Revenge-Minded Kroll, Bayer Share Slim Lead

By JERRY WYNN
SAN FRANCISCO — Droll Ted Kroll, denied a date with dame fortune last week, goes courting again today.

The plucky ex-infantry sergeant from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., commanded a three-under-par 68 Saturday to tie George Bayer of South Pasadena for the lead going into today's final round of the $57,000 Lucky International golf tournament.

Bayer slipped from his blistering first two rounds of 65-66 to a third round of 72 to match Kroll's 54-hole total of 203. As different as Mutt and Jeff in appearance but travelling buddies on the tour, the two leaders are two strokes in front of young Al Geiberger of Santa Barbara, who shot 69 Saturday for 205.

Three more Southern Californians are deadlocked for fourth place at 206—giving the southland five of the top six places. Snicker, Snicker. They are San Diego prides Bill Casper, Don Whitt and Phil Rodgers.

Only four strokes off the pace at 207 is the fearsome fivesome of Jay Hebert, Ken Venturi, Gary Player, Don January and that man Arnold Palmer.

SO THE BATTLE for the bumper $9,000 first place purse—largest on the winter tour—should be a honey today.

The big story must be little Kroll.

The 5-foot-8, 41-year-old shotmaker will tee off with the bitter memory of that 81 final round at Pebble Beach that blew him clear out of the top money and decimated a four-stroke lead ranking in his mind. Victory today would be magnificent revenge.

RUSSIAN JUMPS 7 FT., 4 IN.

LENNINGRAD (AP) — Valery Brumel, Moscow student who finished second in the Olympic Games high jump, Saturday made the highest leap in history—7 feet, 4½ inches.

The jump, made in an indoor meet, surpassed John Thomas' outdoor record of 7-3¼ and Thomas' new American indoor record of 7-3¼, established an hour after Brumel's jump.

Brumel made it on his first try. "My plan for the summer is to hit 7-5 in the open air," he enthused.

Brumel leaves early next month for the United States, where he will meet Thomas in a series of meets.

GEORGE 'BAYERS' DOWN
George Bayer chips to first green during third round of $57,000 Lucky International golf tournament Saturday. Bayer took a bogey 5 on the hole and finished with a 72 for a 205 total—good for a first-place tie with Ted Kroll.—(AP Wirephoto.)

team or he would quit football by sending the six-year veteran from SC to the Rams.

Here is how the deal, completed just before the NFL owners broke up their annual winter meeting at New York, went:

The Rams sent the 29-year-old Wade to the Bears in exchange for defensive halfback Erich Barnes and either a high draft choice or a player to be determined before the start of the 1961 season.

Los Angeles then traded

But as Kroll found out last Sunday and Bayer learned today, there's no such thing as nursing a lead with a pack of hungry, hounding pursuers especially on a course singing with birdie holes.

"I'll shoot 66 tomorrow and win this," said the ever-confident Venturi.

But Kroll and Bayer weren't so sure.

"I'll show up tomorrow," cracked Kroll.

"If I don't win," remarked Bayer, "I hope Kroll does. He certainly deserves it."

And don't forget Palmer. Disgusted over a "miserable" 72 Saturday, he still smiled when informed that he was only four strokes behind.

Palmer is paired with Venturi today and it should be a great head-to-head duel between the two greatest golfers today.

KROLL and Bayer played together Saturday, and Kroll didn't catch his hulking rival until the final hole when Bayer bogied by pulling a three-foot putt.

Kroll played the front nine in even par 36 but picked up three birdies on the back nine for a 32. He sank snakes of 25 and 30 feet on the 11th and 16th holes and plunked a 5-iron three feet from the pin on the 13th.

Bayer also turned the front side in 36, but gave evidence that he was off form by missing six greens. He birdied the 510-yard ninth by drilling a 2-iron to the green and two putting. He parred every hole on the back nine until the bad putt on the home green.

Kroll estimated that Bayer outdrew him an average of 50 yards on their drives.

GEIBERGER'S 69 was highlighted by a 60-foot birdie putt on the 12th. The 6-foot-3 former SC star also hit a 5-iron to within 18 inches of the pin on the third.

Best round of the dark, drab day was a 66 by Whitt. Mason Rudolph shot 67 and

Ellsworth Colt Romps in Stunning (4½) Style

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Out of the lengthening shadows at Santa Anita race track at 4:35 p.m. Saturday a new champion was born as a streamlined bay colt named Prove It did just that in coasting to a stunning four and one-half length victory in the $167,370 Maturity.

Doubt might have existed before the chase that the late-developing Rex Ellsworth colt was in the same class as previous Maturity champions like Round Table, Ponder, Determined and Hillsdale, but Prove It's smashing triumph before 49,305 witnesses erased any question as to this colt's ability.

Prove It legged the mile and one-quarter distance in 2:01, second fastest time in 14 Maturity runnings, and Willie Shoemaker even glanced around in the stretch before easing up on the mercurial colt.

The surprising entry of Prince Blessed and Grey Eagle, which went off at 17-1, nabbed the juicy second and third place jackpots, while second choice Tompon was fourth, ahead of New Policy, T.V. Lark and Djedjah Pat in that order.

AS THE 7-5 favorite, Prove It returned $4.80, $3.40 and $3.40, while the entry coughed back $7.60 and $5.

Even owner Ellsworth was shaken over the tremendous triumph, for just 10 months ago on March 20, he had entered Prove It in his very first race—a $2,500 claimer—at Caliente.

Since that inauspicious beginning, Prove It has blitzed to eight victories in nine trips to the post, his lone defeat being to Revel—and Revel equalled the track record that afternoon.

"We didn't think much of the colt at first," sighed the exhausted owner after the classic, "but every time we raced him, he kept getting better. I'm just about ready to concede Prove It is as good as Swaps."

Swaps is California's all-time money winning leader—and until now, Ellsworth's juiciest product.

The classic was like a wild west show in spots for every horse but Prove It, who stayed clear of trouble by opening daylight between himself and the field in the stretch, and the 54-1 shot, Djedjah Pat, who was so far in arrears he should have stayed in the barn.

THE PRINCIPAL bumping episode—which went unnoticed by the stewards—occurred as the field straightened out for the drive home.

Grey Eagle, which had been cutting a blistering pace alongside the rail, "spread" his left front shoe (the shoe apparently became loose) and Grey Eagle swerved into T.V. Lark on his right.

T.V. Lark then hit New Policy and at the same time Tompon whacked New Policy on the other side, thus pinching in Milo Valenzuela's colt and forcing "Policy" to lose all chance.

Valenzuela and Eddie Arca (aboard T.V. Lark) had a few words following the race, apparently "discussing" the incident.

Grey Eagle and Prove It ran 1-2 most of the race, until Shoemaker flipped the Ellsworth colt's switch upon entering the stretch—and that's all Shoe wrote!

The battle for second and third place loot was a thriller, Johnny Longden steering Prince Blessed clear on the outside and getting up in the final stride to nip his stablemate. Tompon, obviously off his feed, still staggered home for a fourth-place slice of pie.

Prove It was well placed while racing close to pacemaker, responded gamely to urging on stretch turn, took command entering stretch, increased his advantage at will. PRINCE BLESSED was never far off the leaders, moved up between horses on far turn, came to outside in stretch, finished strongly under vigorous handling. GREY EAGLE was sent to lead at once, set pace to stretch they gave way when winner challenged, held on with good courage while on inside. TOMPON was in last place to backstretch then moved up on outside, started to make move in stretch. T.V. LARK advanced steadily, while moving ground in last half mile failed to rally when called upon in stretch. DJEDJAH PAT quit after a half mile.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

L. B. Banquet Outstanding

The fifth annual Century Club Sports Night banquet last week was by any measure used, the most outstanding athletic social function ever staged in Long Beach.

A majority of the credit for its success goes to Paul Salata, the former Trojan, S. F. 49er and Canadian League end, who handled the emcee chores, and club president Jim Crooker, who performed the intricate task of dispensing the numerous awards in machine gun-like fashion.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Salata was overwhelmed at the magnitude of the awards banquet.

"You should spread a banquet like this over three days," he cracked. "Somebody should pick up the tab for a three-day hotel bill for all the name athletes, award winners and everybody else who has a part in the program!"

Salata asked only one favor after the banquet: "Put in a good plug for four great friends of mine in Long Beach—Glenn Willett, the Dohley brothers and Bullet Baker. They're some of the greatest people I've ever met anywhere in sports."

No sooner said than done, Paul.

When a banquet is concerned with 1,000 people, confusion and mixups are part-and-parcel of the affair. Here's some of the "interesting" events that transpired around this particular affair:

One very prominent athlete, who, incidentally, has a history of getting fouled-up on the field or off, phoned this department a day after the soiree. "Gee, I'm sorry I wasn't there last night," he stammered. "I thought it was next Thursday night!"

Another major league athlete phoned this department one week before the affair because he had not yet received an invitation. "I had a great year," the athlete said, "and I wondered how come I hadn't got my invite yet. Some guys you invited didn't do half as good last season as me." (The modest chap was told that a half-dozen athletes' invitations had somehow got mixed-up, but that his would be in the mail immediately.)

GEORGE TIMBERLAKE, the former City College, SC and Green Bay gridders, phoned two hours before the banquet to say: "I brought Volney Peters with me from San Diego. Do you suppose we can get him a ticket?" (No problem there, but Volney's name had not been included on the list sent by the Chargers' front office so it was too late to seat him at the head table. Seems honored guest Ben Agajanian had issued a verbal invitation to Peters when the Chargers were en route to the AFL championship game in Houston last month . . . and Volney didn't forget!)

Lindon Crow of the L. A. Rams and three other Chargers, Ron Mix, Al Barry and Charlie McNeill, showed up unexpectedly as the banquet began. Crow hadn't known until three hours before the fete whether or not he could make it, so hadn't replied at all. The Charger trio said "somebody in the office told us to be here, so here we are!"

Two other Chargers, who had been expected, weren't there because (1) Don Norton's wife was having a baby and (2) Jack Kemp forgot the evening was his Army Reserve night and if he didn't show up, he'd be called into immediate active duty.

Another chap (non-athlete) was upset because he thought the affair was strictly an Armenian banquet. "Somebody told me all the Armenians in Southern California would be here to honor Ben Agajanian," spluttered the fellow. "I only see about 60 in this crowd!" C'est la vie.

PEOPLE PHONED throughout the week, asking that certain "athletes" be invited to the affair. A 1911 walking champion was upset because he had been overlooked . . . a 1932 walkathon winner's name was broached by his wife . . . a hill-climber from Colorado was in town and "thought" he should be invited . . . so did an out-of-state curling champion . . . and the list goes on.

One athlete's signature was impossible to read on the acceptance card he mailed, so a dinner ticket was left in the name of "???" and I presume "???" showed up and was taken care of properly because the ticket was picked up!

A prominent L. B. barrister couldn't finish his meal "because I was sitting too close to the band and I hate noise when I eat."

But things like this are unavoidable incidents in every major banquet and have to be taken in stride. However, after last week's brilliant success, little doubt exists that the Long Beach banquet now is the top sports fete in Southern California!

Jones Brilliant as State Edges L.A.

By AL LARSON

Dave Jones triggered the biggest run since Bull Run by setting two individual school records as Long Beach State dumped Los Angeles State 109-106 in double overtime Saturday night to complete the greatest home court basketball sweep in 49er history. Long Beach turned back league-leading Santa Barbara Saturday night, 66-58.

Jones, who grew hotter as the game progressed, poured in 36 points and pulled down 36 rebounds to enable coach Dick Perry's crew to gain undisputed second place in the CCAA scramble. L.A. and San Diego, 65-62 victim of Santa Barbara, fell to third spot. Long Beach is now 3-2 in the standings.

The record crowd of 1,680 saw reserve Ron Batson flip in a basket with two seconds remaining to throw the game into the first overtime at 85-85.

Sax Elliott's club forced a second five-minute overtime when Bill Heynen scored from underneath to deadlock the wild contest at 95-95.

L.A. quickly shot ahead 97-95 on Leo Hill's basket but Jones and Bobby Holland hit two-pointers and the 49ers were ahead to stay.

Jones bettered Ron Stewart's scoring mark of 33 points and cracked Dick Dickinson's record of 28 rebounds. The combined scoring total of 215 points also surpassed last year's conference high of 210 set by the same two clubs when Long Beach won, 110-100.

JONES, HITTING four of eight shots from the floor in the first half and one of two free throw attempts, came back after intermission and shot at a .500 clip again. But this time he made 10 of 20 field goal attempts and cashed in seven of 10 charity tosses to command LBSC's drive.

The game was marred by 60 fouls. Seven players fouled out, including Long Beach's Hank Salcido, Randy Sandefur, Batson and Bill Florentine. Jim Beck, Hill and Ron Calabrese of L.A. also drew five personals, Salcido, playing his last college game, was given a standing ovation when he was forced to the sidelines with 43 seconds remaining.

Vikes Rebound to Trip Valley, Finish Round in Tie for Second

By BOB SHIBLEY

Long Beach City College rebounded from a disastrous trip to Bakersfield Friday to defeat Valley, 70-66, Saturday night in a Metropolitan Conference basketball game in the Viking gym.

The win, which closed out first round action, left the Vikings (5-2) in a three-way tie for second with East Los Angeles and San Diego. Bakersfield (6-1) heads the pack.

At the game's outset it appeared as though the Vikings had never left Bakersfield. After only two minutes of action, Long Beach trailed 10-2.

But then Lyn Hodge, who poured in 25 points in his finest performance of the season, rattled off 11 points within a six-minute span as the Vikings narrowed the gap to 17-15. Len Robinette's jump shot with 10:28 left in the half tied the score.

After Jack Hirsch sank a free throw to give Valley a one-point edge, Robinette clicked on another jumper to give Long Beach the lead for the first time. The Vikings held a 35-33 advantage at halftime.

Long Beach led continuously in the second half until the final three minutes, when the Monarchs rallied to take a one-point advantage on Hirsch's tip. Doyle Canaday followed with a 25-foot jumper with 2:20 left as the Vikings went ahead for good. Canaday and Hodge hit free throws and Carmichael added a pair, all within a 25-second interval and Long Beach held an insurmountable lead a 35-33 advantage at halftime.

CARMICHAEL, who was held scoreless in the second half against Bakersfield, had another below-average shooting performance, connecting on only four of 25 floor attempts. He added three free throws for 11 points.

Robinette, in addition to playing a superb defensive game, also had his best offensive performance in several weeks, scoring 13 points and missing only one of six floor shots.

Long Beach is idle until Friday, when it hosts East Los Angeles. The Huskies won a 53-50 decision over the Vikings in the league opener Jan. 6.

SC, UCLA Score Easy Arena Wins

SC and UCLA set the stage for their crucial head-on collision next Friday night by turning back Denver and the Air Force Saturday night before 3,204 fans at the Sports Arena.

The Trojans romped to their seventh straight win with an easy 68-52 decision over Denver while UCLA scored its fifth straight win, toppling the Air Force Academy, 89-78.

Passing and shooting poorly for most of the game, the Trojans, nevertheless, had an easy time posting their 14th victory of the season against just two defeats.

John Rudometkin again stole the spotlight as he scored 21 points and pulled down 21 rebounds. His rebound total tied a school record set in 1955 by Roy Irvin.

Ken Stanley turned in one of his best shooting performances of the year with seven field goals and three free throws for 17 points.

Lakers Back to Work vs. Pistons at Arena Today

By DON HARDIN

The Los Angeles Lakers, following a three-day rest, begin another tight and strenuous schedule of nine games in 11 days when they take on the Detroit Pistons in the first of a two-game home set this afternoon at the Sports Arena. Game time is 2:30.

Detroit and Los Angeles meet again Monday night at the Arena, then fly directly to New York to take part in a twin bill Tuesday night. Four games follow on the road before the Lakers return to take on, in succession, St. Louis (2), Boston and Philadelphia (2) during February.

This will be the first appearance for Detroit, winner of seven straight before losing to the Celtics Friday night, in the Sports Arena this season. The Pistons are in second place, 3½ games ahead of the Lakers, and a Laker sweep of the series is almost a necessity if they are to stay in the running for a playoff berth.

The Pistons, with a better record than any club in the league over the past three weeks, boast two of the top shooters in Bailey Howell and Gene Shue. Howell is averaging 24 points and Shue 22 per game. Detroit also is blessed with a 7-foot center in Walter Dukes.

The Lakers have a season edge of 5-2 over Detroit and coach Fred Schaus isn't alarmed over the Pistons' hot streak. What's more, Elgin Baylor is generally at his best against the Pistons.

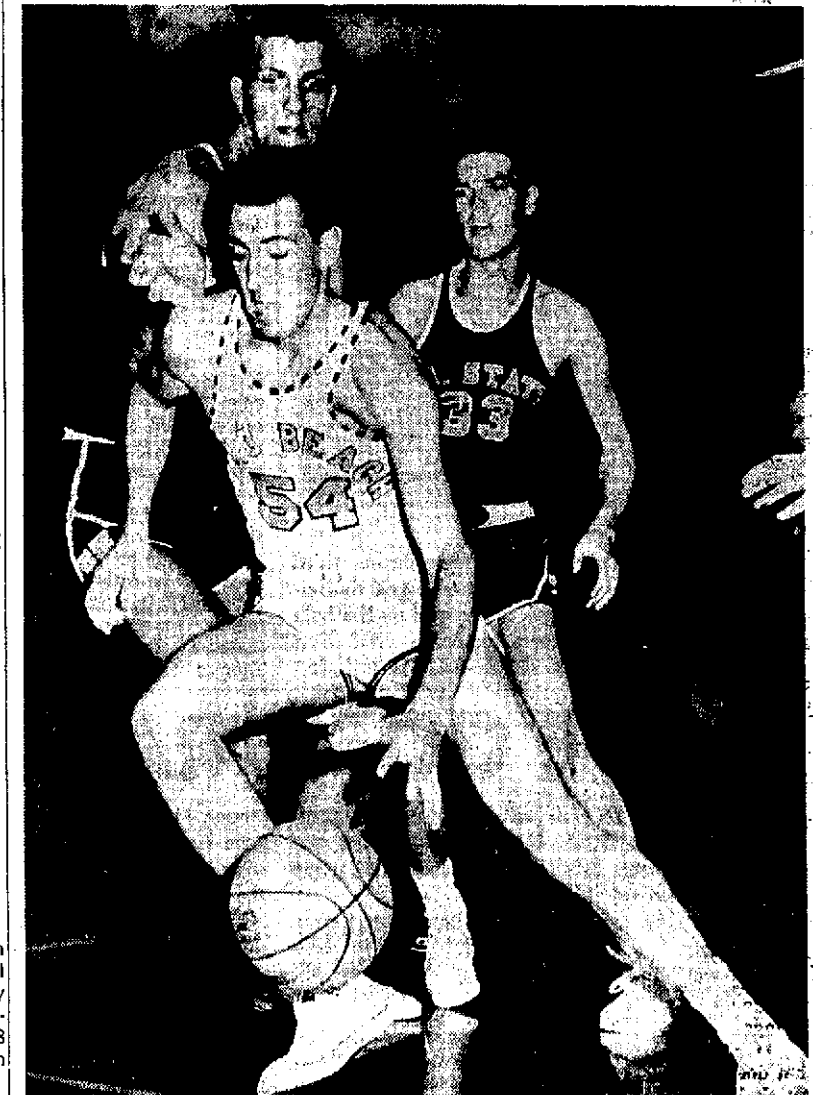

In NBA games Saturday, the Warriors nudged the Knicks 114-108, and the Hawks trounced the Royals, 136-116, dropping Cincinnati a full game back of the Lakers into last place in the Western Division.

Tay Brown's Stormy Coaching Days End!

TAY BROWN
'Football My Whole Life'

By JEROME HALL

The wrangle-racked football career of the nation's best-known junior college coach—Tay Brown—has come to an end in another swirl of controversy.

Once-dominant Compton College is getting a new football coach.

Though officials of the school will not make any statement now, formal announcement is expected within 10 days.

Whether Brown has resigned, has been fired or has merely "transferred" to another position is a matter of opinion, and—appropriately—a matter of intense controversy.

Brown, around whom hassles have centered for most of his 27 years in coaching, will take over duties with the Compton community recreation department.

Though Brown says he has not yet decided to take the recreation position, it has been learned that a closed-door administrative meeting at the college with-in recent hours sealed the end of a hectic coaching career that saw the vitriolic Brown produce four national jaycee championship teams at Compton and 13 conference title-winning teams in 17 seasons.

"Coaching gets a little old after 27 years," Brown commented, "but it's hard to give up something that has been your whole life."

Brown has been under fire in recent years not only because the Tartar teams have been below the standard he set there, but because he became ensnared in campus politics, taking the forefront in battles between faculty factions.

During the past four years, Brown's teams have compiled a 23-14 record. His 17-year record at Compton College is 142-32-9.

But fortunes have gone steadily downward for Brown since he lost the SC football coaching job four years ago. He was verbally hired to succeed Jess Hill following the 1956 season but lost the job when a premature announcement was made by a sportswriter causing—as always with Tay—a major controversy.

In the flareup, Don Clark was hired, preventing Brown from achieving the lifelong ambition of coaching his alma mater.

Three times in recent months Brown has been hanged in effigy on the Compton College campus. He has maintained, when questioned about retirement from coaching, that he does not want to quit a loser. His '60 team had a 5-5 record.

The new Compton College coach almost certainly will be Chuck Williams, who took over Tay's duties when Brown re-entered the Navy during the Korean War. Williams, in 1952, turned out a national championship team.

Williams' two-season record at Compton while Brown was in the Navy was 17-2-2.

Palmer Unspoiled by Sudden Fame, Fortune

By JERRY WYNN

SAN FRANCISCO — Has success spoiled Arnold Palmer? No. Despite a mercurial rise to fame and fortune, Palmer has kept a cool head. His golfing prowess acknowledged, for a young man of 31 he is becoming a personality of real substance and class.

Take this comment to the San Francisco Press Club: "I owe great thanks to sports writers. I can't think of anyone kinder to me."

Or this one: "The fellow you should be honoring is Bob Rosburg, not me. He's one of your own, and you should be very proud of him."

Palmer told of being introduced at a recent New York banquet as the man who has replaced Snead and Hogan. Snead was sitting next to him, and quickly applied the needle.

"Shucks," Sam snickered. "I'll still be around when he is long gone."

ROCKETS SEEK 13TH; TWIN BILL AT BLAIR

Manager Jack Graham and his Long Beach Rockets are not the least bit superstitious. If they were, today might bid fair to be an unlucky day for the hometown nine.

The Rockets will be shooting for victory No. 13 this afternoon when they take on the winner of the game between the White Sox and the L. A. Angels at Blair Field at 2 p. m. The first game will start at 11:15.

The Sox and the Angels have identical records of 7-3. The winner will automatically gain a spot in the Winter League playoff.

The Rockets won the league's southern division. Gordon Seyfried, property of the Detroit Tigers, will start on the mound for the Rockets. He will be backed by Don Rowe of the Salt Lake Bees, a Pittsburgh farm club; Casey Cox, Long Beach City College star, and Bob Clear, who won 20 games for Grand Forks last year.

Bob Kelley Says—

Beatniks Share Angels' Lair

As you walk up the stairs at 5933 Sunset Blvd. in Hollywood, a sign says "Actors Workshop." Sure enough, some beatnik would-be actors are to be found occupying part of the space. The rest they share with the Los Angeles Angels.

I just thought I'd throw this in, in case you're ever looking for Fred Haney. Don't let the sign fool you.

My first comment had Fred bristling a little that Buzzie Bavasi felt the new Washington club gave up the best pitcher on their own or the Angel rosters when they peddled Bobby Shantz to Pittsburgh.

"Shantz is no longer a starting pitcher," Haney shot back. "He can only go several innings at a time. We are looking for younger pitchers who can go the route. Besides, at the present stage of Bobby's career, playing with a new club like the Angels or Washington would not be the best thing. He must be spotted carefully."

Fred laughed when I asked him how it felt to sit back and relax in a general manager's chair, instead of being out on the field battling umpires.

WHEN YOU'RE A MANAGER, he chuckled, "you show up in the clubhouse, find your uniform hanging there neat and ready to wear, and everything else in order. You just go out and manage the players. You don't really all the work and time and effort that goes into getting everything ready for you. As a general manager, I now know who gets this all ready."

Q. Who are the sleepers on the Angel team?
A. I wouldn't even guess. Some kids may not hold up under the pressure of major league ball, while others might get an added incentive from playing in the American League.

Q. Some baseball men say Bob Cerv must play every day to hit his best. But will his legs hold up over 162 games?

A. Barring injury, I expect Cerv to play every game. Remember, playing half of his games in the cooler California evenings during the summer is bound to help him.

Q. I guess you agree that morale and spirit are half the battle in pro football. But I wonder if it's as important in baseball?

A. You bet it is! Morale is just as important in baseball. Maybe more so, because our season is more than 10 times as long.

Q. EXPERTS CLAIM PITCHING is the Angels' weak link. Do you agree?

A. There isn't a club in baseball that can't use more pitching. The only thing I will concede in our case is that we perhaps know a bit less about the abilities of our staff than do some other clubs. Of course, we'll find out at Palm Springs.

Q. How about poor Billy Rigney, managing a club that doesn't figure to be a pennant contender right off the bat. Is it tougher to keep control of players who are not consistent winners?

A. I don't think so. Once a manager gets to know his players, how to handle their different personalities, morale should never be a problem.

PRO FOOTBALL WAS the chief topic of discussion as St. Louis Cardinals' tackle Gerald Perry (left) and New York defensive back Bill Stits chatted before start of Sports Night banquet.

FOOTBALL ALSO was the theme as UCLA coach Bill Barnes and the Chargers' all-AFL halfback, Paul Lowe, talked at the fifth athletic jamboree.

Record to Cunliffe; Thomas 7-3

(Compiled From Wire Services)

Affable Ernie Cunliffe, the smooth-striding Stanford graduate student, smashed his indoor record for 1,000 yards Saturday night with a breathtaking 2:07.9 in the Boston Athletic Assn. Games.

Cunliffe, an Olympic disappointment at 800 meters, grabbed the lead on the second lap, took a quick look behind to make sure he had shaken off his competition, and ran the final laps all by himself in breaking the mark of 2:08.2 held by Don Gehrmann and Arnie Sowell.

"I knew I could do it," panted Cunliffe. "I wore a new pair of shoes I just received from Germany. When I heard the half-mile time I knew I was flying." He was caught at 55.5 for the 440 and 1:51.8 for the 880.

JOHN THOMAS, smarting at the news of a Russian high jumping 7 feet, 4½ inches, bettered his own American indoor standard with a leap of 7-3½.

The 19-year-old cleared 7-1, then 7-2, but missed his first two tries at 7-3½. He did not try to go higher.

Olympic steeplechaser George Young of the Army won the two-mile handily in 8:55.2, beating Pete McArdle by five yards.

In other features, Gary Gunner, only 18 years old, won the shotput at 58-4; Istvan Rpszavolgyi, fresh off a plane from Hungary, nabbed the mile in 4:08.8, beating Deacon Jones by 10 yards; world broad jump king Ralph Boston captured the 45-yard high hurdles in 5.6, and Olympian Jerry Siebert from the U. of California took the 600-yard run in 1:11.2.

BOB BROWN, Penn State senior, was the hero of the Washington Star Games.

He won the 100 in 9.8, the 80 in 7.9 and the 70 in 7.1, each a tenth of a second off Dave Sime's meet records.

Olympian Hayes Jones tied the American indoor record of 8.2 for 80 yards and Don Bragg pole vaulted 15-1 in other features.

Rudolph 'Athlete of Year'

By Associated Press

On the red clay Olympic track at Rome last summer, long-legged Wilma Rudolph ran away from all opponents and won three Olympic gold medals with almost ridiculous ease.

Saturday she outdistanced the opposition just as easily as female "athlete of the year" for 1960 in the annual Associated Press poll.

In the voting by 129 sports writers and broadcasters throughout the United States, Miss Rudolph's name appeared first on all but 14 ballots.

In the tabulation on a 3-2-1 basis for first, second and third place votes it was no contest. Wilma received 365 points. Swimmer Chris Von Saltza, another winner of three Olympic gold medals, was second with 126 points.

World and Olympic figure skating champion Carol Heiss—now Mrs. Hayes Alan Jenkins—was third with 101.

"Miss Rudolph, known as 'skeeter' to her friends, is a tall (5-11), well-proportioned girl who doesn't believe in hurrying unless she's wearing track shoes. Once she gets them on she's virtually unbeatable. Her feat of winning two individual sprint titles and anchoring the record-breaking relay team stamped her as the outstanding athlete—man or woman—at Rome.

The voting (points on 3-2-1 basis):

Wilma, track... 1st 365 2nd 126 3rd 101
Von Saltza, swimming... 1st 126 2nd 101 3rd 34
Heiss, figure skating... 1st 101 2nd 34 3rd 24
Hurd, tennis... 1st 34 2nd 24 3rd 10
Bueno, tennis... 1st 24 2nd 10 3rd 3

TOP HURDLES ROSTER AT INDOOR MEET

A hurdles field that may rank with the outstanding of the entire year has been lined up for the second Los Angeles Indoor Games Saturday, Feb. 11, in the Sports Arena.

The three-heat roster includes Hayes Jones, third in the Olympics; C. K. Yang, second in the Olympic decathlon; Jim Johnson of UCLA, 1960 NCAA champ; Don Styron of Southern Illinois, the world's top all-around hurdler last season, and Rex Cawley of SC, who rates second only to Styron.

Tickets ($4 and $3) are on sale at the Sports Arena and at all mutual agencies.

Wolfram Upsets in Bougainvillea

MIAMI (AP)—Harbor View Farm's Wolfram closed fast 14 on the outside in near record time to win the $33,900 Bougainvillea Turf Handicap before 21,538 fans at Hialeah Saturday.

Wolfram, a French-bred with John L. Rotz in the saddle, ran the mile and three sixteenths on the grass in 1:56 1/5, only one second slower than the track record, and beat the Australian Noholme 2nd by two and three-quarter lengths.

North Pole 2nd finished third, Bergamot was fourth and the favorite, Harmoniz-Wolfram paid $15.70, $7.70 and $5.70. Noholme 2nd returned $9.40 and $6.80. The show price on North Pole 2nd was $10.20.

North Pole 2nd also was bred in France. Bergamot is a United States native.

Bowie, Md. (UPI)—Bowie race track, which twice was forced to shut down in the opening week of its meeting, celebrated the return of sunshine when Moon Shot equalled the track record of five and one-half furlongs in winning the $14,025 Burch Handicap.

Moon Shot, a consistently good performer last year, was clocked in 1:03 4/5 for the distance to equal the market set by Pet Bully on April 12, 1954. Moon Shot returned $8.80, $6.40 and $5.00 to his backers in the crowd of 11,744.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Witherite discouraged her early challengers and splashed to victory in the $11,850 Thelma Stakes to wrap up the filly championship at the Fair Grounds.

Prove It Flashes to Easy Triumph

Long Beach-owned T.V. Lark, who got off to a bad start in his race for 1961 Century Club athlete-of-the-year laurels.

"He started to run halfway through the race, as he usually does," snapped Arcaro, "then got bounced around in the stretch and quit."

Shoemaker said he couldn't have asked for anything to have gone better for him during the race and lauded Prove It. But he wasn't ready to compare this colt to Swaps.

"He's a good one," admitted Shoemaker, "but he has still a long way to go to get into Swaps' league."

Prove It had all the best of the weight assignments (which were based on previous monies earned), totalling 116 pounds to 126 for T.V. Lark, 125 for Tompon and 122 for New Policy, but he still would have creamed this field Saturday with a dozen more pounds in his saddlebag.

The onetime Caliente colt picked up $107,707 (including a $9,337 breeder's reward) for his victory — and that pot o'gold was more than double all his previous earnings, $50,200.

To show that the colt has arrived, the Santa Anita racing secretary loaded him with 128 pounds for the next race in which he was nominated, Thursday's Santa Catalina Handicap. There's no better indication that this youngster finally has Proved It!

Best Race He's Run — Shoe

JOCKEY QUOTES
Bill Shoemaker (Prove It)—"I couldn't have asked for anything to go better than today. By far the best race he's run for me. When I called on him at the head of the lane he opened up with ease. Swaps? This colt is a good one, but he has still a long way to go to get into Swaps' league."

John Longden (Prince Blessed)—"We switched tactics today and it worked fine. Instead of taking him right out on the pace we brought him from behind and we got the second money rather easily, I thought."

Larry Gilligan (Grey Eagle)—"My horse set the pace nicely but he spread his left front shoe about the 3/16ths pole and from there on he tried to get out with me."

Manuel Ycaza (Tompon)—"He did not like the track apparently. He was climbing all the way and wouldn't try when I set him down."

PARK AND SPIN THEIR WHEELS

Mobile Homes Not Too Mobile

By GEORGE ERES
Mobile homes aren't very mobile and, technically, they are not homes.

They just sit—planted in mobile home parks—and spin their wheels.

City and county tax assessors never darken the lives of the residents in mobile homes. The state says they're vehicles, subject only to the vehicle license tax.

Nevertheless, they're home to increasing numbers of U. S. residents who like the low cost of property-tax free home ownership; release from yard work; enjoy the conviviality of tight-little-island social life nurtured in the mobile parks.

The mobile homes can, of course, be hauled, but the vehicles are so bulky that state law requires a licensed mover to haul them from one park site to another.

BUT FOR THE MOST part, the mobile home owners don't get around much. There's even a sort of social distinction between mobile home owners and honest-to-goodness trailer homes.

"Don't call us trailer people," points out a mobile home owner. "We're not gypsies."

Tires on the mobile homes hardly get dirty. Propped up on island foundations, the wheels just barely touch the ground so the unit can qualify as a vehicle.

THE MOBILE HOME INDUSTRY sold $675 million worth of units in 1959—its best years. Estimated production last year was $575 million.

Mobile homes come in all shapes and sizes. While width currently is legally restricted to 10 feet (legislative efforts now are being made to increase this to 12 feet), manufacturers produce expandable units that can actually double the legal width. In smaller mobiles, the entire length can be pulled out like an accordion. Longer vehicles have an expandable section that rolls out to form an L-shaped or T-shaped dwelling.

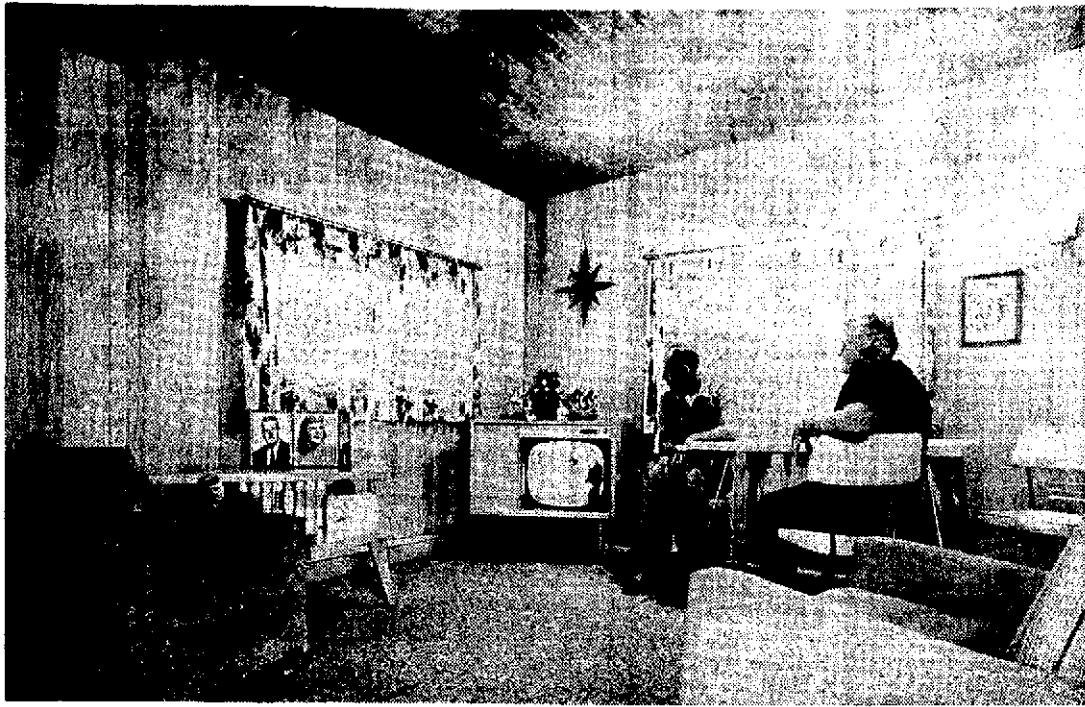

You can even purchase a two-story mobile home.

Along with development of the big mobile homes, has come the development of the mobile park.

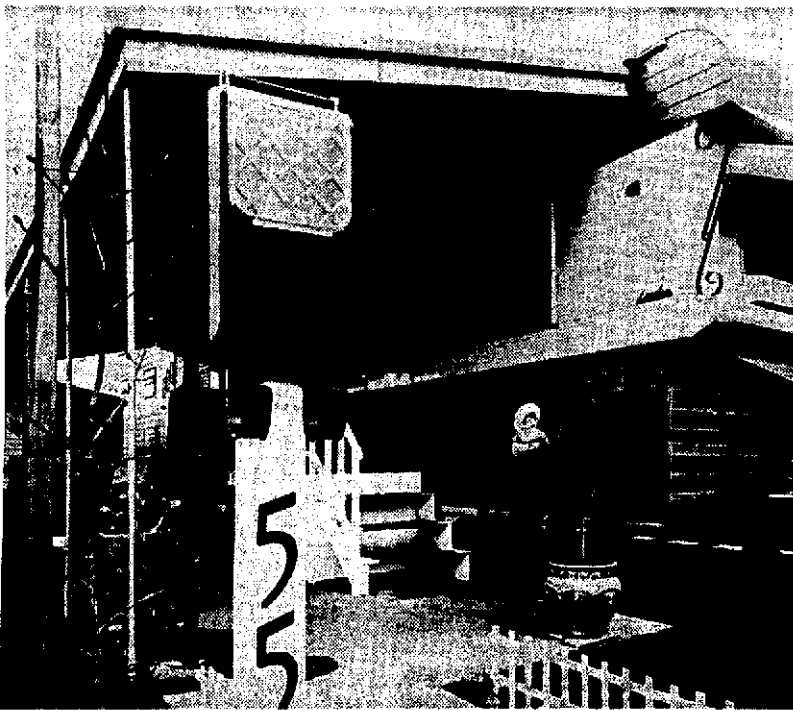

There are about 14,000 privately owned parks for mobile homes in the U. S. and 1,700 for travel trailers.

But most city planners and zoning boards don't look too favorably on the idea of the mobile homes parks.

TO COMBAT this reluctance to allow mobile parks in cities, developers are

ALL THE COMFORTS of home are enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. James Bratton in their mobile home at the modern Lakewood Mobile Estates, Hawaiian Gardens. The Bratton model mobile is an "expando"—living room doubles in size as section rolls out.

SIGNS OF PERMANENCE are the mail box and the landscaping that goes around each mobile dwelling. Park plants two trees on each lot; remainder of the landscaping and decorating is up to the resident. Most residents plan indefinite stays.

building country club settings for the mobiles.

An Ontario architect is designing a park with a 9-hole golf course and three clubhouses. Many mobile home parks along the coast are luxury establishments.

Some are completely integrated with their own shopping centers and play areas. Lakewood Mobile Estates in Hawaiian Gardens is an example of a development aimed at overcoming objections of planners with long memories of unsightly trailer camps.

Attractively laid out slabs of concrete mark the site for the big mobiles 45 feet or longer. Each site has a concrete patio and space for two cars. All utilities are underground. Barclay-Hollander Development Co. of Hawthorne opened Lakewood Mobile Estates in September. Lots rent from $45 to $57.50 a month plus a flat $4 a month gas charge and electricity charge based on use—$5 to $7 a month on the average, according to Mr. and Mrs. Frances McQuinn, who manage the park. Automatic laundry facilities are available at a small fee.

VALUES OF MOBILES in the park range from $5,000 to $15,000, and the makeup of the estates inhabitants is somewhat at variance with the established group patterns at most parks, which generally house military men and their families, construction workers, and retired people. (Pets are banned.)

Lakewood Mobile Estates population is restricted to adults. It includes college students, company executives, craftsmen, business men, retired people and even a fishing boat captain who sails out of San Diego.

There is nothing temporary about the dwellers. Many of them have planted shrubbery around their mobiles. Developers have planted two trees at each lot.

The central building is a modern structure with a huge social room, electric kitchen and billiard room. A wall of glass faces out on a huge patio which has a heated pool and a shuffle board court.

SOCIAL LIFE among the inhabitants is organized.

"Everybody drops over to the social hall in the evening. We have a welcoming committee. Everybody shows up, everybody gets to know one another," said McQuinn.

Big things among the women right now is an "eastern game" called Bunco, said Mrs. McQuinn. "We have fashion shows, pot-luck dinners, Sunday breakfasts. We women get together and do a lot of hollerin'."

"Permanent" residents of the Mobile Estates are Mr. and Mrs. James Bratton. Bratton is night foreman at a Whittier creamery. One of their three children lives with them temporarily in their two-bedroom L-shaped "Expando" mobile.

The Brattons have been mobile-livers for three years.

"Wouldn't have it any other way," said Bratton. "I don't like yard work. Once the mobile is paid off, all I'll have is the rental on space and utilities and the annual motor vehicle tax. That gets smaller each year. It's much cheaper and more fun living like this."

"How else can any average person expect to pay off a home in six years or less, depending on the down payment on the mobile?" asked Mrs. McQuinn.

Gets Ticket in Her Own Parking Zone

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Marguerite Daigle painted the curb in front of her home red to discourage public parking.

Then she got a ticket for parking in the red zone and was ordered to appear in court.

She solved that problem by paying a $2 fine and repainting her curb gray Saturday.

Klansmen Walk Atlanta Streets

ATLANTA (UPI)—More than 100 robed Ku Klux Klansmen walked the streets of downtown Atlanta Saturday passing out anti-segregation pamphlets.

The pamphlets, advertising a meeting of the Klan in the Atlanta area were distributed, along with appeals for donations to the Klan's "defense fund."

ALMA MATER RUINS FAMILY

OAKLAND (AP)—Divorce decrees were granted Friday to both Adolph and Constance Oliver. Each charged cruelty.

Mrs. Oliver, 41, testified that her wealthy husband, 47, was particularly disagreeable every time his alma mater, Stanford, lost a football game. Stanford lost all 10 games last season.

Depositors of Looted Bank Draw $1.2 Million

SHELDON, Iowa (UPI)—"Operation Payoff" soared over the $1-million mark but failed to halt the economic chaos caused by a $2-million embezzlement admitted by a bank president's daughter.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said it had paid out $1,237,100 to 1,034 persons who had claims as a result of the failure of the Sheldon National Bank, in which Mrs. Burnice Geiger had served as assistant cashier.

The sum paid out by the FDIC was about half of the total insured deposits.

Meanwhile, the Northern Biochemical Corp., in which Mrs. Geiger also was the leading stockholder, trimmed its work force, effective Monday.

THE FEED manufacturing firm, Sheldon's second largest employer, also announced it had managed to meet its payroll obligations for the last two weeks.

But to do so, the firm, whose chief officer now is Elliott Roosevelt, said some employees "had to take pay cuts."

Hugh Buerger III, an associate of Roosevelt's, said the firm was "operating from minute to minute" and in order to save money had cut its work force from 126 to about 100, effective Monday.

When the bank closed Jan. 17, Northern Biochemical had overdrawn its account by $130,000, and since has struggled to meet its $11,000 weekly payroll.

While the economic fortunes of the town of just over 4,000 persons continued to slide up and down, Mrs. Geiger, 58, the admitted embezzler, continued to remain isolated in the Woodbury County jail at Sioux City.

MRS. GEIGER was expected to enter a plea Monday before a United States Commissioner. However, federal authorities said they doubted they would have the charges drawn up by Monday. Also, her attorney, Warren Dunkle, said he would not enter a plea for his client until he had adequate time to study the government charge.

The FDIC has paid out the $1,237,100 in insurance claims during the first three days of an operation which will eventually see the bank assets liquidated.

James Gaffney, FDIC supervising claims agent, said total insurance claims would reach about $2.5 million paid to about 2,200 claimants. About 276 depositors received $236,400 Saturday as they lined up before five windows in the temporarily reopened bank.

Lillian Gish Back on Theater Stage

By ILKA CHASE

"I'll tell you one thing about playing good people on the stage," said Lillian Gish who through the years has played maidens who were good, beautiful and chivvied by fate, "you have to eat a lot."

I asked why. "Because," she said, "unfortunately in the theatre and literature the good are mostly dull, and the best an actress can hope for is to give them a certain vitality, a magnetism, so that audiences will forget they're good and be interested in spite of it; in order to do that you have to have fuel."

These words coming from my charming friend whose public image, dating from the great Griffith days, is one of fragility and wistfulness, cheered me immeasurably. Whenever I am active in the theater I find that I eat like a horse both before and after a performance and I am forever being humiliated by actresses who say, "My dear, I don't see HOW you do it. I never wanted ANYTHING before a show."

SHE LOVES her current play "All the Way Home" and took the part when Fred Coe called her on the telephone. All without reading the script, because she has infinite faith in his taste and ability, plus the fact that she had read the book and admired it. She considers Fred Coe the father of television, and if he and Arthur Penn, who directed "Two for the Seesaw" and "The Miracle Worker," liked the script, it was good enough for her.

"All the Way Home" opened to considered but not money notices and was about to close at the end of two performances when one of those rare Broadway miracles occurred. Because of sheer quality and the enthusiasm of enough people who saw it, there was a surge at the box office and they are now doing a brisk trade.

Written by Tad Mosel, based on James Agee's Pulitzer Prize novel, "A Death in the Family," it is a poignant play beautifully acted, about a husband and father, loved and loving, who is killed in an automobile accident and the reaction of his family to the tragic news.

Colleen Dewhurst, a young actress recently recognized, is warm and deeply moving as the bereaved wife, and Lillian Gish's role is that of her mother, a silly kindly woman addicted to an ear trumpet. Parts of the play will break your heart but it is all mixed up with comedy, too. It is that maligned cliché but an honestly observed one, a slice of life. The characters are real.

ASIDE FROM her work, Lillian's other great love is travel. She and her sister Dorothy separately and together have covered a good proportion of the surface of the globe but they want to take a long trip going completely around the world. "We must do it soon," she says urgently. "Look at Laos."

BLACK AND WHITE, quite naturally, will be preferred for gowns to be worn at Symphony Juniors' Black and White Ball Feb. 11 at the Elks Club. Among members who are making plans for the festive evening are (from left) Mmes. Robert Bergmann, John C. McNulty and Ernest Lockwood. Campaign Begins for Philharmonic

By ELISE EMERY

No donation too small—(and certainly none too large).

This will be the keynote as Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Association this week opens its annual fund-raising drive, joining with other communities from Santa Barbara to San Diego for support of Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Mrs. James K. McCall heads the local continuance fund committee, which, by telling the story of the orchestra through letters and personal calls, seeks to meet or exceed the $8,500 quota, a goal realized last year. This is an amazing feat, in view of the fact that there were only 150 Long Beach donors among the total of 5,224 contributors in the entire Southland area.

"THE LOS ANGELES Philharmonic has become one of the greatest in the nation," says Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, Long Beach auxiliary president. "It brings the world's great music and artists to this city. Each of the season's four concerts is thronged with music lovers. We hope that more persons will wish to support the orchestra; we welcome contributions of a dollar or two, but of course there is no maximum limit. Through their small donations, many who appreciate the orchestra may share in the responsibility as well as the joy of hearing music."

SOUTHERN California Symphony Association regards the appointment of Georg Solti as permanent conductor of the orchestra as the year's greatest achievement. Former director of Frankfurt State Orchestra in Germany, Solti also is newly appointed to the post of summer director for Covent Garden in London, and this season for the first time conducted the Metropolitan Opera.

IN ADDITION to the concert season, the appearance of San Francisco Opera Company in Los Angeles and the Hollywood Bowl series are made possible by continuance fund donations, with 83 per cent of the money going directly to the production of music.

Los Angeles Philharmonic augments its four concerts played in Long Beach with a promenade concert of gay music directed by Johnny Green. That event is scheduled for April 28 this year. Another annual event is the opera tea, sponsored by the auxiliary.

FOR CHILDREN of the city the auxiliary provides 45 free tickets to each concert. The recipients are selected by the music department of the Long Beach schools. Free tickets are available to foreign exchange students and transportation of elementary and junior high school students is paid to two Philharmonic youth concerts sponsored by Long Beach Unified School District. These will be given at Jordan High School on March 17. Saturday, auxiliary members chaperoned a bus trip for Long Beach children when they attended the annual youth concert in Shrine Auditorium.

Concert tickets also are provided for paraplegic patients at Veterans Hospital.

Mrs. McCall will entertain members of the continuance fund at a coffee hour Feb. 6. Miss Alice Taylor, assistant executive to the board of directors of SCSA; Mrs. Marion Murray, in charge of the Los Angeles Continuance Fund office; and Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker, member of the Long Beach auxiliary and chairman of Cerveny, who especially enjoys the San Francisco Opera season in Los Angeles; Mimi Driscoll, enthusiastic Youth Concert-goer; Mrs. Raymond C. Peterson and Mrs. Glenn M. Gilmore, with instruments of Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra; and Mrs. James K. McCall, with Continuance Fund brochure. Long Beach Auxiliary of SCSA joins in the association's program, which includes a season of concerts played in this city by the orchestra. NEEDED: HOMES FOR SIX EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Open Your Door to World Peace

By MARY ELLIS

Mr. and Mrs. Long Beach, world peace may be as close as your own front door.

So say members of the local American Field Service committee, who currently are working on a "housing project" that's part of a vast blueprint for international understanding.

Their master plan calls for 10 local families who will house foreign exchange students here next year.

"FOR LACK of homes, two such students were lost to Long Beach this school year," says Charles Sleeper, co-president with his wife of Long Beach's AFS International Scholarship program.

"We currently have eight foreign exchange students studying in local high schools. We could have had 10. But we were unable to find home placements for two of them."

Describing this a great loss to Long Beach, he urges qualified local families to declare an "open door policy for better world understanding" by taking students for next year.

He terms the AFS scholarship program "one of the most remarkable educational experiments ever launched."

SINCE THE local chapter was formed here in 1954, 51 impressionable youngsters, ages 16-18, from 39 nations each have spent approximately 10 months in Long Beach homes, attending Long Beach high schools, forming lifelong impressions of the REAL America.

After these young goodwill ambassadors return to their homelands, they pass along their on-the-scene impressions of America to church, service, youth and other groups.

SAYS SLEEPER, who provided a foster home for a young girl from Denmark in 1957:

"The students sent to us are cream-of-the-crop from their respective countries. In years to come when they become integrated into the political, business and social lives of their countries, it

chairman, seem to have the "whole world in their hands" as they make pleas for 10 one-year foster homes to house next year's foreign exchange students.—(Staff photo.)

isn't too much of a dream to believe that one day we will see them in the UN and their respective governments — making important, world-significant decisions.

"It would be difficult for me to believe that they would end up dropping atom bombs on one another."

WHAT QUALIFIES a family for participation in this all-important international program?

Roughly this: both parents should be at least 37 years old; can't be foreign-born; the mother must not be employed full time.

Also, there must be a teenager in the family. And while a private room for the exchange student is not essential, a separate bed is required.

Says Mrs. Hugh Rogers, home placement chairman for AFS: "The No. 1 requisite is that the family really WANTS to house a student. We're looking particularly for average American homes with average circumstances, where foreign transplants learn the true American way of life."

WHO DECIDES what student lives where, once applications (due in February) are received?

Placement details are handled by the AFS office in New York. Students — all intelligent, adaptable, outgoing, potential future leaders — are matched, insofar as possible, with families of similar interests, economic status and cultural background.

"They do a remarkable job of matching student to family," observes Virginia Cutler, student counselor at Millikan High, who works closely with the AFS program.

"Each student is taken into the foster home as another son or daughter — and volunteer families find that they are usually as richly rewarded by the experience as the children themselves."

ESTIMATES are that it costs slightly more than $1,000 to give an exchange student a year in the United States — the major expense being transportation.

Who foots the bill? Mrs. Robert Sully, AFS fund raising chairman, breaks it down like this:

The board of education allows each of the local five high schools to raise $650 annually for one of two students each school is allotted (one girl and one boy).

The local AFS chapter, through contributions from local groups and individuals, chips in $650 for each of the other five students.

This lump sum helps pay for transportation and provides a $14 monthly allowance for each.

Bed, board and pocket money are provided by foster families — who, since just this year, are allowed $50-a-month deduction on income taxes.

"It's a small price to pay," says Mrs. Sully, "for a program that has more grass-root potential for international understanding than the United Nations."

"With this program, world peace definitely starts in the home."

If you're interested in providing a foster home or making contributions for the AFS program, contact: Charles Sleeper, 5349½ E. Carson, co-president; Mrs.

Hugh Rogers, 1234 E. 55th St., home placement chairman; or Mrs. Robert Sully, 3908 Myrtle Ave., fund raising chairman.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

No Sign of Romance Here

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My boy friend is 64 years old but considers himself a ladies' man. He is an incurable flirt; every new face turns his head, and his eyes are constantly roaming.

Of course, he loves only me (he says) but his actions and uncontrollable temper make me think otherwise. I'm beginning to get that insecure feeling.

When we go to dances he thinks he has the right to dance with anybody and everybody, but he is furious if I do. He wants me to marry him, but could such a marriage last?—UNDECIDED MEG

DEAR MEG: Marriage? I don't see any signs of romance yet.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Our next-door neighbor has a very good voice. My husband does, too. I can scarcely carry a tune, and neither can her husband. As a foursome we spend quite a bit of time together, and half of that time is spent with those two singing duets. It burns me up, but what to do?—JAN

DEAR JAN: Insist on singing with them. It won't take long for the two songbirds to decide that a dulcet foursome is better than a sour quartet.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: Every year for seven years my husband's aunt has come to visit us at Eastertide.

At first it was not bad with just one baby, and then two. But now there are four children and ourselves, living in a two-bedroom house.

When Aunt comes it means we will have to put two kids in the living room or sleep there ourselves so that Aunt can have a room of her own.

Aunt has a good income and is always talking about what she might leave us when she passes on. Naturally we don't want to alienate her, but, oh, how I dread squinching up to make room for her.

She usually stays a week or two weeks.—MARY B.

DEAR MARY B.: I must say I don't blame you a bit, but there must be some way out of this. As long as you look on Aunt as an investment of sorts, why can't you write to her, telling her frankly the present setup, and suggest that she might be more comfortable in a small hotel as things are so crowded at home.

Oh, make it perfectly clear you're not saying this because you don't have much room, but only because you feel her comfort must come first. It might work—we'll hope.—M.M.

Honeymoon in Switzerland

A ski tour of Switzerland and Austria is being enjoyed this month by newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Donald Paul Walker.

The honeymooners, who were wed last Saturday at First Church of Christ, Huntington Beach, will make their home in Long Beach.

The bride, the former Marianne May Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lee Terry of Huntington Beach, was given in marriage by her father.

For the ceremony which was attended by more than 400 guests, she wore a princess style gown of delicate Alencon lace with a chapel length train and three-quarter length sleeves.

Her veil was caught by a tiara of tiny pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of white Amazon lilies and stephanotis.

Attendants, Mrs. William Ralls, matron of honor and Mrs. Delbert Parsons, Carol Hannum and Patricia McLeod, bridesmaids, wore dresses of deep turquoise blue velvet.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus A. Walker, 4170 Country Club Dr., chose his brother Kenneth as best man. Completing the wedding party were Ann Walker, flower girl; William Linzenmeyer Jr., ring bearer and ushers Richard A. Walker, Robert Seymour, George Cooper, Robert Terry and Robert McGuire.

Of particular interest is the fact that the bridegroom's twin brother, Rev. David Walker, officiated at the single ring fete.

The new Mrs. Walker was graduated from UCLA where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. She also is active in Chapter CV of PEO. The bridegroom was graduated from Poly High and USC where he was a member of Kappa Alpha.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER NIXON

One of the many Long Beach State groups making a trip during the semester break is AWS (Associated Women Students).

Prexy Lynda Sue Marks leads a 20-woman delegation which leaves today for a three-day retreat at the Pueblo Hotel in Palm Springs. Adviser Margaret Schwartz will supervise the sessions.

Among the weighty topics on the discussion agenda are "Leadership," "Re-evaluation of Policy," "Problems and Prospects of Committee Chairmen," and "Group Introspection."

Nancy OHara, peripatetic chairman of the approaching WUS (World University Service) Week whose busy schedule was the subject of a full half-page article in a recent issue of the Independent, Press-Telegram, is at it again.

This afternoon Nancy is at USC for a meeting of officers of WUS's Southern California area, and next Saturday she hops a plane in a liaison role to attend a session at Vallejo College and see how the northern area operates.

of the campus newspaper asked, "Where Are the Greeks?"

We suggest that the Greeks might still be around. We hope we will be able to suggest the same thing for a large number of other LBSC organizations which have their names in the student handbook, too.

Episcopal Women to Gather

A number of Long Beach women will be present when more than 1,000 Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese of Los Angeles gather for their annual business meeting Monday in Los Angeles.

Reports of Diocesan officers and chairmen will precede election of officers during the session at St. Paul's Cathedral, Sixth and Figueroa Streets.

Rev. Rollo M. Boas, chairman of the Commission on Alcoholism, will give a morning report.

Rt. Rev. William Fisher Lewis of Seattle, Bishop of Olympia, will be speaker at luncheon in the Pacific Room of the Statler-Hilton, at 12:30 p.m. His subject will be "Wanted: Salvation."

EXPECTED to attend from Long Beach are Mmes. Harvey Barr, Frank Beggs, Frank Odiorne, Herbert H. Fielding, Hiram Crosby, Dale Arvey, O. E. Morris, George E. Dotson, Walter Troxell, J. William Daum and F. A. Martyr.

Also Mmes. Del Schade, C. T. McCord, L. A. Sappenfield, William G. Kummer, Ted Frenchling, Blanche Donahue, T. F. Limbocher, Douglas Crow, Edith Isaacs, Lee Powell, James Carrol, Faye Shafer, John Cooper, James Preston and Louis Menell.

Others will be Gordon Williams of La Habra, Ben Jenkin of La Mirada, W. B. Colmar of Los Alamitos and Wayne Byall of Lakewood.

DEVOTEES of the modern type of jazz may be interested in knowing that Sigma Pi fraternity will present George Shearing in concert Feb. 16, and a short time later AWS, all straightened out on "Group Introspection," follows with Cal Tjader Feb. 25.

Some 30 members of Westminster Fellowship attended Friday night's presentation of Archibald MacLeish's "J. B." in Los Angeles.

Did you know that SCTA (Student California Teachers Association) probably is the largest organization on campus. An informant tells us SCTA has more than 600 on its roster.

IN CLOSING, a pat on the back to Interfraternity which has tagged a goodly percentage of the proceeds of its forthcoming Greek Week Interfraternity Ball for the World University Service campaign.

We understand, too, that Panhellenic will play an important role in this drive.

We mention the plans of these two Greek coordinating bodies mainly because an editorial in the last issue

East Plays Coy to Set

At last year's fall nationals most South players wound up playing five hearts doubled. West would beat the hand with an ace of spades opening, but invariably West led the king of clubs.

South would then discard his king of spades on dummy's ace of clubs and lead a low diamond. East would rise with the ace and no matter how the defense continued South would be able to ruff two of his diamonds in dummy and bring home the rest of the suit.

ONE EAST player managed to beat the hand. He simply played the eight of diamonds. South could have played the king, but South was too "smart" for that. How could East hold back the ace of diamonds when he could see that singleton diamond in dummy? So, South played the ten of diamonds and West won with the jack.

West led another club. South ruffed and was down to five trumps. He then went about the business of setting up his diamond suit by doing some cross ruffing. He did get it set up all right, but by that time East had control of the trump suit and South wound up going down two tricks.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON
I. P. T. Woman's Editor

PROVIDED there are no soreheads in the Dutch government with subsequent peril of piracy and/or political coup, we can expect to welcome Thurline Waite about mid-February. She boarded a Holland-American Lines ship out of Amsterdam and is headed home, arrival here slated for about mid-February. Thurline and Helen Jenney left last August to tour, with Helen returning home last November (I think it was) while Thurline stayed on. Her most recent traveling, prior to departure, was in Portugal and Spain.

NO MATTER what Gladys Furie may ever be tempted to call her husband, Dr. Walt, he has but one, new name as far as Assistance Leaguers are concerned. They refer to him as "Santa Claus." Walt and Gladys donated a baby grand piano to the league for use at the clubhouse. Even the real McCoy from the North Pole seldom matches a gift like that.

TIME IS a witch, well versed in diabolic trickery. Wednesday I called to find out when Mary and Wendall Wilson and Jeanne and John Pitblado would be leaving for Hawaii only to discover they were due BACK from Honolulu Thursday. Where does the time go? Especially where did the two weeks they've been away vanish? Only reason I can think of is that they traveled by jet.

NOW IN THE wind tunnel of their imagination high flying plans for a trip to the Caribbean will soon be tested, in person, by Ann and Jim Wood. They'll fly to Miami one bright, fine day then cruise to Puerto Rico for a stay at Dorado Beach, several lazy days later continue on to Jamaica and enjoy the delights of Ochos Rios. They'll put finishing touches on winter cruise suitans in Miami (it may have to be under a sun lamp, Florida style) before returning to Long Beach where natural winter tans are ALWAYS possible. Heh heh.

GOURMET club dining is something of which there ought to be more of, if all worked out so good as, and you can be sure it did, Friday. On that peeyem Beverly and Ernie Lockwood took turn as hosts for their always-a-feast and never-a-famine gang. Thanks to a cousin of Bev's, who is an airline stewardess, they were able to import a dozen fresh Maine lobsters, especially flown in for the dinner. Also had a potful of those wonderful, Pacific Northwest clams flown in from Washington.

Regulars present, napkins en garde and forks at the ready, were Lois and Doug Benwell, Virginia and Earl Milton, Ann and Earl Hershman and Alice and Guy Rayola. Guesting for the night were Ann and Ed Simpkins.

On previous dinners the thought of food has taken this crowd to the Benwells' island cabin at Catalina with the hosts leading the way to the dinner table on their boat, and to the Miltons' Palm Springs weekend house for a weekend. The last monthly session at the Hershmans' featured a Spencer steak roast, char-broiled as only a bona fide barbecue man like Earl could manage.

NOT ONLY did Hortense Wyatt break 100 for the first time when she played golf at Meadowlark Tuesday — she smashed it down to 95! Hiding intense jealousy under a cloak of joviality, husband John (he's never broken this stroke barrier) took her out for a celebration dinner that night. Hope the milk of human kindness in his glass didn't turn sour.

IT WILL be a "do not in English say it" kind of day Thursday when Virginia Tuffli and her French class friends continue the conversation, come what may, at her house over a sandwich luncheon following lesson session at Bayshore Library.

ONE OF those every fifth Tuesday dates for past presidents of Lawyers Wives will find the gavel beaters of other eras luncheoning at Virginia Artman's day after next.

THE GREASE paint trail just won't quit for Carol Feeney, who enacted her 21st performance of Princess Adora in Children's Theater's production of "Aladdin" yesterday at State College. Last night she traveled with husband, John, Phyllis and Al Schmidt, Julie and Ross De Young and Virginia and Eric Laddey to L. A.'s Stage Society Theater to see some of their experimental stuff. To wit: Samuel Beckett's "Krapp's Last Tape" and "Zoo Story." Now back to "Aladdin" with three more shows to go.

WAS GIVEN to understand that both Ina and Willie Harris have been feeling a mite on the puny side lately. Oh, nothing to send medical staffs into consultation formation or anything like that but just sort of, you know—eh? Even so, it did seem brush of them to go where they did to recuperate. They left Monday, should be home today, we devoutly hope, from Death Valley.

IT'S ABOUT Time Department: Janie and Gil Brown ambled back into town this week after an absence extending back to mid-summer. They've taken an apartment on the peninsula, I understand, following their over-the-holidays visit with daughter and son-in-law, Sally and Hunt McCauley, in Mexico City. Before that they "did time" in both Washington, D. C., and New York. Nice to have them released once again to enjoy the outside here in Long Beach.

A WONDERFUL trip through the Caribbean, splashed with just enough excitement, ended last Saturday night for Helen and Jonah Jones and Mary Alice and Les Dahl. The foursome left Dec. 26 for Miami from whence, partly by ship but mostly by plane, they meandered.

Mary Alice told me that they shared the dining room at a hotel in Ochio Rio, Jamaica, with about 50 passengers of a certain Portuguese luxury liner. The ship's passengers offered condolences to the Dahls and the Jones because they were flying instead of enjoying the wonderful cruise. Wonder how those same passengers of the since hijacked "Santa Maria" feel about ocean travel now?

She also said that theirs was the first plane of their line that had not been allowed to put down in Cuba but had to fly over and on since the break in diplomatic relations. In Caracas, Venezuela, they had a taste of cloak and dagger, too. Passengers who disembarked were carefully kept "impounded" in a small area, and generally watched in the manner of one revolutionary keeping tabs on another. Can't begin to list the number of ports and cities toured and thoroughly enjoyed but do know that they visited 11 in the Virgin Island group, alone.

Call of the Yukon Heard Clear, Loud at Yacht Club

The call of the Yukon hasn't sounded so loud since Dangerous Dan McGrew shot it out with a miner in the Malamute Saloon. Not until last Saturday, that is, when Long Beach Yacht Clubber's staged a Klondike Ball, a full costume affair.

Dance hall girls and gamblers flourished, rubbing elbows with Indians and other odd, assorted characters. Bernie Perry won first prize for woman's costume when she came in her grandmother's dress as a school ma'am. Juneau never had it so good. Husband, Dr. Perry, won something for his rendition of an old ballad. As a matter of fact, it was so long they conceded the prize to stop the concert. Jim McDonald took honors for best man costume. He won it for his beard, a stubbly growth of about two week's worth which grew in spite of himself during a sick siege.

"Luke" Corzine was Dangerous Dan, in the flesh, while Dollie came as a kind of Northern Lights Hiawatha.

Johnnie Miller was a Russian while Agnes was a rushin' belle of the tundra. Best couple's costume went to the Bill Terpstras. She was a dance hall gal, and attractively so, but Bill looked like he'd been lured out of the back woods of Kentucky for the night.

Fred Taylor was an admiral, making it possible for the U. S. to take over that territory, while June was all cute fuss and red feathers.

The place was full of fun and foolishness. Dinner was real out, too, real bear steaks, antelope, guinea hen et al.

Spring Hats Bubble Like Pink Champagne

L.P.T. Fashion Editor

If the nation's top hatters have their way, all fashionable femmes will be light-headed this spring.

With no more weight than a bubble, new chapeaux go to millady's head like a glass of champagne. Pink champagne, that is—for the leading color is pink!

Intoxicating new spring-summer styles shown by the Millinery Institute during recent press week showings in New York included every run-of-the-millinery shape from made-famous-by-Jackie pillboxes to perennial garden variety picture hats.

All had one thing in common: fly-away lightness!

LIGHTHEARTED hat magic, 1961-style, gives individuality to costumes in an array of silhouettes:

Easy suits and three-piece coat costumes take new-this-season sombreros and cavaliers, also bretons and sailors for town and travel; go gay and frivolous for luncheons and cocktails below contrasting, colorful floral effects, magic bells and sorceress turbans.

Short crop coats and swirling, full capey ones look elegant with the exclamation point of a tower or cone-crowned hat of dramatic size; become whimsical and witty in contrast to a tiny, forward-tipped miniature.

Fluid, full-flowing afternoon dresses are balanced with large, gracefully curving brims. Diaphanous harem-draped and bubble-skirted late day dresses find bewitching echoes in crystal balls, swami toques, floating flowers and delicately draped shapes of illusion and lace.

Dear Abby His Cake Needs Frosting

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: For a 23-year-old college graduate I guess I'm pretty stupid, but here's my situation: Last year I met a very attractive man of 29. He told me from the start he'd been keeping company for several years with a woman a little older than himself, and he had no intention of severing their relationship. From all appearances their "relationship" included everything but the marriage license.

I have fallen head over heels in love with him and would give anything to have him for myself. He says he "loves" me but he loves her, too. He sees me on Tuesdays, Fridays and every other Sunday. It kills me to know he is with her when he's not with me. I can't give him up and can't live without him. Is there a solution? — HOPELESSLY IN LOVE.

DEAR HOPELESSLY: You CAN live without him and you'll probably have to, so save yourself further agony and call it quits while you still have your youth. Your Romeo wants to eat his cake and have it, too. Give him the "frosting" he so properly deserves.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it considered proper etiquette for a person who is entering a room to say, "Good morning" (or "Good evening," whichever the case may be?) rather than for the person who is already in the room to say it first? This has bothered me for years because I was taught that the person entering the room should greet those already there. Some people don't know this apparently.—IR-RITATED.

DEAR IRRITATED: Common sense is the best rule. Before the silence becomes awkward, say "hello" and to heck with what's proper.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is the sweetest, most wonderful person in the world — when she isn't drinking. Lately, she is so loaded by noon every day you can't reason with her. The worst part of it is that no one in her family thinks this is a problem. They say, "Ma's feeling good," and will even have one with her any time of the night or day. I want to help her because she is getting worse. My husband travels and doesn't seem to realize how serious it is, and her other children think I'm a busybody. Can you help me help her?—WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Investigate "Al Anon"—a branch of Alcoholics Anonymous, whose purpose it is to teach the families and friends of alcoholics how to cope with them.

But What About Pillboxes? ...that's the big headache!

Mr. John's tall bubble cloche.

High-crowned Bolivian sombrero. By Jeanne Tete

The question this season that's turning most hatmakers into aspirin-gulpers is: Have they turned out enough pillboxes to satisfy the "Kennedy-itis" epidemic?

It was apparent during recent press week showings by the New York Couture Group (covered by this writer) that the Jacqueline Kennedy look has swept through the fashion, beauty and modeling world in landslide proportions.

Most of the 25 to 30 models parading spring-summer fashions showed the Kennedy influence. Hair was fairly straight, puffy and had a swirl over the forehead. Almost all were brunettes.

One "outgoing" model observed wryly: "We blonds are through—at least for the next six months. Possibly four years. Maybe eight."

MOST MODEL agency people say the demand for look-alikes of the 31-year-old Mrs. Kennedy is "incredible."

Said one: "The girl who looks like Mrs. Kennedy can write her own ticket for the next year."

Copying of Mrs. Kennedy's hairdo, her makeup, her clothes—even her posture, termed the "deb slouch of old"—has reached such proportions that one manufacturer of store window mannequins has created replicas of both the President and First Lady.

When John Fredericks showed his new spring-summer hat collection, he didn't use models. He just placed his creations on a mannequin form of Jackie!

FRIDAY, auxiliary members, their husbands and guests will gather at Petroleum Club for an evening dinner salon to hear George A. Kuyper, general director of SCSA and the Hollywood Bowl Association, discuss the concert which the Philharmonic orchestra will play next Sunday at 8:30 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal auditorium. Before dinner preview guests will enjoy a cocktail hour from 6:30 to 7:30.

The coming concert will give Long Beach residents an opportunity to hear the orchestra under direction of one of the nation's youngest conductors, Henry Lewis. Only 28, he has garnered international acclaim.

A NATIVE of Los Angeles, Lewis at 19 marked a milestone in his career by becoming the youngest person ever engaged by the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the first member of the Negro race to join the orchestra.

Alfred Wallenstein, former music director of the Philharmonic, who employed the young musician says, "Henry Lewis was engaged by me because of his great talent. I am delighted that he will conduct some concerts. He is a most serious young man, and much should be heard of him in the future."

Lewis's career progressed when, called up for military service, he was given leadership of the Seventh Army Orchestra in Europe, where he conducted more than 100 concerts in principal cities. He studied in Amsterdam under the late Eduard van Beinum, who said, "He is an outstanding musician of fine artistic attainments and sensitivity... he has fine talent, great promise, and I would like him to have a chance to show his ability."

WHEN HE returned to Los Angeles, Lewis rejoined the orchestra, but continued to conduct for motion pictures, theater and television. He is widely known as conductor of the String Society Orchestra, made up of string players from the Philharmonic.

Sunday's program will include Mozart's "Symphony in D Major, No. 31"; Copland's orchestral suite from the ballet "Appalachian Spring," and Dvorak's "Symphony in G Major, No. 4."

Curtain at 8

"The Hidden Fortress", which won the Silver Bear at the ninth Berlin International Film Festival, will be shown on Bay Theatre's Curtain at 8 program Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The film, in Japanese with English subtitles, is directed by Akira Kurosawa and stars Toshiro Mifune, who was seen in "The Magnificent Seven", and Misa Uehara.

'I'VE GOT TO GET A MAN'

Audrey Share is pictured in an amazing sequence from dozens of telephone conversations which she conducts as mother of "The Reluctant Debutante." Desperately she is saying (left), "I've got to get a man for dinner if it kills me"; cooingly (center), "Do forget all your invitations and dine with us tonight"; and, later, in horror she wails, "Oh, my dear, there's been some terrible mistake; I called the wrong man!" The witty English comedy is playing Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St. The play, which is attracting capacity audiences, is directed by Larry Johns.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

It has been my privilege to interview celebrities of many nationalities, but until the other day I had never interviewed a native of India. So it was doubly thrilling to talk to a very gifted conductor from Bombay, Zubin Mehta. After his first appearance with Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra recently, the audience went wild with enthusiasm. I, myself, was carried away with his fiery performance. He conducted the whole program without a score, as he does all his programs. This is indeed an extraordinary feat when one considers that Zubin Mehta is only 24 years old!

HE APPROACHED us at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles with the same leisurely stride with which he walks upon the stage. His entrance is at once intriguing, and marks an aristocrat. It is a paradox that this handsome young man, who conducts so tempestuously, can walk so calmly. In his conversation, too, he is quiet, composed and very dignified. He was dressed in slacks and a dark sport jacket, with a white shirt open at the neck and a stunning scarf knotted at the throat.

Zubin Mehta began the study of violin with his father in Bombay when he was a little lad. At that time his father was conductor of the Bombay Symphony Orchestra. Mehta plays piano and bass viol also. He attended the University of Bombay expecting to become a doctor but the call of music was stronger and he went to Vienna, where for four years he studied conducting with Hans Swarowsky at the Vienna Conservatory.

"VIENNA is a very cosmopolitan city," Mr. Mehta related, "and I made many friends there so that now wherever I am conducting, some of these old friends find me and keep me from being lonely." His exceptional talent soon brought him conducting engagements in all the great cities of Europe. Next year he will conduct 25 concerts with the Montreal Symphony Orchestra. This will be good in more ways than one. It will permit him to be with his wife and little family for a home life that has been denied them. "My wife Carmen is a Canadian," he told us, "from Saskatchewan and we have two children, a girl Zarina aged 26 months and a boy, Merwan, aged 6 months. My wife was a singer, a lyric soprano, but now she sings only lullabies!"

ZUBIN MEHTA is not a Mohammedan, but a follower of the prophet, Zoroaster of the Parsi faith. "This religion," he told us, "is older than Mohammedism and 2,000 years older than Christianity. It is an ancient Persian religion. But now I am married to a Catholic and my children will be Catholics also. And when a Parsi marries outside his religion, he is excommunicated!" He spread out his hands in bewilderment.

The Mehta family seems to have quit India permanently. Zubin's father and mother are now residing in Philadelphia where Mehta Sr. is first violinist with the Curtis String Quartet. His only brother is an accountant in London. England was the home of the family for some years when Zubin's father was concert master of the Halle Orchestra under Sir John Barbirolli.

SPECIAL WEDNESDAY NIGHT OPENING

Two Exhibits Focus on Contemporary Trends

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Persons interested in the work of today's artist can gain insight as well as enjoyment from two current first-rate exhibitions in Los Angeles.

The Morton D. May collection of German Expressionists continues at UCLA thru Feb. 19. Rising before World War I, and continuing until Hitler banished it, German Expressionism was contemporary with the more familiar French Fauvism and Cubism. The cruder German techniques and colors create a powerful impact of brooding emotionalism and personal identity to which many of today's artists are heirs. Among those represented are: Kirchner, Schmidt-Rottluff, Nolde, Pechstein, and 49 huge oils of Beckmann with whom May, the collector, studied.

L'Art Nouveau (the new art) will continue at the Los Angeles County Museum until March 5. A movement which occurred simultaneously all over Europe and in America, it was the dominant style from 1895 to 1905. Enthusiastically acclaimed, over-embellished, and grotesquely copied, the movement died and was denied any general recognition until this last year when the New York Museum of Modern Art assembled this collection.

First reaction to the exhibit is a reminiscent chuckle, for this was the era of the iridescent lily-shaped vase, the opalescent stained glass window or lampshade, gold jewelry (smoldering with opals) fashioned to look like insects, the cast iron and glass department store facade, the lalique flagon, the "graceful" asymmetric line done to a fare-thee-well.

However, once this superficial association has passed, the complete originality of the work of this period asserts itself. These artists broke with their antecedents, creating a truly new art. Present-day developments can be directly traced to this period, much as a picture of an embryo suggests the forming of the human child. In the context of the skillfully exhibited collection, the intense beauty for which these artists strove comes into focus.

Among the many art forms represented are those of Tiffany (U. S.); Munch (Norway); Lalique, Daum, Redon, Gauguin (France); Ensor (Belgian); Picasso and Horta (Spanish); Hoffman (Austrian); Kandinsky (Russian-German); Gaudi (Italian); and MacIntosh (Scotland). An admission fee of 50c is charged for this exhibit.

Light Opera, Show Tunes on Program

Under auspices of Bellflower Community Concert Association, The Little Music Theatre will present a program Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Bellflower Simms Park Auditorium.

Principals of the company, who will present popular light opera and Broadway repertoire, are Shirlee Emmons, soprano; William McGrath, tenor; and Robert Rue, baritone. David Tihmar directs.

On the program are condensed performances of Strauss's "Die Fledermaus," and "Song of Norway" with the music of Grieg and George M. Cohan's "Yankee Doodle Boy."

Members of the Community Concert Association in neighboring communities also are invited to the concert.

'Kovanshchina'
Moussorgsky's opera, "Kovanshchina," filmed in wide screen color in Russia, will be shown in six performances in UCLA's Royce Hall auditorium Wednesday through Feb. 6 at 8:30 p.m. A matinee is scheduled next Sunday at 3 p.m.

By MONA HAGAN

The new semester at Long Beach City College is here —before everyone can quite realize that the old one is really over. Classes resume Monday at all LBCC divisions, after a hectic week of final exams and registration.

The new term gets off to a head start for Business and Technology Division students tonight when new ASB president Gary Perdue and his council are installed by outgoing president Bruce Hatch during a banquet at the Reef.

Perdue, an aircraft major, will call the spring council to order at 11:30 a.m. Monday to round out plans for the "Hello Day" on Wednesday, when presidents of 20 LTD campus clubs will bid for new members. Climax of the rushing season will be a Club Organization Day on Feb. 8.

At an assembly session this Wednesday, physical education instructors Nancy Garry and John Meyer, will outline plans for spring intramurals and coeducational sports. Plans for drama and music activities will be announced by instructors Herbert Caesar and Earl Thomas.

AT THE LIBERAL Arts Division campus, a special issue of the Viking, student newspaper, will herald the new semester. Produced as the fall term final exam by students of Ben Cunningham's Journalism 20A class, the paper was edited by Linda Gallagher and assistant editor M. Hagan.

All LAD clubs are involved with spring activities

Guild Party

St. Anne's Guild of All Saints Episcopal Church will be hostess for a luncheon-is-served Thursday at 12:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall, Colorado Street and Termino Avenue.

Mrs. Robert Robberson, 4251 Elko St., is responsible for reservations. Bridge and canasta will be played.

plans. For the women there will be the usual gay whirl of rush teas. Men's club pledges will be selected following a series of open house programs.

Mrs. Doris O'Brien of the English department will replace Marion Darlington this spring as director of women's activities at LAD. Miss Darlington departs on a sabbatical leave Tuesday, arrives in Paris Wednesday, and will tour Europe until her return to the campus next fall.

MORE LTD club notes: Larry Brackenvitch is the president of the newly reorganized Norsemen's Club, a social and service organization. Outgoing Voksen president Jo Metcalf entertained club members recently with a home-cooked spaghetti dinner. New officers include: president June Dubbins, vice president Marie Fitzpatrick, secretary Polly Powers, treasurer Edna Fitch and publicity chairman Carole Stapleton.

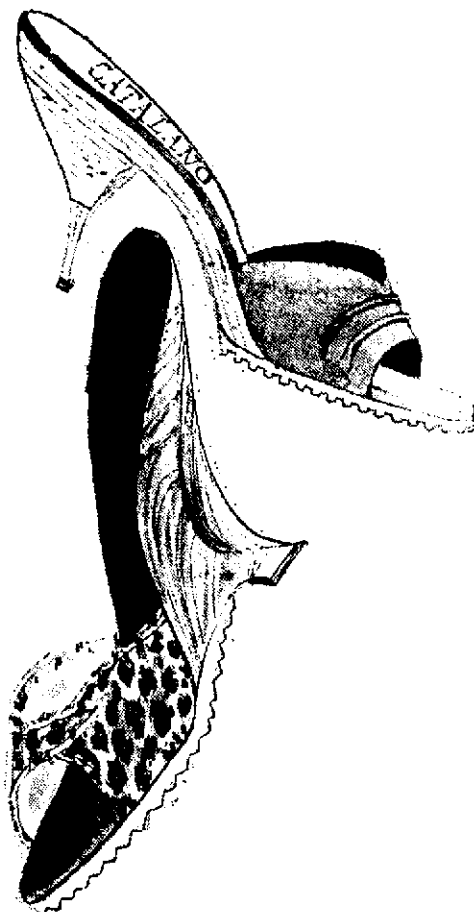

COMING EVENTS in the LBCC auditorium: First of several major attractions will be the performance of "Ariel, Visions of Isaiah" on Feb. 18 by the Schola Cantorum and the College-Community Orchestra. The new cantata by American composer Robert Starer will be given its West Coast premiere.

Jose Greco and his Spanish dance company return to the LBCC auditorium stage Feb. 20, as the "Evenings at Eight Extra" of the season. (Tickets reportedly are going fast.) Later the same week, the College Choir will present a special evening concert featuring Jester Hairston, the noted actor-singer-composer-conductor who is also a leading authority on Negro spirituals.

Last week's concert by the LBCC College-Community Orchestra (its first appearance under new conductor Jerome L. Landsman) was outstanding, but more people should have been there to hear it.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

This Is One Fish That Will Never Be Fried!

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent Press-Telegram Food Editor

Just picture—if you can—a large, comfortable family room, complete with a huge fireplace which can't be used. It's a perfectly commodious fireplace, too. The hitch comes in what's hanging above it.

It's a nine foot, 4 inch sail fish; and a bit of fire just might bungle the paint job. The one who insists that the fish be kept in its original glamorous state is Jack P. Merrick, today's Chef of the Week. He and "chef" Charley (Edison Co.) Campbell, are joint owners of a 34-foot cruiser, rightly named "The Hunter."

School Menus This Week

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Jan. 30-Feb. 3:

MONDAY: Pizza pie, garden peas, fruit cup supreme, graham cracker and milk.

TUESDAY: Creole noodles, chopped spinach, apple wedges with cheese slice, French bread and butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Diced turkey in gravy on mashed potatoes, cut green beans, fruit gelatin, date bread and butter and milk.

THURSDAY: Hamburger, potato salad, apricot halves, celery sticks and milk.

FRIDAY: Baked fish, whole kernel corn, tossed salad with egg, raisin bread and butter and milk.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH
MONDAY: Pizza pie, cut green beans, raspberry sauce with whipped topping, Lorna Doone cookie and milk.

TUESDAY: Creole noodles, lemon buttered beets, celery sticks, jellied pineapple-cottage cheese, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, buttered peas, Waldorf salad, toasted cheese special and milk.

THURSDAY: Lasagne, buttered spinach, peach Betty with whipped topping.

FRIDAY: Baked fish with creamed potatoes or beef-vegetable casserole, buttered lima beans, apricot halves, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

They're still hunting for that marlin.

When not aquatic minded, Merrick is president of the T. F. Merrick Co., appraising service.

A northwesterner by birth, Seattle and Portland both preceded his arrival in Long Beach in 1923.

Upon graduation from Wilson High School, Merrick became a full-time partner in his dad's company. His service has been continuous, with the exception of three World War II years which he spent in the real estate branch of the Army and Army Air Force appraising and acquiring property needed by them.

MERRICK served his first term on the board of directors of the Long Beach Realty Board in 1937, and has been a member ever since. Downtown Long Beach Associates, St. Mary's Hospital and Long Beach Chamber of Commerce also have benefited from his service on their boards. A Rotarian since 1940, he officiated as secretary-treasurer in 1948-49, and was chairman for two years of the civic development committee for the Chamber.

In 1950 Merrick was elected to membership in the Society of Industrial Realtors, and in 1958 as chairman of the appraisal division State of California Real Estate Association.

Our "chef" is not domestically inclined but he does love his pancakes. In fact he's done a real job of selling son Tom, 18, and daughter Mary, 16, on 'em, too. Here's his recipe:

WILD RICE GRIDDLE CAKES

- 1 cup boiled wild rice
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 tblsp. sugar
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 tblsp. shortening
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 egg

Put the cooked wild rice to soak with 1 cup milk. In the morning, add the salt, sugar, shortening, flour and baking powder. Beat the mixture well, then add the well beaten egg and the other cup of milk. Bake on a hot greased griddle. Serve on heated plates with melted butter and hot syrup.

Luncheon Series Is of Benefit to Learning

"The scholar comes before the King."

With this centuries-old quote from the Talmud in mind, a series of dessert "Luncheons for Learning" has been scheduled by Long Beach Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

The luncheons which will take place Tuesday at 1 p.m., will provide money for the Hebrew University High School in Israel.

Mrs. Raymond Carl, 1021 Tehachapi Dr., is responsible for reservations. Each member of the Long Beach Council has received an invitation to the dessert event. Acceptance will be accompanied by a financial pledge to the University.

THE SOCIAL afternoon will include arrangements for card playing.

Hostesses include Mrs. Raymond Carl, 1021 Tehachapi Dr.; Mrs. Harry Alban, 549 Flint Ave.; Mrs. Alexander Britton, 2821 Brimhall Dr., Los Alamitos; Mrs. Murray Greenwood, 4010 Linden Ave.; Mrs. Sidney Wasserman, 5501 Lonna Linda Dr.; Mrs. Sidney Willner, 1030 Burlinghall Dr.

and Mrs. Max Wisot, 5290 E. Sixth St.

IN BUSINESS CIRCLES $2 Billion Bank Seen From Merger

United California Bank, a statewide institution, which will result from the merger on Feb. 27 of California Bank with First Western Bank and Trust Co., will have total resources of more than $2 billion, according to Frank L. King, chief executive officer of the merged bank.

Under terms of the merger, 50 of First Western's 115 offices will join California Bank's 70 offices to create the 120-office, $2 billion bank, King said. The remaining 65 offices of First Western Bank will be transferred into a separate banking institution known as First Western Bank and Trust Co.

BASED ON THE DEC. 31 statements of condition of the merged banks, United California Bank will have deposits of $1.8 billion, loans of more than $1 billion, and capital funds in excess of $160 million. Par value of its 4,967,047 shares is $12.50 per share and book value based on Dec. 31 figures is $32.61, the banker revealed.

The merged bank will be the fourth largest in California and the 14th largest in the nation.

The merged bank will have 69 offices in Los Angeles and vicinity, 17 in San Francisco and vicinity, with the remaining 34 offices spread over the length of California.

IN A LETTER to shareholders announcing a special meeting called for Feb. 16, at which time the merger proposals will be voted upon, King stated that Francis S. Baer, now chairman of the board of First Western Bank, will become chairman of the board-San Francisco of United California Bank.

The Los Angeles administrative committee will operate autonomously and will direct the activities of the southern district of the bank.

We Pace the Nation for Home Building

Every fifteenth home added to the entire nation's dwelling inventory between 1950 and 1960 was located in either Los Angeles County or Orange County, according to a report compiled from U. S. Census data.

While the Census showed this country's housing supply increased 27 per cent (to nearly 12½ million homes), Los Angeles real estate consultants, Western Real Estate Corp., found that Orange County recorded a phenomenal increase of better than 185 per cent (netting an additional 148,461 new units for a new total of 228,404 dwellings). While Los Angeles County percentage gain was lower, the 713,311 added homes represented a 49.2 per cent increase and increased the inventory to 2,163,216 units.

The gain in the two counties forming the Los Angeles Metropolitan Area was 56.3 per cent, more than double the rate of increase in the nation as a whole.

In 1950 every 33rd home in the nation was in the two counties; today, because of the growth in the past 10 years, every 25th home in the country is in the local Metropolitan area.

To Build Three Big Mobile Home Units

Ground will be broken within 30 days on a 15-acre Chapman Avenue site, 300 feet west of Harbor Boulevard, Garden Grove, for a 129-unit de luxe-type mobile homes park with clubhouse, heated pool and other appurtenances.

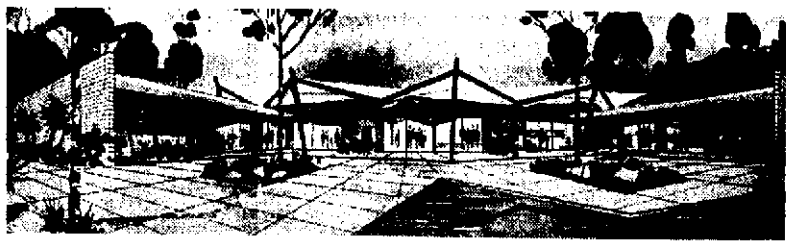

It will be named "The Oasis" and will represent an investment of more than $600,000, according to the builder, Jim Matthews, Mesa, Ariz., subdivider.

Matthews says he plans two other similar projects in the general Long Beach area on sites to be announced.

THE GARDEN GROVE park probably will be the first of its kind in California to have all utilities underground, including antenna cable for color television and kitchen. The central hall will seat 300 persons for dinners and other functions.

The hexagon-shaped clubhouse will be equipped with stereophonic sound, color TV, and a drop-down movie screen. There will be a billiard room, card room and the owner. A ramada or exclusive Scottsdale, Ariz., one fully equipped steam table will be built around of the finest in that state.

IN DE LUXE MOBILE HOME PARK

Hexagon-shaped clubhouse of "The Oasis," de luxe-type mobile homes park to be built in Garden Grove, will accommodate 300 in its central hall for dinner or dancing. It will be equipped with stereophonic sound, color TV and drop-down movie screen. Cost of the project is reported at more than $600,000.

Individual Electric Heat in Each Room

A close-in location just 10 minutes from Long Beach and 25 minutes from Los Angeles adds to the attractiveness of the new Gold Medallion homes at Sun Ray Estates in Bellflower, declares Jim Schaefer, sales manager.

Each room in these new homes is warmed by its own Ceil-Heat electric ceiling radiant system with separate thermostatic controls to provide made-to-order "climate zones" throughout the house. Buyers are impressed by this unusual heating method, which gently spreads heat from above, like an indoor sun, Schaefer says.

PRICED FROM $18,250. to $18,995, the new Sun Ray-diant system with separate Bellflower homes are offered Homes such as this in Sun Ray Estates in Bellflower have individual electric ceiling heat in each room. They are priced from $18,250.

POINTS TO WESTMONT

Westmont Opening Five New Models

Five new furnished model homes will be opened today for the first time at George M. Holstein and Sons Westmont community of Hwy. 39 just South of Knott's Berry Farm.

Along with the exciting model homes, the new development includes a score of surprises with a Viking ship play yard, a 40th anniversary kitchen, and free refreshments all available for visitors.

PRICED FROM $16,350, the homes have been acclaimed as one of America's great new home buys and will feature at the new unit, GI terms as well as FHA financing.

Both near-immediate occupancy and mid-summer delivery is being promised at the Westmont location with a choice of both three and four bedroom homes with family rooms on display.

Called the "discovery series," the newly decorated models will show off the latest in decor and the finest in features, Holstein pointed out. The 40th anniversary kitchen will also interest visitors as the kitchen shows the "kitchen of yesterday." The 1921 model kitchen was typical during the firm's first year of business, the builders explained.

To reach Westmont from the Long Beach area, go out the Long Beach area, go out Carson to the Hwy. 39 turn right. Stay on (Hwy. 39) to the flagged entry at Terry Avenue.

G.M. Dollar Sales Best in History

LOS ANGELES—General Motors' dollar sales in 1960 were the highest in the corporation's history, Frederic G. Donner, chairman, and John F. Gordon, president, announced.

Net income in 1960 was second only to 1955, Donner and Gordon said in disclosing preliminary figures at a news conference.

Unit Sales of GM cars and trucks in 1960 also topped every other year except 1955, they disclosed. The news conference was held in connection with the General Motors Mororama of 1961, which opened Saturday for a nine-day showing in Pan Pacific Auditorium.

DOLLAR SALES for the year 1960 are estimated at $12.7 billion, compared with $11.2 billion in 1959 and the previous record of 12.4 billion in 1955.

The preliminary estimate of net income for 1960, subject to final audit, is $959 million. In 1959 net income was 1873 million.

Sears Will Launch Jubilee

Joining with 739 Sears stores throughout the country, the local Sears, Roebuck and Co. store will hold an open house on Wednesday night to signal the start of the company's year-long 75th anniversary celebration.

A unique feature of this nationwide Diamond Jubilee event will be the serving to open house guests of birthday cake baked from a recipe dating back to 1886, the year the firm began business.

The open house proceedings will get underway promptly at 5:30 p.m., and Mayor Wade, assisted by C. W. Teed, store manager, will perform the ritual of cutting the Diamond Jubilee cake, at 6 p.m.

Because of a number of exciting events that we are planning during the year-long observance of Sears 75th anniversary," said Teed.

"Throughout the year there will be many selling events which will be designed to demonstrate to our customers that we are grateful for the role they have helped us play in modern retailing and to reaffirm our determination to continue to enjoy the confidence of an important segment of the buying public."

From the time it started in business in 1886 until 1925, Sears was exclusively a mail order concern which sold goods through its catalogs only. In 1925 the company entered the retail business on an experimental basis. The experiment quickly proved a success and soon Sears embarked on a vast retail expansion which has continued without interruption except for the war years.

The local Sears store was opened Sept. 13, 1928.

For example, examine the kitchen design which is large enough to be comfortable and yet built to save the housewife endless steps. Moreover, the cabinets, made of natural ash, are easy to reach and seldom necessitate use of a stool or chair," states Betty Patterson, Walker & Lee Sales Manager.

Homes Near Beaches Are in Big Demand

PACIFIC SANDS OFFERS

Opening of homes like this in Pacific Sands saw a buying rush last weekend. The homes, near the beach, are priced from $12,500.

Distinctive ocean-oriented beach homes caused a sensation among crowds of homebuyers attending last weekend's opening at new Pacific Sands, reports Bill Cheney, manager for Walker and Lee, the sales agency.

According to Cheney, the opening brought home to residents of Los Angeles and environs the fact that the new Pacific Sands homes furnish a welcome answer to the shortage of quality beach houses in the Newport-Balboa-Huntington Beach area.

The shortage of beach houses, Cheney adds, will also make it easy for those buying for full-time residence to rent their homes when they leave on vacation.

Furthermore, the sales manager points out, prices at Pacific Sands are only about half of what is being asked for other luxury beach houses in the area. Pacific Sands prices, in fact, are $3,000 and more below what they should be in today's market. Any competent real estate estimator, Cheney continues, would evaluate the homes at $16,000 to $20,000... yet the actual pricing is just $12,500 to $14,950. Buyers will receive full details of how this sensational less-than-market pricing is possible when they visit the development.

CUSTOM-DESIGNED for beach-close living, the new Pacific Sands homes offer plans with special boat doors, making it easy to slide a boat through its storage space in the large 2-car garage. Also offered are outside showers double garages, and 17 different exteriors enhanced by used brick, concrete block, and Palos Verde stone.

LESS THAN TEN minutes from the new homes is the Long Beach Marina with its small boat facilities, while Newport-Balboa is just five minutes away. Also nearby are Knott's Berry Farm and Disneyland. Excellent schools and shopping centers are convenient.

IN GARDEN PARK ESTATES

Builders of Garden Park Estates architect-designed homes have been accorded national recognition with the winning of House & Home Magazine's coveted "Award of Merit 1961," for College Park Estates in Long Beach which was also chosen by American Builder Magazine's January '61 issue as "House of the Month," officials announced. Here is one of the new homes.

Garden Park Estates Builders Win Honor

National recognition was accorded the builders of Garden Park Estates, recently opened community of architect-designed luxury homes on Knott Ave. at Garden Grove Freeway, with the winning of the coveted House & Home Magazine "Award of Merit, 1961."

"As prospective home owners will readily recognize, Garden Park Estates' distinctive homes still reflect the same quality construction, design excellence and meticulous attention to detail that won the builders these National honors," W. R. Effinger, director of sales, explained.

"ADD TO THIS assurance of value and quality," he said, "an impressive roster of luxury and convenience features and a location in one of Orange County's most convenient and fast-growing areas, we have the sound reasons for the record sales pace at Garden Park Estates. Distinctive and diverse architectural elevations include a wide selection of Contemporary, California Ranch and Hawaiian designs, and the flexibility and scope of floor plans is broad enough to meet the spatial needs of virtually any family.

There are two-bath plans with three bedrooms and den, four bedrooms or three with family room or two bedrooms with dining room and den, and a popular "dual bath" plan with three bedrooms and family room.

COMPLETE WITH their many luxury features, Garden Park Estates' residences are fully priced from $16,450, Effinger said. "Four way" financing, in addition to VA terms of nothing down except imposts and closing costs and monthly terms from $90.97, and FHA loans with low down payments, offers Cal-Vet and good conventional loans.

Styled to the decor fireplaces, sliding glass doors to the outside living areas, thermostatically controlled heat with summer cooling switch, handsome baths with colored fixtures and pullman lavatories and appliance-equipped kitchens with built-in wall oven and range, semi-automatic dishwasher, and counters topped with superamic tile.

SITUATED IN the midst of fine homes, Garden Park Estates is close to schools and school sites for all age groups, including the new Long Beach State College approximately ten minutes away. It enjoys ready access to Freeways and there are many recreational facilities right at hand: golf courses, the beautiful southland beaches and the marinas.

"World of Wheels" MOTORLOG

COASTLINE NEAR SANTA BARBARA

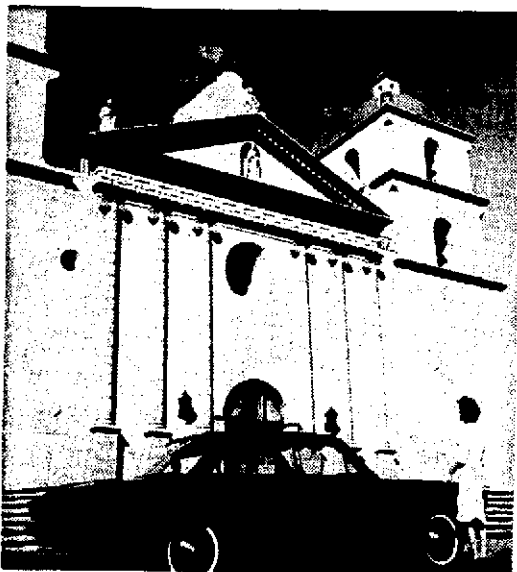

Beauty of coastline near Santa Barbara is apparent on Highway 101 at Montecito a few miles south of Santa Barbara.

Pontiac's Compact Tempest Makes Santa Barbara Tour

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

The beautiful new Santa Barbara Inn, an ultra plush hostelry right on the beach at Santa Barbara, and Pontiac's new-sized Tempest were our latest combo for a weekend of pleasant relaxation at our sister city to the north.

With proper deference to some of the most scenic shoreline in the state is to be our own fair city by the sea, found on the three-hour trek.

THE VERY OLD, THE VERY NEW

Santa Barbara Mission, originally built in 1786, provides backdrop for Tempest, circa 1961.

Wide and long beaches fringed by both palms and pines, lush green foliage to contrast with the white adobe walls and red tile roofs of homes with Spanish lineage are among the pleasing vistas of the tour.

It is one of the most rewarding short trips in the Southland.

Our Motorlog Tempest was to be borrowed from Salta Pontiac here but when approached for the loan of their new compact, Paul Gikas, general manager of the Long Beach Boulevard dealership, informed us he didn't have a Tempest to spare, the car was "hot" and he needed every one in stock for week-end selling. So our car was borrowed from the Pontiac zone office in Los Angeles, a good-looking, candy-apple-red four-door — the 155-horsepower slanted engine job that took us on our Santa Barbara sojourn in style.

NO SIGNALS

Leaving Long Beach on Friday evening at 5:15 we pointed our Tempest onto the Long Beach Freeway at Ocean and Golden Avenues. Now thanks to our great freeway system (which everybody cusses and everybody uses) we could skim right thru L.A. onto the Hollywood and Ventura freeways, right to the town of Ventura itself before our wheels were halted by the first traffic signal in a little over 103 miles.

And these 100-odd miles gave us a pretty good idea of the kind of car we had under us. The Tempest, as you know, is unique in that it has the engine up front and the transmission in the rear for 50-50 balance. The two are connected by a flexible, curving, one-piece driveshaft to the rear "transaxle" with the result the floor is nearly flat which makes the seats more practical for three people than most compacts. The Tempest rode beautifully, both Lorraine and I agreed, undoubtedly due to that weight distribution which seems to minimize the pitch and toss of slow and go driving.

The seats were high and comfortable for good visibility, the two-tone interior was exceptionally plush and a gas check on our return showed an average of 20.9 MPG on the 281-mile round trip. This was on regular gas via the Tempest's automatic transmission.

And the Tempest has just received Motor Trend Magazine's "Car of the Year Award" which should make the Pontiac Bonneville, Venturas and Catalinas mighty proud of their new little brother.

SANTA BARBARA INN

But on with the tour. Passing thru Ventura and just before the city limits of Santa Barbara, we turned left off 101 toward the beach, onto Cabrillo Blvd., to our week-end haven, the beautiful Santa Barbara Inn. Here we were greeted by general manager Joe Myers who had made our reservations earlier in the week — a man whom we soon discovered knew a thing or two about running a hotel.

Our accommodations for the week-end were about the nicest we've ever had on any Motorlog. Overlooking the ocean with a huge wall of glass opening onto a private balcony, the room was furnished in ultra-modern style. Practically all the necessities were built into the walls or furniture, from the unique dressing table and beautybar to the TV built into the dresser and the radio in the wings of the headboard of the king-size bed. The incidentals, too, were the most, from the colored telephone to the realistic pictures on the wall. The tab for these modest little digs is $16 a day for two which is the winter rate. From May 26 to September 14 the rate goes to $20 a day. Other room prices at the Inn start at $10 a day which doesn't seem bad for Santa Barbara's finest.

Once settled we were intrigued by one of Manager Myers' little "tricks of the trade," a dinner menu spread open on the table to remind us of the culinary delights awaiting in the Sky Restaurant on the third floor.

And the Sky Restaurant is an apt name. With glass from floor to ceiling on three sides, the view even at night, was terrific. On one side was the Pacific and waving palms, on the other a mountain backdrop silhouetted the twinkling lights of Santa Barbara. In the ceiling were hundreds of star-shaped cutouts with blinking lights. It was an illusion of being outdoors under a starry winter sky.

SUPERB FOOD

And the food matched the atmosphere, we found, after disposing of an a la carte double top sirloin for two ($9.00) served with green salad, potato and rolls. But delicious!

In the morning Manager Joe Myers gave us the deluxe tour of his plush establishment from the Vista-Vue sundeck on the roof of the Inn to the specially designed pool on the beautifully landscaped ground. Myers told us of the several special suites on the various floors—the imposing Presidential Suite, the luxury-loaded Governor's Suite, the Starlight Penthouse, and described the many facilities for private banquets and conventions.

"And let's not forget the Sunburst Honeymoon Suite," our guide laughed as we neared the end of our tour. "In this suite they have their own memorable 'hand-holding' balcony, panoramic windows for their own private view and a specially designed circular bed."

As you can see, this guy Myers thinks of everything. No wonder his philosophy of "everything a little bit better" has made him one of the top hotel men in the West. "How about it, Joe, is there a reduced rate for second-honey-

MISSION VISITED

There are many things to do in Santa Barbara, of course—the beach, the historical sites, the lush golf courses—but our Saturday consisted of mostly of do-nothingness. We did visit the famed Santa Barbara Mission, probably the most photographed building in the West, where we posed our Tempest Motorlog car.

Then late afternoon found us at the rustic hillside home of Iris and Hugh Points for some convivial Santa Barbara hospitality. Hugh is the auto editor of the Santa Barbara News-Press, an old friend, and a lot of automotive chitchat went on to the sweet music of ice against glass.

Evening found us back at the Inn for another superb meal, a stroll along the beach in the nippy night air, then repose.

Sunday before bidding adieu to our wonderful week-end retreat we succumbed to the "Inn Brunch." For a tab of $2.00 each it ran the gamut of goodies from glazed kumquats to eggs benedict, with juices, coffee, the works. If we weren't gourmets by now we'd never be one.

So now we were back in Motorlog No. 36 was now another page in our Memory Book.

OUR COVER

There's a Leap Year Cinderella among Hollywood's young lovelies who seems destined to become a great star. She's Sharon Hugueny, today's Southland cover girl, whose Hollywood beginning was as swift and breathtaking as any ever in the screen colony's history. One day, Sharon, who was then only 15 (she's only 16 now) was leading the life of a normal high school girl in Reseda. Two months later she was working before the cameras in a starring role of Warner Bros.' "Parrish." She had been seen by a talent scout who realized that she was "made to order" for the part of a teenage daughter in the screen play. She bowled over a veteran camera crew with unexpected talent—and away went her old mode of life! She's taking it all with poise, albeit a little breathlessly. For more about Sharon, who was born Feb. 29, 1944, a leap year, and other Hollywood upcoming beauties, see Page 7.

From odds and ends, mostly oil tanks, a Southland inventor has created what he calls an "Aqua-Sub." This novel little sea trinket—actually an 1,800-pound version of a submarine—is a one-man job and, in tests, has done practically everything that a real submarine will do. Compact Snack Table

To provide extra storage and a snack table, a cabinet was built with top which unfolds for eating surface.

IF YOUR kitchen is a small one without a breakfast nook, yet you would like eating space to avoid running into the dinette, something practical can be done about it.

The 10x10 foot kitchen used as an example has three walls taken up by outside doorway on one side, range and refrigerator on the other, the sink area on the opposite side, leaving a 4½-foot space between sink and doorway to the dinette.

Against this space a 28-inch high partitioned cupboard was built over a 4-inch base. It is 35 inches wide and 4 inches deep. The 3-foot top is made of two pieces, the lower one 15 inches deep and the upper one 14 inches. This top is hinged and may be lifted out to extend for comfortable eating space. Sliding rods on each side act as braces when the top is opened. When not in use for snacks or meals, the open top is handy for placing extra or used dishes when guests require use of dinette. — EDA JOHNSTONE.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like brief genealogy on SLATTERY. — W.S., North Long Beach; T.S., Long Beach.

W.S., T.S.: SLATTERY, an Irish name lineage, is traced to a chieftain called Slatra who was a direct descendant of Oilioil Olum, third century king of Munster, Ireland. Slatra means "Strong and bold." The Clan O'Slattara (Sons of Slatra) were natives of east County Clare in the early Middle Ages.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of MARINE — C.M., Compton.

C.M.: MARINE is a spelling reformation of the old Italian surname Marino. Marino was a descriptive Italian word for "Sons of the seafarer." No coat-of-arms is registered for Marine.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy on ODOM and ODUM.—N.O., Mrs. H.O., Long Beach.

N.O., H.O.: ODOM and ODUM were respelled from Odeham, a town in Devonshire, south England, where the Odoms and Odums formerly resided.

Odeham described "Wealthy one's estate." The Odeham coat-of-arms has two black water bags on a silver band across a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on L'AMIE, French, and LAMBIE, Scotch?—Mrs. M.H., San Pedro.

M.H.: L'AMIE and LAMBIE, pronounced alike, are widely divergent in origin. L'Amie is an early medieval French name meaning "Descendants of the Protector or Friend." Lambie is a Scotch variation of Lammie, a division of Clan Lamont, Lammie or Lamont is from the Scotch-Gaelic "Laghamann" meaning "law-man" (Lawyer). Lambie is also attributed to an ancestral inn-owner whose premises were trademarked by the "Sign of the Lamb." The Lambie-Lammie coat-of-arms has three golden bishop's croziers above a silver "X" cross on a blue shield, with the motto "Per various casus" or "By various fortunes."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the background of CHAMLEE—J.C., Lakewood.

J.C.: CHAMLEE an old French surname, was spelled Chamblet in the 14th century and pronounced Cham-lee. Chambel-et, an estate phrase, translates as "from the little place of oak-trees." Although it is believed a coat-of-arms was granted to the Chamlee lineage, records of it are not available. Present-day descendants include Mario Chamlee, noted American opera singer.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of BROWN—C.B., East Los Angeles.

C.B.: BROWN, formerly "Brune," was used in 11th century Britain to describe a brunette among fair-haired people. By the 1400s Brune was converted to Brown in England, Scotland, and Ireland. The Browns were barons in East Lothian, near Edinburgh, Scotland, in A.D. 1116. One of the many Brown coats-of-arms has a dagger placed diagonally below a silver boar head on a black shield, with the motto "Praemium virtutis honor" or "Honor is the reward of virtue." Peter Brown of England arrived at Massachusetts on the Mayflower in 1620 and was the New England family ancestor.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on HANNA and HANNAH.—W.H., S.H., Long Beach.

W.H., S.H.: HANNAH goes back centuries to the Gaelic Irish Cann O'Hannaidh, modernized as O'Hannah and Hanna. O'Hannaidh translates as "Sons of the Delayer," appertaining to an early Gaelic chieftain who employed "delaying" tactics in battling enemies. The O'Hannahs were natives of County Limerick in (Continued on Page 25)

Connie Stevens, whom TVers know as Cricket Blake of "Hawaiian Eye," took a big step toward stardom when she was cast in an important dramatic role in "Parrish." Now Warner Bros. is giving her the title role in "Susan Slade."

Soaring to the Stars

WHO WILL BE the Mary Pickfords, the Gloria Swansons, the Greta Garbos and the Marilyn Monroes of tomorrow? Who knows? But it's a fact that a dozen or more beautiful and talented young actresses—many of them still in their teens—are fast budding into stars on the sound stages of Hollywood's movie lots. A few already have soared to the stars. Here is a covey of youthful beauties from whom great things are expected in years to come.

Three motion pictures and Shirley Knight has achieved stardom. Warner Bros. gave her star billing in "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs." She dropped Broadway stage goal for Hollywood when Papa said, "Go West, young girl."

Yvette Mimieux brought all the attributes for a successful film career to Hollywood, and MGM put her talents delightfully to work in "Where the Boys Are," fine comedy effort. Here's Yvette prettying-up the beach.

"Where the Boys Are" was loaded with young talent when MGM started rolling cameras. Dolores Hart was right there.

Diane McBain, blonde, blue-eyed and curved where she should be, pleased Warner Bros. in two starring roles.

Sharon Huguely gets a big chance to prove talents in Warners' "Parrish." She also appears on today's cover.

Paula Prentiss was spotted on campus at Northwestern by MGM talent scout; leaped into "Where the Boys Are."

Parents grow with their children at L.B. Child Development Center

A Family Goes to School

Patty Benner, 4½, gets some advice from Doris Klepp, a Child Development Center teacher, as Mrs. Joyce Benner stands by.

By Anna Mae Murray

WHAT DID YOU do at school today, Warren?" "I played and I patted leaves. A big boy played the accordion. I had juice and crackers, and I gave Stevie my turn in the jungle."

The little cowboy struggled into his boots, pushed back his 10-gallon hat. Then swinging into the saddle he went pedaling down the sidewalk trail on his trusty trike. He was headin' for the afternoon roundup of the other little "pokes" in the tract.

That question: "What did you do at school today?" had nothing unusual about it, but the little student who answered this one was only 30 months old.

Warren Caesar, at 2½, is the youngest child now participating in programs offered by the Long Beach Unified School District. With his sister, Karen, 4½, he attends afternoon sessions at the Child Development Center, 4901 E. Carson St.

In a colorful classroom with a homey as well as a school atmosphere he has a "cubby" where he keeps his own little blanket and the sheet he uses when he rests or naps. The "bathroom" facilities are all pint-size. He washes his hands on the least provocation because the little wash basins are on his level. There are easels for painting, crayons, blocks, clay and dough. Outside there are more blocks, sand boxes, ride-em toys and jungle gyms.

WARREN SINGS, he plays in the rhythm band, listens to stories, rests, learns about "bugs" and plays with puppets. But most of all he learns to work and play with children his own age with his own or another mother supervising under the guidance of a skilled instructor. He learns to get along with others, to share equipment, to feel secure with adults other than his own parents, thereby making a happy transition from home to school.

At present, 10 trained teachers work daily in two three-hour sessions with some 200 children, divided into four age groups. Two co-directors, Mrs. Elizabeth Lieberman and Mrs. Dorothea Skaggs, lead parent-discussion groups as well as directing the complete program.

"The Child Development Center is neither a nursery school, nor is it a child care center," states Mrs. Mary W. Edmunds, acting coordinator of home and family living, general adult division, Long Beach City College. "It is a place where the family goes to school, where parents grow with their children." In operation for 10 years now it is a program planned for parent education and benefits both parents and children.

Children from 30 months to 4 years and 9 months may attend the center five days a week, either morning or afternoon sessions. Applications may be made at any time during the year. To be eligible a child's father or mother must agree to participate 15 hours every four weeks in the group in which their child is enrolled. Both parents are required to attend eight evening lecture-discussion groups each semester their child attends in all areas of child development. One parent must attend a Long Beach City College class, day or evening, each semester the child is enrolled. This may be any subject offered by the college in order to further his or her education. It may lead to a high school diploma or to an Associate in Arts Degree. There is a $6 tuition fee per family each semester at the Child Development Center.

YOUNG PARENTS attending the center, on the average, have two children, have high school diplomas, are buying their own homes. Among the fathers are men from practically all the professions, businessmen, skilled and unskilled laborers.

Warren's parents, Herbert and Grace Caesar, Lakewood home owners, are quite typical of the 320 young parents at the present time taking part in the "family goes to school" program.

Herbert, 30, is a graduate of Long Beach State College and he teaches English and speech in the local schools. He attends the bi-monthly evening discussion group on child development on the Lakewood campus of LBCC.

Grace, 26, is a native of Boston, a busy housewife and mother of two children with a new baby due for Easter. She drives her children to the center each day, devoting two afternoons a week to participating in Warren's and Karen's classes, helping to plan the activities of the children. A third afternoon she takes a two-unit course in clothing. Having attended secretarial and art schools in the east before her marriage, she thinks it entirely possible that she might one day pick up a college degree along with rearing a family. Right now the family comes first.

"This is a wonderful and satisfying experience," she says. "By understanding other children we understand and enjoy our own all the more. We have learned what to expect of them and when to expect it. We enjoy the social contacts and the friendships, too. Mothers form car pools and we have a baby-sitting exchange with areas marked out on a map. We discuss common problems with other parents under the direction of trained advisers. It is a privilege to participate in such a wonderful program."

PARENT EDUCATION began in Long Beach in 1929 when classes were conducted in the elementary, junior and senior high levels. In 1938, a nursery school with counseling service for parents was established. A group of 10 mothers meeting in one of the city parks was really the beginning of the present program. Early classes were organized on an observation basis with a credentialed teacher in charge. Later mothers began to participate in the activities both in and out of doors. Today the program is a combination of observation, planning, discussion and active participation to learn the most effective ways of meeting the social, physical, emotional and intellectual needs of children.

In 1953 the Long Beach Unified School District, Long Beach City College, initiated a long-term study to determine adjustment made by these children to the kindergarten program. This study was made under the direction of Mrs. Joy B. AxteLL, coordinator of home and family living, with the data compiled by Mrs. Mary W. Edmunds, with the assistance of the kindergarten teachers of the Long Beach School System. The results of the study were published in a pamphlet, "The Effects of Preschool Experience on Fathers, Mothers and Children," by the Associated Student Body, General Adult Division, in 1960. Copies may be obtained from Long Beach City College, 4901 E. Carson St., for $1. It contains comprehensive and interesting information for parents.

The Long Beach Child Development Center has had visitors from all over the United States and from Europe, studying the system with the objective of setting up parent-education programs in their own communities on the principle that a family that works and plays together will stay together.

Youngsters are fascinated with modeling in clay at Child Development Center, learning by doing. Mothers in background add to understanding of children by watching group activity, ready to assist if needed.

Potential destroyer of the West's vast snow country

Avalanche!

By Frank L. Remington

ON A NIPPY winter morning several years ago three teenage Seattle youths were climbing the vast snow-covered slope leading to Snow Lake in the high Cascades. Trailing the others, Ed Almquist looked up to behold a huge white tide of rumbling fury spilling down upon them. "Avalanche! Avalanche!" he screamed, and fell on the fringe of the slide. His companions were swallowed in the terrifying surge of whiteness. After a futile search for them, Almquist dashed for help.

Eight hours later a search party found Larry Schinke, still alive, but buried three feet under the snow. He had lain there for what seemed an eternity, scarcely daring to breathe or move a muscle for fear of precipitating another slide. Keith Jacobson, the remaining member of the trio, had not been so fortunate. Rescuers found his lifeless form entombed in the snow.

Each winter hundreds, perhaps thousands, of avalanches cascade down the slopes of remote western mountains. Few of them are witnessed and they cause little damage to life and property—except in certain locations such as winter sports areas. In the winter of 1951-52, avalanches resulted in 19 fatalities in six western states: California, Utah, Washington, Colorado, Idaho and Montana.

Although not so well known as destroyers of life and property because they occur in remote areas, avalanches rank with tornadoes, floods, and earthquakes in potential destructive force. The greatest avalanche catastrophe in the United States took place in March, 1910. Three trains were snowbound at Wellington in Washington's Cascade Mountains. Crashing down upon them, a huge mass of snow and ice swept all three into the bottom of a canyon with 118 fatalities and more than a million dollars in property damage. This catastrophe forced the railroad to construct a tunnel which by-passed the slide area.

AVALANCHES in this country, however, reach only minor proportions compared to the devastating sizes they attain in other spots. In 1843, a gargantuan avalanche thundered down a mountain slope near Chavin, Peru. Hapless villagers heard its frightening roar but were powerless to escape. A thousand residents were trapped in this snow disaster, one of the greatest of the century.

Even more appalling was the white tide of death in the Eastern Alps during the first World War. Ski and mountain troops of Austria and Italy faced each other across the white and precarious slopes near the bottom of the mountains. Warm winds rippling across the thawing snows started 105 avalanches within a few hours. Like turbulent waters from a bursting dam, they surged downward, engulfing both armies and splintering and swallowing everything in their paths. Melting snows the following summer uncovered a grisly spectacle—10,000 frozen bodies. Total casualties during the war on that front from avalanches numbered 80,000, a greater number than came from military action.

IN OUR western mountains, avalanche casualties reached their peak during the period from 1869 to 1910. In those days miners swarmed into the high country and settled wherever they found gold and silver. Many of these mountain camps became known for the fabulous destruction of the snowslides which often obliterated both miners and their camps.

With the ever increasing interest in skiing and other winter sports the United States Forest Service became dissatisfied with the age-old answer to the avalanche hazard—"either stay out of the mountains or take your chances." The service now protects its winter recreation areas by providing specially-trained snow rangers. During the winter 1951-52, there were no avalanche accidents, fatalities, or property damage on winter sports areas under its jurisdiction. In addition, the Forest Service maintains snow and avalanche observation stations at three strategic points: Berthoud Pass, Colo.; Wasatch National Forest, Utah; and at Stevens Pass in Washington's Wenatchee National Forest.

THE PURPOSE of these observation stations is to provide reliable methods of estimating avalanche hazard. They make no attempt to anticipate avalanche occurrence because that's governed by too many unpredictable variables. The Forest Service does keep informed on the development of hazardous situations and takes appropriate steps to neutralize them. Snow rangers often clear a threatened area of all skiers and highway traffic, after which they stabilize a slope by explosives or other means.

The odds against a car and an avalanche arriving at the same point at the same moment are good. But the odds are getting poorer every year with increasing winter travel by bus, trucks, and private automobile. In 1951, Robert Ray was driving along a mountainous highway near Denver. His car was suddenly engulfed by a tumbling mass of snow that slashed across the road from an adjacent slope. The avalanche knocked him unconscious, hurtled the car over a 40-foot precipice, and buried it under eight feet of snow.

LATER, RAY recounted that his first thought upon regaining consciousness was how he was going to kill himself so he wouldn't have to suffer. Fortunately, he forced himself to a superhuman effort. Kicking the remaining glass out of the broken windshield, he started tunneling upward. When his cut and bleeding hands broke through the top of the snow, Ray said he just sat there and thanked God. Later, physicians discovered that he suffered from five fractured ribs, a broken shoulder blade, and multiple cuts. Colorado, recognizing the threat of such slides, tentatively established its own high-

Snow rangers precipitate avalanche with 75-mm. shell in Wasatch National Forest, Utah. Slide is shown in motion 6 seconds after the explosion.

Slopes such as this are comparatively safe from avalanches. The hillside is not sufficiently steep for the snow to start a slide downward.

Early snows are tested in Snow Basin, Cache National Forest, Utah. Many fatal, costly snow slides have led to the building protective installations.

How Do You Rate Vocally?

By Alan W. Farrant

WHAT YOU SAY is important. But just as important is how you pronounce the words you use. Girls, even more than boys, are expected to have "nice speaking voices." Voices which are low and easy to understand.

How about you? How do you rate vocally? Your family and close friends can understand you because they are used to your voice. But what about strangers? Do they "catch" every word?

Test your speaking voice and learn how you rate. Make your voice one which will carry well—and one your listeners will understand.

TRY TALKING before a lighted candle. If you blow it out on the first sentence, you are breathing improperly. This makes your voice breathy and strained. To correct this, inhale and exhale so the rib cage expands and contracts.

Some people have lazy lips. These people speak with their voice back in the throat, and do not move the lips sufficiently when they talk to pronounce their words fully and adequately. A good exercise to correct this speech defect is to hold a pencil between the teeth while reading aloud. The pencil forces you to make your lips move and helps to bring the voice forward. Exaggerate your lip movements as you repeat such words as "you" and "from."

To check your progress, test your voice now, and then again after you have practiced. A tape recorder is the best way, but if you don't have the use of one, use a paper cup. Hold the paper cup lightly and talk into it. The sound will bounce back and give a strong hint of how your voice sounds to those who hear you.

NOW. IS YOUR voice less breathy? Do you project better? Is your tone clear and distinct?

If you blow out the candle in the first sentence, you are breathing improperly. Take corrective steps.

Keep practicing, because how you rate vocally is important to you—much more so, possibly, than you realize. Speak slowly, and pause often enough for breath, but don't let the sound of your breathing reach your audience.

Much of your future success may well depend on how you talk. So—talk well!

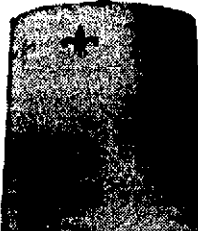

Talking into a paper cup is good way to test speech. Tape recorder is best, of course, if available.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Filled With Treasures from 'Round the World

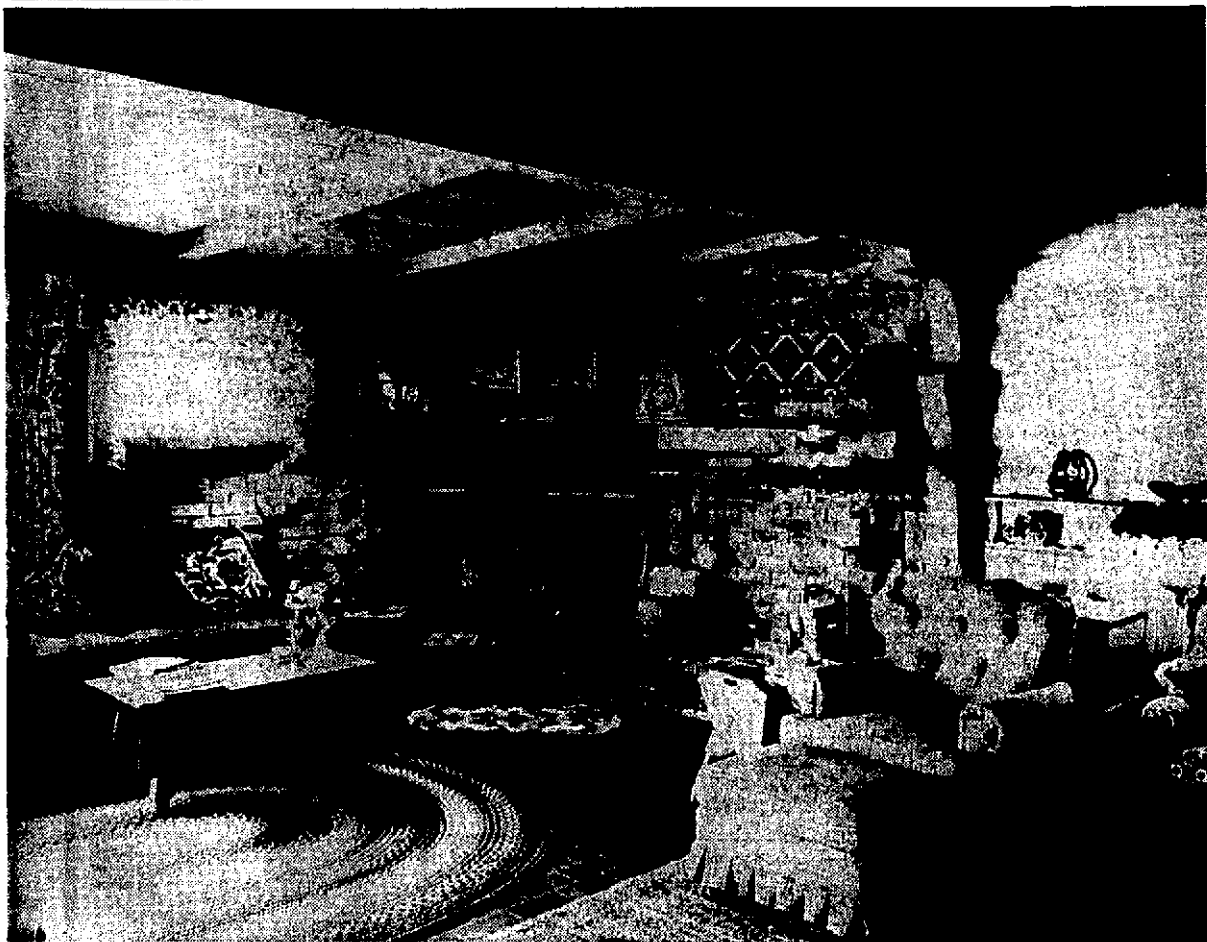

By Stella George

MENTION Virginia Road to someone who knows Long Beach and immediately thoughts are turned to wide, sweeping lawns, tall green trees, fine gracious homes, and a tranquil, peaceful atmosphere. Set far back on a wide lot at 4220 Virginia Road is a charming and elegant home belonging to Dr. and Mrs. Earl A. Hershman. They designed the house themselves, and the Brittany Provincial interior decorating was planned in its entirety by Mrs. Hershman.

The home is distinguishable in many respects. For one thing, Mrs. Hershman has given painstaking attention to tiny details in every room. The smallest item was chosen with care and displayed to its fullest advantage. Also, modern efficiency has been subtly combined with the Early American decor without taking away from the authentic attractiveness.

The driveway is semi-circular, large and spacious with ample accommodations for guest parking. A small lawn in front of the house is enclosed with a fence and gate. Blooming flowers are planted along the front.

FROM THE entrance hall the visitor may view the living quarters of the home: the warm and inviting living room straight ahead, the dining room to the left, the sun room to the left rear, and the kitchen to the immediate left of the hall itself. A hallway on the right leads to the bedrooms and baths.

Dr. and Mrs. Hershman have traveled not only the seven seas, but in 58 countries on five continents, picking up treasures to enhance their home. Thus, points of interest are everywhere, and it is difficult to select any one corner of the home as most interesting.

A brass tray some 40 inches in diameter (which was brought from India) rests atop a coffee table of about the same size in front of the couch in the living room. Needlepoint pictures and pillows, used as decoration throughout the home, were all done by Mrs. Hershman.

In a corner of the living room is a large used brick fireplace which curves around to both sides. A low, sit-down bar with built-in cupboards and drawers is on the other side of the room forming a small divider for the outdoor room.

THE NEWEST addition to the home, a sunroom, is still a part of the living room proper. Large windows overlook the adjoining golf course with the velvety green coming right up to the home itself. With large trees scattered here and there beyond, the view is serene, picturesque and restful. A curved couch faces the windows.

The Hershmans had an out-sized round oak table made for the dining room (located next to the sunroom). What appears to be a Lazy Susan in the center of the table is, in reality, a treasure from Spain—a brasserio (type of heater). A handy built-in buffet with ample cupboards and drawers is at one side. Below the windows in the dining room is an extra-long, built-in buffet with storage space for every imaginable item. Beamed cathedral ceilings accent the whole decor of the home.

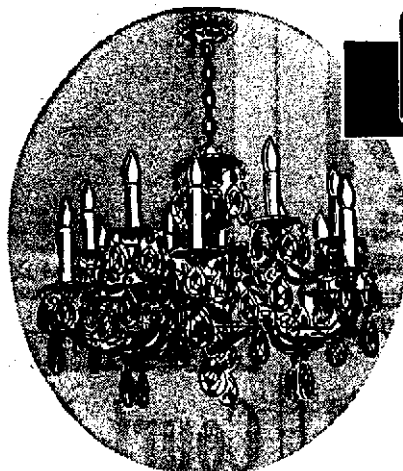

The kitchen, adjoining the dining room, is a model of efficiency, yet clever attention to details maintains the Early American feeling. Perhaps few homes boast as fine a facility as this one, with its blue formica and attractive window decorations.

IT SEEMS to be true that the little things, seemingly unimportant, give a home personality. For example, in the guest bathroom of the Hershman home, knobs on the cupboards are made of acorns, a tiny touch that does so much.

In the guest bedroom, Mrs. Hershman made window shades out of the same material as the curtains. The room itself seems to say, "Welcome. Glad you are here."

The master bedroom, custom in every respect, is done with perfect taste. A built-in chest of drawers runs under the window which, in turn, faces the golf course. Mrs. Hershman's dressing room has a spacious dressing table, and closets and drawers designed to accommodate various feminine apparel, often hard to store. Dr. Hershman's dressing room, likewise, is customized for all necessities. Marble top commodes form the end tables for the beds. Headboards are needlepoint, made by Mrs. Hershman. The adjoining bathroom is roomy; and once again small details make it an attractive room in itself.

This is a home which could be visited many times, and each time the visitor would probably notice something that he had overlooked before. It is a home designed and built with care and planning, ideally suited for family living and company entertaining. Even men guests who may not notice some of the finer points that appeal to women long remember Dr. Hershman's particular pride: the barbecue built right in the kitchen—large and accessible, strong and substantial, a fitting stage for a chef to show off his talents.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Court, Pool Set Off Luxury Home

By David L. Brown

DESIGNED specifically for the family that has arrived, the house presented today is expansive and exotic. But if you can afford the finest kind of living, or like to dream of the day when you may, B-24 in the House of the Week series is a design worth investigating.

Outstanding features are the swimming pool and lanai—which are integrated into the living pattern of the house and which highlight the over-all opulence of the plan. Secluded from view by a stone wall along one side, the pool is only a few steps from the sliding glass doors under the lanai leading from the master bedroom. At the other side under the lanai roof, a cabana with shower completes the picture of ease and convenience.

The impressive front facade is formed by pierced-masonry wall extending from an ornamental iron entrance gate. Inside the gate, the visitor passes through a delightful garden court on his way to the house entrance.

EXTENSIVE USE of window walls and sliding glass doors throughout the home gives every interior area a view and a feeling that indoors and outdoors have been subtly blended.

Further emphasizing the Many outstanding details make this home distinctive. It is designed to provide for every kind of family activity, including the most lavish entertaining.

air of luxury, the huge living room has two massive brick surfaces—one an end wall and the other an enormous double fireplace that also serves to give privacy to the secluded library area.

Architect of all B-24's splendor is Rudolph A. Matern, who set out to provide a home for the kind of extensive entertaining that modern life demands of many families.

The design covers 1,945 square feet of living space, excluding all porches and terrace areas. The home has three bedrooms, 2½ baths. The house itself is 62 feet wide, with at least 19 feet additional required for the pool. Depth is 59 feet 1 inch.

B-24 provides an efficient and well-equipped kitchen only a few steps from the dining room on one side and the family breakfast area on the other. A good-sized family room offers space for relaxed informality.

Aware that the family that belongs in such a home will have extensive storage requirements, Matern has provided unusually roomy closets and cabinets in all of the areas where they are needed—bedrooms, the family room, dressing-bath, even the garage has a big storage wall for outdoor equipment.

Oysters

By Helen Smith

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA diners who appreciate good eating may not know that as they prepare to dip their forks into a serving of escalloped West Coast oysters that they are enjoying the harvest of a three-year crop that, although locally grown, is an orphaned import.

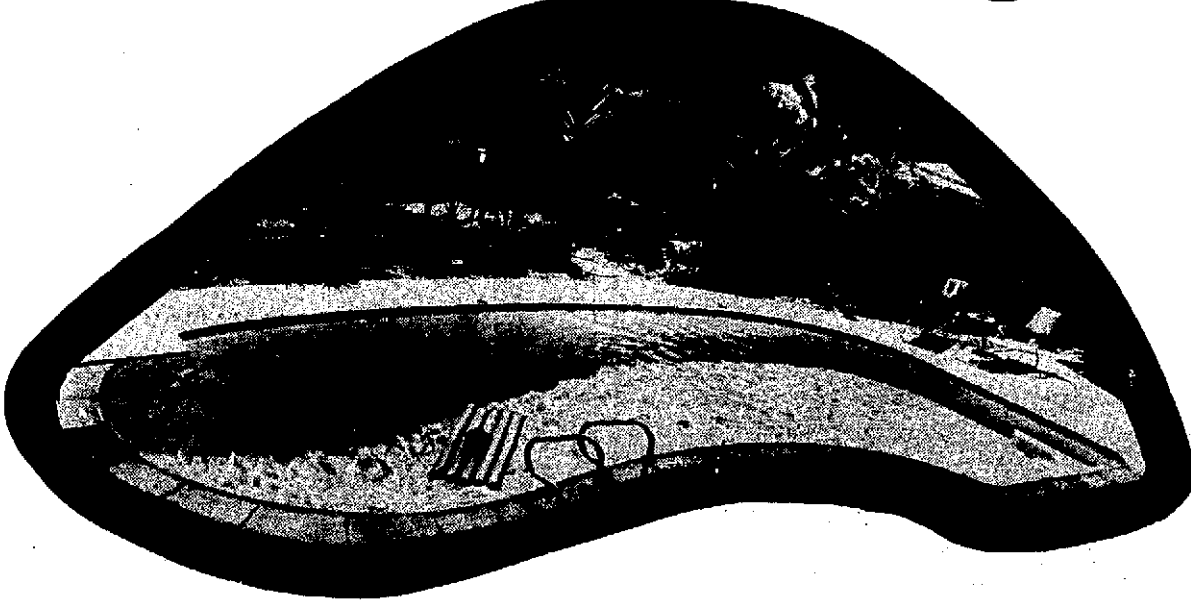

These are the oysters which come to the man-made beds in Tomales Bay just north of San Francisco from Japan when only as big as a pin point to become one of the tastiest "crops" known.

The origin of farming oysters in beds is lost in antiquity. The Chinese cultivated the delicately flavored bivalves before the Christian era and the Romans used artificial growing methods to produce succulent oysters for their feasts.

TODAY THIS ancient operation is still being carried on in all its simplicity but with one slight difference. The California oysters must first be imported.

Both the Ostrea Gigas, the big Japanese oysters, and Ostrea Virginica, an Eastern oyster, are grown and since the larvae of both species needs water temperatures of 70 degrees to survive, the actual breeding is impossible in the fog-rimmed chilly bay waters.

Go to Bed in the Mud

In Japan, where warm currents make conditions ideal, empty oyster shells are made to form festoons on wire supports. Dangling in the water, they attract the microscopic larvae swimming and floating in the balmy sea searching for a spot to call "home." Finding the security of the shells, they firmly attach themselves to begin their three-year cycle which usually ends on the half shell as a restaurant delicacy.

The tiny oysters arrive at Tomales Bay 400 bushels at a time with bedding scheduled once a year. March and April have been found to be the most successful months.

AFTER ARRIVAL, the oysters are spread around on the muddy bay bottom which forms a protection by keeping the oysters from sinking too deeply or being swept away by the tides. Three years after planting, the Ostrea Gigas is large enough to harvest.

The picturesque wooden stakes which form circular and zig-zag patterns along the tidal shores of the bay are really the "walls" of the of the "bedrooms." These are erected, not to keep the oyster in, but as a safeguard against the marauding sting ray that knows a tasty tidbit when he finds one.

Many of the oysters are sold to tourists and visitors in the area from roadside places of business. They average three to four inches in size and usually can be bought for $1 a dozen.

The real oyster convert eats them raw dipped in vinegar or lemon juice. The majority of persons will probably appreciate their gastric delights to better advantage if the oysters are dipped in cracker crumbs, beaten eggs, then cracker crumbs again and fried gently in corn or peanut oil.

HOW TO Make a Mosaic Table Top, Using Colorful, New Type Vinyl Tiles

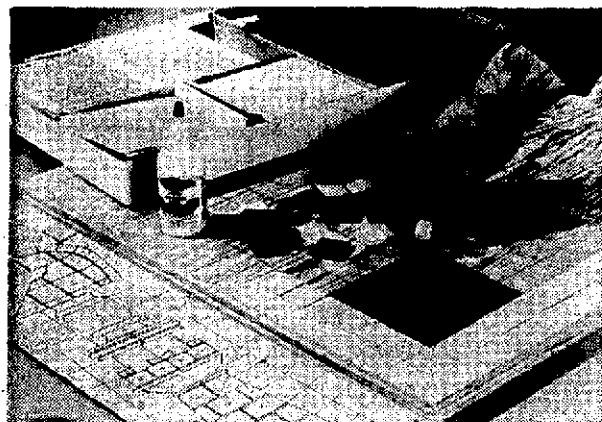

1. BUY THESE small squares of vinyl tile premounted on a sturdy paper backing. Cut a piece of hardwood as large as your table top. Route out a square the size of the tile mat, about half the tile thickness.

2. SPREAD TILE cement generously in the routed area. Lay the tile mat, backing and all, keeping about 1/16-inch clearance on all sides. Roll the tiles smooth.

3. AFTER SANDING edges of top, apply plywood edging tape to match top veneer. Remove tape backing, apply solvent with small brush. Stick tape to edge, press it down with hot iron.

4. AFTER FINISHING the rest of the top, work grout into the spaces between the tiles. Remove excess grout with a damp sponge. Finish tiles with non-yellowing varnish.

5. COMPLETE KITS of vinyl tile in pre-cut patterns are available. Apply the tiles to plywood with white glue, leaving space for grouting. Grout and finish in same way as other mosaic tops. Use wood strips for edges.

Make This Tool Center

By Steve Ellingson

NECESSARY to every modern home is a good-looking, efficient tool center, and the one pictured with this article and displayed by Bill Leyden of NBC's "It Could Be You" show meets the requirements.

The back is of masonite pegboard, providing for hanging tools in orderly fashion on inexpensive accessories. Cabinet at top stores nails, glue and miscellaneous items. Bottom drops down to form light work bench. Bottom shelves hold small items.

This tool center was made with birch plywood, but the pattern suggests a number of other materials which may be preferred. There are any number of places in every home where this cabinet may be used. And girls, you may like it in the kitchen for your cooking utensils. It's very easy to build when you use the full-sized pattern. Just trace the pattern on wood, saw out the parts and put them together.

To obtain the full-size wall tool center pattern No. 247 send $1 in currency, check or money order payable to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Lo, the Not-So-Poor

One of many tourist attractions in Palm Springs is two-million-dollar Palm Springs Spa on natural spring site.

By Cliff Brown

LO, THE POOR Indian—but not in Palm Springs where a small tribe of Agua Caliente Indians own 30,000 acres of the most valuable sand on anybody's desert. During its years of development, this desert spa has grown up on white man's land, which is just about exhausted. Realtors are hard-put to find a sizable tract of land for any type of large development.

Future growth must now turn to the Indian land, which for years, has been tied up in governmental red tape. Recent congressional action has freed the Indian land for outright sale or long-term (99-year) lease.

THERE ARE two classifications of land now held by the Indians: Tribal lands which are held in trust by the United States Government for the Indians, and land allotted to individual Indians. On the allotted lands, an inequality existed, which has now been adjusted by an Equalization Act; and the allotted holdings of the Indians have been reviewed. Consequently, each member of the tribe now possesses land valued at $335,000.

Until August 1955, Indians were not permitted to lease their land for more than a five-year period. This prohibited any substantial development on Indian land because of the short-term lease.

Resulting from Congressional action in 1955 extending the lease period, the first real estate transaction of its kind in the history of the United States took place in Palm Springs when a group of Chicago businessmen leased eight acres of tribal land for the construction of a $2,000,000 spa.

The Agua Caliente (meaning "hot water") Indians took their name from the natural hot water springs that have been bubbling out of the ground for centuries. This site, with its clump of palm trees, was a natural oasis and is now occupied by the Palm Springs Spa.

NO EXPENSE was spared to convert this historical site into what has been acclaimed "the most beautiful bath house in the world." Embracing a free form of modern architecture based on the baths of ancient Rome, the Spa presents many unique features utilizing the natural hot springs and mineral wells.

As one astute travel writer exclaimed, "it is now possible to be taken to the cleaners in Las Vegas and for a bath in Palm Springs," the latter, much to the glee of lo, the NOT so poor Indians.

Avalanche!

way avalanche protection service that same year.

Prompt and organized rescue operations are necessary to save a buried avalanche victim. Persons have lived as long as a week while buried. However, they are usually either killed by crushing, or die within a short period from exposure, shock and suffocation.

INVESTIGATIONS of numerous avalanche accidents indicate that two hours is the average survival limit. Snow is porous and ordinarily contains sufficient air to support life, though not consciousness. After two hours, an ice mask, from condensation of the victim's breath, forms an air proof seal around his face and he suffocates. Rescuers must get the victim out within the two-hour time limit. However, rescue operations are continued at least 24 hours, for in some cases the victim may be in a life-sustaining air pocket.

Actually, a person in the direct route of one of these white tides of destruction, which sometimes exceed a speed of 100 miles an hour, can do nothing to save himself. It's a bit like a trapped man attempting to throw himself out of the path of a thousand stampeding elephants. He can't stem the frenzied rush or even protect himself. He can only hope desperately that a kindly Providence will save him.

DURING THE past few years, private organizations, state governments, and several federal agencies concerned with transportation or other activities in danger zones have become increasingly interested in methods to evaluate and control snow slides. All of them are contributing to the reduction of avalanche-caused deaths and property damage.

Unbirdlike Bird

Strange, flightless bird that may be a "living fossil" is the kiwi, native and the emblem bird of New Zealand.

By Edith Ess

TO BIRD lovers, the kiwi, native bird and emblem of New Zealand, seems the most unbirdlike. It is a peculiar looking creature and its legs seem to be where the tail should be, but isn't.

Flightless because the wings are so small they cannot be seen outside the body, it is covered by a mass of hairless feathers of brownish grey with blackish streaks, except for two bare spots on each side.

The kiwi's sense of smell is highly developed, and an interesting feature is the nostrils which are at the end of a long bill, with which he smells out the worms and insects on which he feeds. With the bill close to the ground, the bird looks as though he is using a cane or crutch, while the three toes on the strong legs are fitted with heavy claws and he stamps along with a heavy tread.

This is believed by some, to make the worms think it is raining which entices them to the surface.

THE BILL is often eight inches long and in drinking the kiwi must dip the bill to the base, it is then tilted almost straight up.

In defending itself, the kiwi kicks forward like an ostrich and the heavy claws could make a deep wound.

This strange bird roams only at night, sleeping in burrows under the roots of trees. The nocturnal habit may account for the kiwi's poor eyesight.

The bird is a surviving relative of the extinct moa of New Zealand and is possibly a "living fossil" and may well be a "dwarf" specimen of the moa.

Of all the kiwi's characteristics, however, none is so strange as the size of the egg. Although the bird is only about the size of a chicken, the egg sometimes reaches a length of more than five inches.

THE MALE bird builds the nest but the female will help burrow the nest hole, when, after laying one egg, she will leave the incubation to the male, who has been known to incubate for a week without leaving the nest for food or drink.

The call of the kiwi is a whistle, that of the male high pitched and of the female guttural.

Kiwis are jealously guarded by the New Zealand government.

Trees Say 'Welcome'

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHEN THE new gardener arrived at a certain home he had a wonderful time getting acquainted with all the bushes and shrubs as well as the lawn. Recently arrived in America as a refugee, he seemed to love working with the green things in his new country.

One morning he knocked at the door and asked the lady of the house if she minded if he trimmed her "welcome trees." She asked him to please identify them for her.

"You know, the welcome trees," he explained solemnly. "Lots of houses here in America have welcome trees."

STILL WONDERING what he could mean, she stepped out of the house and followed him down the walk to the gate. He stopped beside the two small junipers in redwood boxes. "I trim these," he said proudly, "if you let me."

Happily she complied, and the trees were soon properly cropped and manicured to extend the hand of fellowship to all the guests.

Aptly had he identified the juniper, for they do serve to say "hello" to guests when they first arrive in the yard at many homes. At festive occasions how their greenery furnishes a happy touch in decorations over the mantel, or on top the bookcase.

Yet the phrase "welcome trees" does not have to be confined to this variety. Trees themselves perform the welcoming function in the garden.

"WELCOME," say the trees to the birds as they fly overhead.

Even the winds find a welcome as their soft breezes rustle through the limbs of shade trees over the playhouse roof. Sunlight finds a welcome spot to glitter as it meets the shiny leaves of the trees which surround the fish pond.

One of the best ways to make sure the home says welcome to friends and pets is to see that trees are planted as soon as the home is occupied. In sunlight and shadow they will offer welcome beauty.

Scotch Cheesecake

Broth of a girrrl! That's Susannah York, Scotland's contribution to motion pictures, who will be making her film debut playing a Scotch lass in "Tunes of Glory." Press fact sheets about Susannah include these pleasantly interesting statistics: 36-24-36. She was brought up in Ayrshire and plays the role of the defiant daughter of a hard-drinking, hard-swearing officer of a Scottish regiment, played by Alec Guinness. John Mills, Dennis Price, Kay Walsh and John Fraser have prominent parts in the Lopert Pictures Corp. production which is in Technicolor.

Level Up Glads

Most growing things will grow straight up no matter how you plant them, and a bulb planted upside down will usually make it to the surface eventually.

it on a slant and it grows on a slant, which can be especially discouraging to the unsuspecting gardener. To insure level planting, be sure to start a glad in the direction you want it to grow.

 medieval Erin, John Hanna or Hannah of Ireland, whose descendants moved to Ohio, settled in Ligonier Valley, Westmoreland County, Pa., about 1770.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze BOHN. — F.B., Paramount.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain MULCAIRE and MULCARE? — L.H., L.M., C.V., Long Beach.

L.H., L.M., C.V.: MULCAIRE and MULCARE were once the Irish O'Maoil-Cheire, an old prehistoric clan-name describing "Sons of the Adherent of Saint Clar." Clar, an early baptismal name, meant "black." The Clann O'Mulcheir were natives of County Galway in old Erin.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain DREYER. — J.D., Long Beach.

J.D.: DREYER or DREIER, a German surname, goes back eight centuries to an artisan ancestor who was an expert carpenter. A "Dreyer" was a lathe-man who made furniture on a hand operated lathe. No coat-of-arms is accessible for this family.

For a very special birthday, a tiered cake with one of layers holding glasses for a toast, adds magic touch.

FOOD

Special for Birthdays

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

WHEN A PARTY marks a birthday, a tiered cake can add a gala touch, especially when one of the layers hold glasses for a toast. Liqueur glasses may be used if placed firmly in the icing, or use special glasses with a spike-type base.

Coconut or chocolate cakes are the favorites in most homes. Delicate Cake is a southern specialty.

Feather light, it has a filling of icing blended with nuts, raisins and candied cherries. The frosting tinted a pale pink is applied in deep upward swirls which seem to make the cake look higher.

Tier cake pan sets are available in the housewares sections of department, hardware and variety stores. The set consists of 4 pans with diameters of 4", 6", 8" and 10" for perfect balance.

Delicate Cake

- 1 cup butter
- 4 cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 6 cups sifted cake flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 10 egg whites (approximately 1 1/2 cups)

Line tiered cake pans with paper. Cream butter; add sugar gradually; beat until light, fluffy; add vanilla. Sift cake flour, baking powder, salt together; add alternately with milk. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold beaten egg whites into mixture. Pour batter into prepared pans; spread evenly. Bake the 2 small layers 25-30 minutes; 2 larger layers 35-40 minutes at 375°F.

Filling and Icing

- 4 egg whites, unbeaten
- 3 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1 tablespoon white corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- Few drops red cake coloring
- 1/4 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup chopped raisins
- 2 tablespoons chopped candied cherries

Combine egg whites, sugar, water, corn syrup in top of double boiler; beat until well blended. Remove 1/2 of mixture to bowl; add nuts, raisins, cherries; use as filling between layers. Use remaining icing on sides and tops of cake.

Misery in Disturbia

THE SPLIT-LEVEL TRAP

by Richard E. Gordon, Katherine E. Gordon and Max Gunther (Bernard Geis, $4.95): After all we've been reading about jerry-built housing, our first reaction to this title is that the status seeker who bought a ranchhouse in Suburbia is about to have it collapse about his ears. We'd be wrong. It's Suburbia, yes, or what these writers—the Gordons are mental-health authorities—prefer to call Disturbia. It isn't just the house that collapses, however, but a way of life. According to the Gordons, if you want to be a normal, contented, productive, commendable husband, wife or child, your chances are better if you live in a settled small town than in a fast-growing, up-and-coming "pushy" Irvington-on-the-Scarsdale kind of antechamber to the Big City. They matched the ailing ills of bustling Bergen County, N. J., to those in a rural New York area, and their statistics prove you're much more apt to have a mistress or lover, never pay attention to the kids, go mad with unpaid bills, fly off the handle or jump the track if you live in Bergen than in the truly rural areas. The eight case histories involve ulcers, heart flutters, a peeping Tom, a wife who starts falling in love with other men, a successful husband who keeps wanting to fling himself beneath the train, the drinking failure. If you love misery, you'll never forget this one.

OUR PRESIDENTS—their tasks, their wives and their health—are the subject of three new books. The role that sickness and health played in molding the characters and influencing the actions and decisions of America's chief executives is told by Rudolph Marx, M.D. in "THE HEALTH OF THE PRESIDENTS" (Putnam, $5.95). Many little-known and interesting facts about the former Presidents are brought to light. "A PRESIDENT'S ODYSSEY" (Harper, $3.95) is a firsthand account of President Eisenhower's 100,000 miles of travel in the closing phase of his career to bolster the free world and turn back the anti-Americanism. It is authored by Merriam Smith, dean of White House reporters. . . The lives of our Presidents and their wives, from George and Martha Washington to John and Jacqueline Kennedy, are traced by George E. Ross in "KNOW YOUR PRESIDENTS AND THEIR WIVES" (Rand McNally, paper, $1.50). Two-color sketches by Seymour Fleishman, plus photographs, illustrate the text.

"STAY YOUNG & VITAL," by Bob Cummings (Prentice-Hall, $3.95): This movie and TV star who admits he is on

RICHARD COLLIER

London-born Richard Collier, best known for his "Ten Thousand Eyes" and "The City That Would Not Die," has written a tender, nostalgic book about the solid, middle-class English home in which he grew up between two World Wars. "A HOUSE CALLED MEMORY" (Dutton, $4) also is of the people—well-mannered, gentle-behaved—of that house. The time was in the 1920s, but the era was spiritually closer to Victorian, as Collier points out, than the 1920s are close to the 1960s.

a lifelong health and energy "kick" believes that most people can be "fed back to health." He deplores the fact that Americans are overweight and underfed. He believes that health is related directly to nutrition—he goes in for the seven basic foods, he eats nuts and seeds for between-meal snacks, he thinks there is a relation between fresh salads and sex potency. He urges vitamins, minerals, exercise, sufficient sleep, interest and a positive outlook on life.

"THE FOXES OF THE DESERT," by Paul Carrell (Dutton, $5.95): In World War II there were many cagy, ruthless, dedicated foxes of the desert but for historical purposes there emerges only one—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel whose single-minded purpose was to capture Tobruk and the Suez. For a while, in the spring of 1941 it looked as if he might do it. Those who remember the bitter months when the great German master of desert armored warfare battled the pick of British commanders—Wavell, Auchinleck, Montgomery and then Eisenhower, will read this book with rapt interest. Carrell has written of the siege of Tobruk, Rommel's push when the Afrika Korps captured Mersa el Brega and Agedabia, the desperate battle of Halfaya (Hell-fire) Pass, the tank battle on the Gazala front, Alam Halfa and El Alamein, and the bloody campaign in Tunisia. It is a tale of commanders, strategy, and it also is a story of men and pitiless desert. The humbling of Rommel by fate and the crazed Hitler are unforgettable chapters.

"SAGEBRUSH SERENADE" by Allan Vaughan Elston (Lippincott, $2.95): Western historical novels continue to roll from the typewriter of Elston, Santa Ana resident. His novels about frontier days total more than a score. This one, centered in Douglas, Wyo., in 1887 is about Max Norman, a New York law clerk-gambler who comes to Douglas to woo a local school ma'am before she finds out she is to inherit a million dollars. He incurs the enmity of the Hafer Brothers; gets drawn into murder, blackmail and kidnapping. Max has to choose between fighting for law and order or going in with the crooks. He decides, in a dramatic climax that is some of Elston's best writing.

"MENTAL HEALTH OR MENTAL ILLNESS?" by William Glasser, M.D. (Harper, $3.95): Humans are born with two basic groups of needs: physiological needs, food, air, water, warmth, sex; psychological needs, love, social relations, achievement. These needs do not change because of age or environment. Satisfied, the person likely will be psychologically normal. Deprived, he may go off the deep end, and require psychological, psychiatric or even institutional care. Dr. Glasser, Los Angeles psychiatrist, frequently consults with the California Youth Authority in knotty problems of rehabilitating adolescents.

"THE DOWNS, THE ROCKIES—AND DESERT GOLD" by Helen Downer Croft (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $5): Ranging over the Great Basin, this is a story of Thomas Downer, who came from England too late for easy panning in the Colorado gold rush, and his sons, Malcolm and Roger. Mrs. Croft was born in the mining town of Ouray, Col., where she twice has served as county judge. Roger Downer was her husband.

CHECK THIS LIST of paperback originals (first time to appear in book form) for fine reading:

"THE SAVAGE SALOME" by Carter Brown (Signet, 35c): Private eye Danny Boyd gets mixed up with a gorgeous blonde, a six-foot redhead and murder.

"THE GIRL IN THE GOLD LEATHER DRESS" by Victoria Kalich Morham (Signet, 35c): The story of a beat coed at a California university, by a Southland writer.

"EREWON" by Samuel Butler (Signet, 35c): The story of a new world, created by a master satirist.

"DEATH ON THE ROCKS" by John B. West (Signet, 35c): Steele streaks through another fast-paced round of murder.

"THE CIVILIZATION OF THE RENAISSANCE IN ITALY" by Jacob Burckhardt (Mentor, 75c): Edited, and with an introduction, by Irene Gordon.

"THE DIARY OF A MADMAN AND OTHER STORIES" by Andrew MacAndrew (Signet, 50c): A blend of broad comedy, to weird fantasy by the man universally regarded as the father of Russian realism.

"THE NEW AMERICAN CROSSWORD PUZZLE BOOK" by Jack Luckoff and Albert H. Morehead (Signet, 35c): Eighty-four brand new brain teasers to challenge your mental agility.

GOING PLACES With the Sloanes

BRAZILIANS say that God is a Brazilian, and off-hand you might think Chileans would agree with them.

To the gringo who knows Chile mostly from a map and a social studies book, few places seem less blessed by fate or nature.

It is a country never any wider than the distance from New York to Washington, yet as long as the United States is wide. It is only 30 per cent arable and its southern third deteriorates into a maze of islands and waterways. Its north is a vast sand waste.

The Andes, reaching up to 23,000 feet, dominate the land. Devastating earthquakes and tidal waves wrack it periodically and volcanoes smoke menacingly, erupting on terrible whim.

From its comparatively meager population, it can claim neither colorful Indians nor pure Castilian background as founts of culture; the Indians were long ago all but wiped out, and there are nearly as many blond, blue-eyed English and Germans, not to mention Italians, French, and Yugoslavs, as there are Spaniards.

But the Chileans have found lemonade in their seeming lemon. Broad green valleys relieve the mountainscape. The lakes and streams curling through the mountains ripple with trout that grow to 30-pound weights, and you can use an old shoe for bait to catch game fish in the Pacific. From the volcanoes' mouths skiers plunge down perennially snow covered slopes.

WITHIN sniffing distance of the smoke wafting from the volcano called Villarica, nestles an unlikely hotel called the Antumalai, Indian for "corral of the sun."

Three times a week these summer months, a LAN-Chile DC-3 waddles in for a landing.

Discharged passengers fall into the hands of one Willy Pollack, an enterprising Czech who operates Pucon's only three motor vehicles, two telephones, and one functioning hotel, which he designed and built himself.

The ranch-style 20-room Antumalai may be the last place in the world where you can really get away from it all, as former guests like Barry Goldwater and Adlai Stevenson, who really had problems to get away from, can testify.

Perched on a flower-strewn ledge 100 feet above a sylvan lake, it spreads over and blends serenely with the landscape. There are neither room keys nor numbers on the doors, musical brooks flowing through rock gardens provide the only entertainment, and the salmon and trout in Lake Villarica the only worthwhile challenges.

CHILE'S MOST famous magnet is Vina del Mar, a pastel carbon of the French Riviera that overlooks the Pacific on a terraced cliff outside of Valparaiso, 120 miles from Santiago.

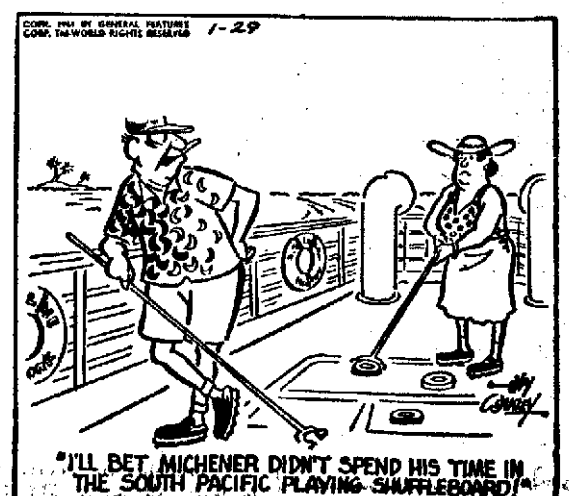

A few miles to the north, along a road that snakes between beaches piled with jagged rocks and steep sand dunes dotted with brush, lie the villages of Renaca, Cochoa and Con-Con.

At low tide you can dig your own clams out of the sand or buy them along with abalone and purple-shelled crabs from roadside stands. Barefooted fishermen lay out their nets on the shore and children bundle dried seaweed for sale as food. Beyond, where the misty peak of Aconcagua looms, broad arms of virgin beach stretch far along the coast.

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

"I'LL BET MICHENER DIDN'T SPEND HIS TIME IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC PLAYING SHUFFLEBOARD!"

Phoenix: The City That Thrives on Tourists

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

TEN YEARS AGO, agriculture was the big source of income for Arizona's capital, Phoenix, and its "Valley of the Sun."

Wise Phoenixians now will tell you that each tourist equals two bales of cotton, and is twice as easy to pick.

The influx of tourists and a boom in industry—both gigantic in their proportions—have made Phoenix one of the three fastest-growing cities in the United States. The other two are Houston and Denver.

This phenomenon is best observed from the skies and I, with 79 other travel editors from all over the country, got an eye full as we swept down from 35,000 feet for a landing in one of Trans World Airlines' new Convair 880 SuperJets.

This eagle's view clearly shows how Phoenix has sprawled out from 17.1 square miles in 1950 to 188.4 square miles as of the day we landed.

"As of the day we landed" because City Manager Ray Wilson says the city's belt-line is widening almost daily to accommodate the scores of new families arriving each month to live. And, once here, they stay. Phoenix's population in 1950 was 106,818; today there are 450,000 within the city limits, almost a million in the metropolitan area.

OUR SKY PREVIEW of this magic layout was convincing, but exceedingly brief. That's because the Convair 880, with a maximum cruising speed of 615 m.p.h., is faster than any other commercial transport.

It's so fast, in fact, that with a tail wind in normal flight, you can sometimes see a grey line dancing back and forth over each wing. This is the shock wave as this astonishing air palace attains the speed of sound.

When he came in for the landing, the pilot simply consulted his instruments—the latest and most accurate science has come up with—and "took aim" at the airstrip. (I'm being facetious, of course; but you get the idea.)

The 880 takes off just as easily. Leaving Los Angeles International, we were off the ground in 26 seconds, and were climbing phenomenally.

This is the same plane which in early 1960 sped cross-country from Los Angeles to Miami in three hours and 31 minutes, attaining ground speeds up to 779 m.p.h. as it set a new trans-continental record.

(INCIDENTALLY, the 880 is a medium-range ship. Its four General Electric turbojet engines each pack 11,200 pounds of thrust. There are 85 combination first-class and coach seats. The air-conditioning maintains a constant 75 degrees and changes every two and a half minutes. There is no rumble or vibration to betray the plane's exterior sound, which is absorbed by a thick fiberglass lining inside the extra-heavy, one-eighth-inch outer hull.)

But to get back to Phoenix's consuming affair with the tourist: There are accommodations for 43,000 visitors daily in the area, including Scottsdale, "the West's Most Western City." In this array are such nationally-known resorts as Camelback Inn (now observing its 25th anniversary), the Arizona Biltmore, Shadow Mountains and Jokake Inn, augmented by scores of first-class resorts and hotels.

Combine these with an almost ideal climate nine or 10 months of the year and a multitude of things to see in central Arizona, and you can see why people just naturally return Phoenix's warm embrace.

THREE DAYS in Phoenix and we were off to Las Vegas. Even though we were there on a weekend, the "Strip" resorts were uncrowded (Thanksgiving to Christmas and January and February are supposed to be the duller periods). But notwithstanding this fact, Grandma was there, playing a slot machine with each hand, and ducats to the big shows such as The Lido (Stardust) and Follies Bergere (Flamingo) were a little hard to come by.

(Actually, Las Vegas business is better, tourist wise, than a year ago; probably about 5 per cent, according to the operator of one "Strip" resort hotel).

But those who fail to get out on the desert during the late winter and spring months are missing a good bet. The weather is wonderful—not too hot and not too cold.

That's something Grandma couldn't say about the slot machines!

THE LARGEST Mardi Gras tour in its history—departing Feb. 5 by special streamliner from Los Angeles—will be conducted by Random Tours. The 250 people on the two-week escorted tour will visit Salt Lake City, Denver, Chicago, Louisville, the Mammoth Caves in Kentucky, the ante-bellum homes and Bellin-grath Gardens in Mobile, Biloxi, New Orleans, Dallas, Carlsbad Caverns and Grand Canyon, and never change their Pullman accommodations. Travel agents have complete information.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"What about the night life in Hong Kong? Is there really that hotel that is the scene of 'The World of Suzie Wong'?"

NIGHT LIFE is fair grade—(but not up to Tokyo with its 1,500 night clubs). The Hong Kong night clubs are not too exciting. Chinese playboys usually play in the dance halls. Dimly lit, excellent Filipino orchestras, and very pretty Chinese dance partners. ($1.80 per hour and you should tip her a little, too. They speak English.)

Tenochy Ballroom is probably the best. On that Suzie Wong hotel—that is Hotel Luk Kwok at 67 Gloucester Road, the Hong Kong side.

The management has heard of "Suzie Wong." But apparently thinks she was one of their girls who was using an alias.

Anyway, when I asked, they said: "Suzie Wong, she come back next month."

At the ballrooms, they hand you a list of the girls—looks something like a menu. You check the name of the lady. And if she's not busy, she sits with you (at $11 Hong Kong per hour). I noticed on the list there was a "Suzie Wong." But when I talked to her, I found she had never heard of the book or movie.

This same sort of dance-hothead action is the custom throughout the Orient. It ranges from pretty poor to pretty elegant. Some of the Tokyo clubs are spectacular: Orchestras going up and down on slow, open-faced elevators, gorgeous decorations—and Filipino bands are some of the best in the world.

"... and anything you can tell me about the night life in Manila..."

AN EXPENSIVE town. And probably the poorest of all night life towns. The major clubs are along Dewey Blvd., the street fronting Manila Bay.

They are all about the same. Good orchestras. Bored-to-distraction Filipino dance hostesses. The clientele is apt to be a little on the violent side. So stay out of arguments.

The most interesting thing about these Manila clubs is that most of them stay open 24 hours and work three shifts—three orchestra shifts and hostess shifts. (Though some close between 5 a.m. and 8 a.m.)

You can step out of the hot sunshine on Dewey Blvd. into a booming, dark, air-conditioned night club with everybody in evening dress. All this at 9 o'clock in the morning. It is quite startling.

"... also what is doing in Singapore..."

Another smaller Hong Kong. Possibly more emphasis on lower class places.

"... and anything that makes good presents."

American comic books on the romantic side. That Archy series is good. That's for Manila, Hong Kong and Singapore. Not for Tokyo.

Tokyo is more sophisticated. I think the best thing you can carry there for the present is a pocketful of Japanese yen (360 to $1 U.S.). This is another expensive place.

PET PARADE

Canines to Caper

By Eleanor Avery Price

DOGS OF MANY popular and some lesser patronized breeds will be on display today in the midwinter show and obedience trail of Orange Empire Dog Club at Orange Show grounds in San Bernardino. A special event will be the appearance of Sam the Shaggy Dog, canine performer under the handling of Bill Koehler, prominent movie dog trainer.

If you are interested in exhibiting your dog in an American Kennel Club licensed show, start on solid footing. First, your dog must be purebred of an acceptable breed. Your best proof of the recognition of your dog is its AKC registration paper.

If your dog does not have this paper, do what you can to obtain one. In the meantime, you can enter your dog, in three shows only, as listed. Listing privileges are sometimes extended, but the AKC will want specified details about your dog and your attempts to obtain registration.

SEND FOR a pamphlet, "Rules Applying to Registration and Dog Shows" published by the American Kennel Club, 221 Park Ave. South New York 3. This covers in detail various classes in which you can enter a dog and other valuable information.

Contact the dog show superintendent for this area, Jack Bradshaw, 727 Venice

—C. Lydon Lippincott

Merry Title Page (r.) and Am. and Mex. Ch. Merrywood's Candy of Pintura, U. D. and Mexican P. U., Shetland sheep dogs, shown with Clare Lippincott of Orange Empire Dog Club. Candy is only Sheltie with such fine record.

Bldg., Los Angeles 15, Calif. and ask to be put on mailing list for licensed dog show premium lists. These cover all-breed shows and specialty shows authorized by AKC to carry "points" toward championship titles.

Be accurate when filling out entry blanks in the premium lists. Your dog must be at least six months old on the day it is to be shown.

PLACE YOUR ENTRY at least two weeks before show date. In return you will receive an identification card, judging program, ring number, entry number corresponding to your bench stall if show is benched, and an admission ticket.

Show items you will need are a "bench chain" with a snap and swivel at each end (toy breeds may be in cages), a show lead and a slip collar.

Take along a grooming brush, comb, a cloth or two and a towel.

Exhibiting a dog requires that it be properly conditioned and groomed. Only a healthy, spirited dog will look and show well.

Obtain advice on ring procedure such as posing your dog and gaiting. Join a dog club near you that trains novices and be willing to learn. Since there are faults that might disqualify your dog, get an expert to advise you and read up on standards as presented in AKC's Complete Dog Book which is sold at cost upon application.

'60's Most Photographed Woman

By The Shutterbug

ALTHOUGH the public probably has seen few pictures of her, pert Karin Levin is more than likely the most photographed woman of 1960.

Karin models for Eastman Kodak's film testing studio in Rochester, N. Y. and posed this year for approximately 80,000 still photographs and for countless scenes on a quarter of a million feet of motion picture film.

While the thousands of pictures probably establish Karin as the most photographed woman in the world, they really have an important technical purpose. Photographic technicians search constantly for new methods to make color reproductions more pleasing to millions of professional and amateur photographers. Because Karin has near-perfect features and unusually photogenic skin pigmentation, she is used as a standard with which color qualities of film products are compared. Studied for pleasing rendition of skin tones, the test shots help Kodak maintain close control over both current and experimental films.

KARIN'S NATURAL coloring and charm have not gone unnoticed outside the studio. She was selected "Girl of Today" on a television show. She was chosen Miss New York State in 1955. That year she was runner-up in the Miss World and Miss Universe beauty contests.

She is proud of her contest record but adds, "It got to be people recognized me only in a bathing suit."

photographic illustrations during her high school summer vacations and started work for the film testing studio in 1959.

Her day-to-day assignments are far from routine, because film products must be tested under a variety of conditions. In the course of a day, Karin might pose for both still and motion pictures, indoors and out, in snow or sunshine. The still pictures usually show her smile. The movies give her a chance to pantomime.

KARIN'S USE of cosmetics is somewhat different from that in standard modeling. She uses only a minimum of make-up. She also tries to minimize sun tan—despite a keen interest in golf and skiing—in order to maintain constancy of the color standard before the camera.

The task of posing for so many photos daily and smiling patiently for hours makes Karin no less cheerful about answering modeling questions. Her advice to gals who want to appear their best in their boy friends' snapshots is, "Forget the camera is there. Think pleasant thoughts."

Away from her Kodak job, Karin, who has been married for five years, likes to catch up with homemaking chores and spend time outdoors with her husband, a steel salesman. He's handy with a camera, she says, and takes pictures on their ski trips.

So weekdays and weekends, too, she continues to add to her grand total of pictures as the world's most photographed woman.

YOUR GARDEN

Stocks Pay Off With Fragrance

By Bob Gilmore

STOCKS are undoubtedly the most fragrant of all our winter annuals. Their perfume is heavy and permeating and just a few spikes will perfume your house like a florist shop. In addition, the colors cover a wide and interesting assortment of shades.

Stocks are at the head of the list of those flowers that perform well in our mild winter climate. Actually, throughout Southern California they may be classed as hardy annuals. Wind, rain, grey skies and little sunshine do not prevent the plants from giving out a profusion of bloom. As a matter of fact, one variety, the Giant Winter Nice stock has been named because of its ability to flower during this part of the year. You can expect blooms just ten weeks after sowing the seed.

HYBRIDISTS have done a great deal during recent years to improve stocks. This is due largely to the fact that stocks are such a prominent florist subject. Many of the new varieties being introduced each year are the product of Southern California seedsmen. Stocks are one of the most important flowers handled by the Los Angeles Flower Market which incidentally is one of the largest in the United States.

There is no reason why you should not be able to grow prize-winning stocks in your own garden. Their demands are few and the weeks immediately ahead will prove ideal for the culture of this splendid winter annual. Several types are available and which one you select is largely a matter of personal choice as well as the purpose for which the plant is being grown.

FOR SPECIMEN blooms or indoor decorative purposes, the Double Giant Column stock will prove most exciting. The plants produce just a single spike, rather than several laterals as is the case with other types of stock. But this single stem is almost a complete flower show by itself. The central spike is almost completely covered with huge double florets, many times larger than the usual type. In addition, the florets appear in almost solid masses throughout the length of the stem.

For general decorative purposes in the outdoor garden the Giant Winter Nice stock is perhaps most suitable. The flowers appear about as early as any comparable strain and the plants attain a height of about 1½ feet at maturity.

THE ONE "MUST" to be considered in growing stocks is the matter of drainage. The plants must have excellent drainage. They are quite sensitive to excess moisture; should the roots be in standing water for any length of time a large number of casualties may be expected. Heavy

Prune Geraniums

Geraniums grow like weeds in California's favorable climate, but that doesn't mean the gardener should treat them as such. Leave them unpruned year after year and they will soon look like weeds.

Prune them back drastically to two or three buds above the ground level. They will put forth lush new growth and look better than ever by summer.

Pruning Display

How to prune deciduous trees will be demonstrated free of charge Saturday, Feb. 18, at the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia. Hours will be 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

The event is planned for the particular information of home owners and will be given in the deciduous orchard. Visitors should enter the main gate for transportation to the pruning site and should have footwear suitable for rough, possibly damp soil. Various fruit trees will be included in the demonstration, as will young trees for forming and production.

In case of rain, slides and motion pictures on pruning will be shown in the arboretum lecture hall at 10 a.m. Feb. 18 and the actual pruning will be done Wednesday, Feb. 22, at 10 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m.

Amarcrinum enjoys a long period of bloom, makes a long-lasting cut flower.

Evergreen and Pink

By Joe Littlefield

A MARCRINUM, a bi-genetic hybrid of Crinum and Brunsvigia (amaryllis belladonna), once established begins to blossom in June, and continues through November, often into December. A husky clump furnishes spikes of flowers continuously five to six months of the year and the clump stays green the year around.

The fragrant, pink blossoms make good cut flowers. Once a spike begins to flower, it will continue to bloom for 10 days and longer. The blossoms, from 12 to 18 on a spike, open at intervals, not all at once. This continuing flower development prolongs the blooming far beyond expectations from amaryllis and other lilies.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . One of the most attractive ornamentals for this area, and of fairly recent popularity is the Hawaiian fern. The foliage is a shade of light green and the plant is unbeatable for use around swimming pools, patios and as a specimen plant. It is also widely used for foundation planting.

Many varieties of camellias are now coming into bloom.

Purchasing them now will provide a wealth of bloom for many months. The plants require shallow planting and plenty of moisture. A mulch of peat will aid in conserving moisture, preventing soil cracking and keeping the roots cool.

The Croft lily, often called the Easter lily, will flower in May and June if planted now. The blooms are trumpet-shaped, pure white and wax-like in texture.

Flowers, VIPs at Camellia Show

Camellia Societies in Central and Southern California are joining with the Los Angeles Camellia Council to stage Camellia Wonderland, sixth annual camellia show at Disneyland Hotel, Feb. 25 and 26.

More than 800 varieties of camellias will be on display at the show with the two-fold purpose of honoring guests from all parts of the world attending the 1961 Annual Convention of American Camellia Society and to raise funds for a portable pavilion for flower shows in Southern California, according to R. W. Ragland, chairman of the Los Angeles Camellia Council.

Four professional flower arranger organizations of the area will have exhibits. They are the Flower Arrangers Guild of Southern California, the Floral Designers, Poy Wranglers and Lee Artists.

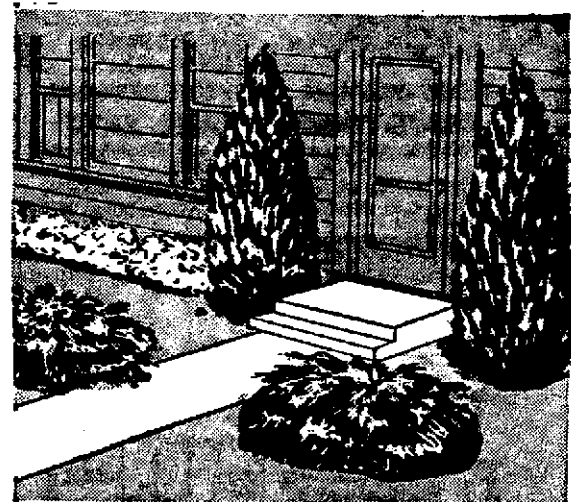

de Flores del Valle de San Gabriel.

Special events at the opening show at 2 p.m. Feb. 25 will be the presentation of a new camellia variety named Disneyland to Walt Disney; "Camellia Court" featuring Terri Janssen, "Miss California" of the Miss International Beauty Contest, 3:30 p.m. Feb. 25; "Peter Gunn Solves the Great Camellia Mystery," with Craig Stevens and Alexis Smith, 3:30 p.m. Feb. 26; trophy presentations and drawing for station wagon, Feb. 26.

Tickets for the two-day event can be purchased for $1 from W.F. Goertz, 15805 S. Main St., Gardena.

soils can be neutralized by using the new soil conditioners or by adding liberal quantities of humus such as peat to the soil.

There is a fast and slow way of growing stocks, depending on how much of a hurry you are in and also whether or not you wish to save a few cents. The quickest and perhaps more expensive way of growing stocks is to purchase established seedlings at your neighborhood nursery; if you are not in such a hurry . . . and want to save the money . . . then sow seeds. Stocks germinate quite easily and you should experience little trouble with the latter method of propagation.

Early spring (January or early February) in our climate is usually the right time for pruning peaches, apricots and other deciduous fruit trees. But don't prune nectarines as severely as you do peaches.

Grape vines should be pruned quite heavily.

Avocado trees should be pruned just enough to shape them and to cut out the dead wood and suckers.

Fig trees require a small amount of pruning, usually just enough to cut the new growth to within three or four inches of the old growth or until you get the tree shaped as you want it. After that, prune just enough to keep it that way.

Citrus trees should be pruned just enough to keep the suckers out of them but they can be pruned anytime through the season.

WILLIE TOOMER
A Man? Hardly

PEOPLE WHO meet Willie Toomer for the first time can't be blamed if they blink a little.

Expecting to be greeted by a man, they are surprised to discover that Willie is a pert, 5-foot, 3-inch woman.

Willie (she was given a boy's name because her parents expected a boy when she was born) is the owner of the smartly modern Rig restaurant at 2951 Cherry Ave., in the heart of Signal Hill's oil well district. She opened the place last October, financing it with savings obtained while she worked for 14 years at the Paramount Cleaners on E. Broadway.

Although she had no restaurant experience before opening The Rig, Willie has learned fast. Due to its fine food and service, The Rig has been popular since its opening, attracting throngs for breakfast, luncheon and dinner.

Among Willie's innovations are seven unusually pretty waitresses who do not wear conventional waitress uniforms. Instead they are garbed in fancy cocktail dresses and high heels. By coincidence, four of the girls also have boys' names. They are Jimmie Popejoy, Van Van Langingham, Phil Martin and Joe Reynolds. The other three, who somehow manage to get by with girls' names, are Gloria Lomax, Caroline Hudson and Shirley Olmstead.

Equipped with a large dining room, cocktail lounge and a banquet room (for parties up to 35), The Rig has total seating for 150 persons. A specialty of the house is prime rib au jus ($2.95) served with soup du jour or salad, baked potato topped with sour cream or butter, another vegetable and hot rolls. Other entrees include broiled top sirloin ($3.25), filet mignon ($4), New York cut, ($3.75), southern fried chicken ($1.95), broiled lobster tail ($2.50) and broiled swordfish ($2).

Open from 7 a. m. to 2 a. m. daily, The Rig serves Sunday dinners from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

'Full Circle' Soap Opera's Last Stand

By VERNON SCOTT
(UPI Hollywood Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD — Last stand of soap operas, chased from radio and evening television, is daytime video where housewives can set aside the vacuum cleaners and cry their eyes out over sundry dramas.

Among the most tear-provoking of the bunch is "Full Circle," the story of a 21-year-old Maryland girl who gives advice to women twice her age on how to run their lives.

This is something of an affront to housewives in that the girl, Lisa Crowder, gets into more hot water than her viewer's aprons.

Thus far her checkered career has included singing in night clubs, selling pot holders, destroying her best friend's marriage and running away with a convict. And this has been going on for almost 200 episodes.

STARRING AS LISA CROWDER every day, five days a week on CBS-TV (channel 2 at 1 p.m.) is Diane Cannon, a girl who doesn't dig soap operas.

Telecast JFK Talk

President John F. Kennedy's "State of the Union" message to a joint session of the 87th Congress will be telecast live 9:30 a.m. Monday on channel 7.

Tapes of the speech will be presented by channels 2 and 4 at 11:30 a.m. Channel 11 will telecast the message at 3:30 p.m.

Two radio stations, KNX and KABC will carry the address live at 9:30 a.m.

The talk, expected to take about 45 minutes, will basically be concerned with the international situation and major domestic problems.

"I never watch them myself," the taffy blonde actress said. "I haven't got time."

"But we try to keep the show believable. Naturally, every show ends with a cliff-hang of some sort and we have to elaborate a little bit on reality. But our audience is the most loyal in television."

"After all, women don't want to tune in to watch me cook potatoes just like they do."

DIANE, WHO BEARS a strong resemblance to Brigitte Bardot, aspires to higher levels of show business, if for no other reason than to escape her killing schedule. She must memorize 30 pages of dialogue each night for "live" production the following day.

She works 10 to 12 hours daily, and lives in dread of "flubs" which are common on live shows.

"The worst thing that happened was a segment in which the actor I was starring with went from his first speech in an 11-page scene to the last one in the first 10 seconds. So I had to improvise for five minutes while we were on the air," Diane recalled.

"THEN THERE WAS THE TIME a lamp fell on me . . . and once the scenery crashed over behind us. I could go on and on, but I hate to think about it."

Though she isn't a soap opera fan, Diane defends the art form.

"I don't care what people say, our show is adult. We accomplish in one day what the old night dramas, like 'Climax' used to do in three weeks," she said.

"People in TV are scared of the words 'soap opera.' They think it means 'Will John leave Mary?' Well, there's much more to it than that."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The Play of the Week—which, in my opinion, is Southern California's best television drama series—this Thursday tells a story of rape.

It is not a sugar-coated epic. Near the beginning, the tempo of the tale is set by Ricardo Montalban, portraying the bandit Tasmoro, who says:

"I saw a woman's face. In that first moment I made up my mind to take her even if I had to kill the man."

The play is called "Rashomon," the name of forest gates in Kyoto, Japan, the setting of the play. The time is about 1,000 years ago.

It's an adaption from an original story by Ryunosuke Akutagawa and first came to the attention of the American audience as a Japanese film. Subsequently, it was a successful Broadway play.

I previewed "Rashomon" last week and came away from the special screening captivated by the power of the production. It will be aired 8 p.m. Thursday on channel 13.

OSCAR HOMOLKA, WHO PORTRAYS a ghoul who robs corpses of their hair to make wigs, has never, in my memory been better.

In one scene, commenting on a woodcutter's faith in Buddha, he scoffs:

"You are still hoping for some heavenly hocus-pocus to turn the stink into incense."

This is not a debonair Homolka. He's tattered, filthy and looks as if he's just come from robbing a grave. He is to be loathed—but not his masterful performance.

Neither is Montalban debonair.

"I kill to live to eat and to have pleasure," he boasts. And when he has taken his pleasure in the play, he turns to the weeping woman he's attacked and says:

"You can boast of it when you're an old hag—you were once raped by the famous Tasmoro."

As you may have guessed, this is strictly adult fare. Don't however, think that it is peek-show obscene.

It is what publicly men tritely blanket as a "psychological drama." It is, simply stated, a study of people.

It is the people who are important. The act of rape is secondary. What happens to the people afterwards is first.

CAROL LAWRENCE PORTRAYS the rapist's victim. The part demands tremendous depth of feeling. Miss Lawrence handles the demands admirably.

It is in speaking—not of the rapist—but of her husband that she is most impressive.

"It seemed he never looked at me except as you look at a window and past it," she says.

If there is a weakness to the play, it is in the fight scenes where duels between the bandit and the husband appear a little too rehearsed and inhibited.

Notwithstanding this weakness, "Rashomon" is a strong, powerfully emotional play.

Powerful plays, not discounting the power of humor, have been the rule for "The Play of the Week."

Channel 13 (KCOP) was the first station in the nation to buy it in its syndicated form. Fifty-nine other stations followed suit.

THE FIRST PRESENTATION in Southern California was "Medea," aired March 24 last year. "Medea" recently won the International Television Dramatic Award.

Produced now by National Telefilm Associates, "The Play of the Week" originally was aired by an independent television station in New York in October 1959.

Sponsors, because of the controversial nature of many of the plays—rape is less controversially typical than religion—initially were reluctant to be identified with it.

By contrast, top actresses and actors were anxious to appear in the productions.

Helen Hayes, for example, could readily garner $7,500 for an easy guest-smile appearance on most TV variety programs. She chose, instead, to take $750 for hard artistic labor in one of the plays.

When "The Play of the Week" was in early danger of going off the air, TV critics came to its support. And so, finally, did sponsors.

In the Southland, Al Flanagan, general manager of KCOP, reports "The Play" currently is making money for his station although it costs about $10,000 a week to air it.

Viewer response to "The Play" has been "overwhelming," according to Flanagan, although it is not the top rated in its time slot.

It is not infallible. While most of the productions have been high successes, when "The Play" has a flop, the depth of the crash is just as spectacular.

It has always, however, managed to escape the stigma stamp of mediocrity.

JANE WYATT WATCHES TV CHILDREN'S CAREERS

Jane Wyatt Misses TV 'Father Knows Best' Clan

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—What happens to a television star when her entire family is "wiped out" over night?

Jane Wyatt had that happen to her when "Father Knows Best" was yanked from the air. Comparing it with the loss of a real family isn't entirely superficial, either.

Jane, in the role of Margaret Anderson, lived and worked with her TV family five days a week, 12 hours a day for six years. The highly-rated show was a way of life for the cast. They became closer than most real-life families.

"The family feeling still hangs on with me," Jane said. "And it will take a while for me to get over it."

"I TRULY HAD a feeling of living a double life with two families. I treated the children on the show as if they were my own. Lauren Chapin was only 8 when we began. Billy Gray was 15 and Elinor Donahue a fresh, young 16."

"Bob Young and I watched them grow up, helped them along and suffered with their minor problems. Those things don't fade easily."

Jane, whose soft, gentle manners remind one of the role she played for so long, said she had hoped the series would continue until she and Young became TV grandparents.

"Then the kids could have carried on the show by themselves with only occasional visits from Bob and me."

The program is in prime-time reruns now on CBS, but no more "Father Knows Best" shows will be made again.

Nevertheless, Jane keeps in close contact with the "family."

"I SEE MORE OF BILLY than the others," she said. "He stops by the house regularly and brings along his new wife, a beautiful Italian girl he met in Rome. He's 22 now and a wonderful boy. We talk as if he were my own son. (Jane has two boys of her own.)"

"Lauren is in high school now and very busy being a teenager. She doesn't seem to miss acting at all. She calls to tell me about her current boy friends."

"Elinor is very much engrossed in her new series, 'The Andy Griffith Show' and I don't see as much of her as I would like to."

"She is a lovely, sensitive girl. I'm very fond of her." Jane keeps close watch on the careers of her TV offspring, and also is concerned with Young's future.

"Bob is starting a new series soon, and I'm dying to find out what it is all about. He calls me once in a while and we gab on the phone for hours."

Jane works occasionally, collects residual checks from the reruns and says emphatically, "I don't want to think of another series right now. I need more time to get away from being Margaret Anderson."

EDITOR'S NOTE: This week marks the observance of the 150th anniversary of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, one of the world's great medical centers. It is fitting, therefore, that one of MGH's most distinguished physicians, Dr. Howard B. Sprague, takes this occasion to look toward the future. Here he makes some warm and penetrating remarks concerning the well-being of his own grandchildren, and of grandchildren throughout the U.S.

Dear Grandchildren:

YOUR GENERATION is fortunate because you are the inheritors of the progress of modern medicine. Your life expectancy is greater than that of any preceding generation.

Yours will be an exciting world. You'll probably be able to see the man in the moon up close. But still don't abandon the old, worthwhile ideas. Don't become too disturbed about things you cannot change. Don't exhaust yourself trying to avoid life's inevitable hard knocks.

I hope that you are bred for gumption and that you won't look for the snap courses in school. Man lives by challenges, prospers by encountering them, and this serves as an index of his dignity.

I hope, too, that you won't feel hard work is lethal. If we fear hard work and the stress accompanying it, we'll have a very feeble civilization to compete with those that are out for our hides.

By the year 2000 there'll be a rather tight squeeze in this country. The population is booming and space will be at a premium. So I urge you to get a piece of land you can call your own. A backyard will do. This may be as important to your health as anything else.

Perhaps most important of all: don't surrender your freedom to become a security-conscious free-loader through life.

SO MUCH FOR a healthy philosophy. What about illness itself? In your generation the words "cancer" and "heart disease" probably will not be as ominous as they are today.

Science is revealing the secrets of cancer, and it is entirely possible that by the time you are grown to adulthood there will be ways to prevent at least certain types of cancer.

Pretty much the same holds for heart disease. I do hope, however, that none of you becomes overweight, particularly in early adult life, because that is potentially dangerous to your heart.

Research in heart trouble is showing that there are some genetic factors involved. That is, heart disorders seem to be linked to genes, the fundamental "stuff" of life. We are beginning to believe that these genetic factors can be altered and thus the disease might be prevented.

Hopefully, by the time you are adults, we will have found a way to decrease the incidence of rheumatic fever and congenital heart problems.

Proud author huddles with three of thirteen grandchildren.

If we succeed, there will be less need for corrective heart surgery. If we fail, we will have done a pretty poor job.

THIS DOESN'T MEAN that you should become careless. People will continue to become sick in the future. I'd advise you to get some good hospital insurance because hospital costs will continue to increase. In Boston, for example, private rooms in the year 1970 may cost something like $65 a day.

Ours is a medical family and we ought to understand what a doctor really is. I believe that a doctor is an inspired maintenance man. This business about love of humanity is too amorphous and vague for me. Medicine is a career I hope you will consider because it can provide great satisfaction and delight.

Get used to dealing with teams of doctors. The trend in medical care is toward big medical centers at the core, with teams of doctors practicing in their "office-islands" close to each center even in our smaller and medium-sized communities. This is the way it's got to be if you are to benefit from all the complex advances of modern medicine. The team approach, too, will permit you to spend more time with the doctor who can serve you best.

ACTUALLY, THERE ARE four basic health problems you will have to face in your world. They are the threat of atomic war, accidents, emotional disorders and diseases of old age.

The threat of the atom is always present; of course. But you cannot despair. Defeatism breeds sickness.

All I can say about accidents is this: always drive with the belief that everyone else on the road is stupid.

Develop your sense of independence. If you do, you will have taken a positive step toward preventing emotional disorders.

Never say you're not interested in something. Be interested in everything. I truly believe that this is helpful in the prevention of emotional disturbances. Don't settle for being spoon-fed through life. If you do, you'll never really know how rugged you are.

—HOWARD B. SPRAGUE, M. D.

THERE'S A BOOM IN PHONY MONEY

by U. E. BAUGHMAN with FRED BLUMENTHAL

Chief, U.S. Secret Service

Parade Washington correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE MUCH PUBLICIZED flow of gold from the United States is not the only threat today to the integrity of the dollar.

There is another danger—an increasing one—right here at home, which is causing Secret Service men to work around the clock. It is the menace of the counterfeiters, the men who think Uncle Sam should not have a monopoly on manufacturing his own money.

Traditionally currency counterfeiters were the elite of the criminal world, highly skilled engravers and printers of their nefarious craft. But today modern methods of photography, printing, paper faking and reproduction, plus jet-age speed of movement, have opened the ranks to hundreds of "amateurs" whose phony money is every bit as dangerous to the nation as the work of the old masters.

Until recently, when counterfeiting still depended on laboriously hand-engraved steel plates, the Secret Service, whose job it is to protect your money, uncovered about 150 counterfeiting operations a year.

Protecting the Dollar

Today we are faced with tracking down the sources of about 600 new issues of bogus money, an alarming four-fold increase. The Secret Service can say with pride (and for the benefit of would-be counterfeiters) that we are holding the flood of fake money in check, thanks in large measure to the cooperation of the public. But the tide is continuing to rise, and public awareness must rise with it if your dollar is to be safe.

For despite all the ingenuity of modern police work, rapid communication and detection devices such as the spectroscope and the ultra-violet ray, the public still remains our best source of information.

Remember: Your money is your business. Watch it.

Nations have fallen to the wiles of the counterfeiter. Fake money in large quantities can be as damaging to a nation as any atomic bomb.

The art of counterfeiting is as old as money, but modern counterfeiters fall into two categories: the small-time operator working alone or with one or two henchmen, and the organized gang equipped to turn out and distribute large quantities of bogus dollars.

Today, with more money than ever in the hands of the public, the bulk of the counterfeit bills is in 10s and 20s. Their makers feel these denominations show the best yield for the least risk.

Even so, the profits of counterfeiting are remarkably small, the risks enormous and the penalties severe—up to 15 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Last year the Secret Service arrested 412 counterfeiters and passers, and only a handful had been operating more than a month or two. In many cases the counterfeiters, their equipment and their printed "money" were seized before a single note could be put on the market.

The economics of a typical gang operation are roughly as follows: Depending on volume, the manufacturer receives 10 cents on the dollar, the wholesaler and distributor each get another 10 cents and the remainder goes to the passer. He gets about 70 cents, but his costs are enormous and he lives under great tension.

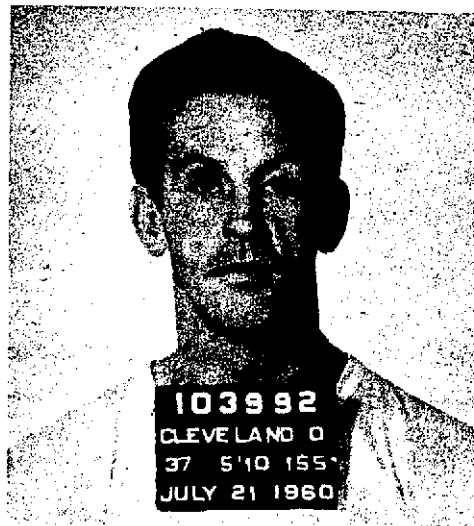

He must be constantly on the move, hopping from city to city, passing notes usually one at a time in exchange for goods he frequently has no use for and in general cannot resell. All this must come out of his take. The nerve-wracked passer during his short period of freedom is lucky if he also clears 10 cents on the dollar. A surprising number of passers turn to excessive drinking under the pressure.

The case of Hugh A. Lynn, broken only a few months ago, is typical of a large-scale gang operation. It reveals how an issue of phony notes can spread across the country. It also reveals the perils and risks run by Secret Service agents and counterfeiters alike.

Across the Country

Lynn's gang passed its first phony $20 bill in Wellsburg, W. Va., on June 11, 1960. The next day Lynn's 20s appeared in Toledo, Ohio, and the day after that in Detroit, Buffalo and New York City. By the end of June, only 19 days after the first note had appeared, a total of $23,040 of Lynn's counterfeit was in the hands of the Secret Service. Of that amount, $18,700 had been seized before it could be passed and $40 came from outside the United States.

The month of July saw the passing spread rapidly to other areas, all the way from Los Angeles to Jacksonville, Fla. By this time 22 Secret Service field offices were on the trail of Lynn and his men and the net

Hugh A. Lynn: For a fee of $10,000, he offered a course on how to make fake money. His "pupils": Secret Service agents.

How to spot counterfeit bills

The Secret Service, with its 59 field offices, always stands ready to protect your money. But here are some simple rules for detecting counterfeit bills yourself:

Genuine—Saw tooth points at rim are even and sharp.

Serial numbers: Counterfeit—Poorly printed, badly spaced, uneven in appearance.

Genuine—Figures firmly and evenly printed, well spaced.

Paper: Counterfeit—Generally has no color threads, but this may be imitated by very small red and blue ink lines.

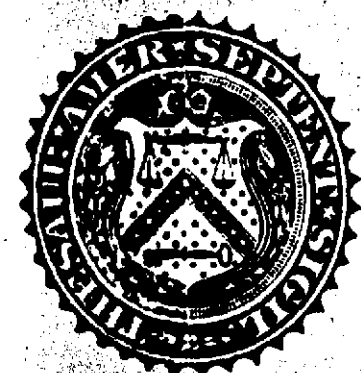

Genuine—Printed on distinctive paper in which very small red and blue threads are scattered. The threads are not always noticeable on bills that are badly soiled and worn.

Rubbing a bill on a piece of paper will not prove it is genuine or counterfeit. Ink can be rubbed from good bills as well as bad ones. If in doubt about a bill, never hesitate to take it to a bank, police station or experienced money handler. Never try to pass on to someone a bill you know or suspect is phony. You may be liable to prosecution.

If you get money from a stranger, look at it.

Not all strangers are counterfeiters but all counterfeiters are likely to be strangers.

To know more about your money—and help the Secret Service to beat the counterfeiters—write for the pamphlet Know Your Money, Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C. Price: 20 cents.

was closing. Lynn himself was arrested in Youngstown, Ohio, on July 19. By July 22 a total of 21 passers were in custody. The whole nationwide operation had lived only six weeks.

Lynn was trapped by two Secret Service agents who risked their lives by posing as crooks eager to get into the counterfeit racket. After several meetings, they so convinced Lynn of their underworld credentials that he agreed to give them an intensive three-day course on how to make phony money and set them up with the necessary equipment, paper and ink.

His fee: $10,000 in good money!

As a generous gesture Lynn told his two "pupils" they could keep all the notes they made during their training period.

He was shocked and hurt when, as he showed them how to make a plate, he was arrested.

One batch of Lynn's 20s had a curious history. Urban Johnson, a passer, suspecting we were on his trail, threw a paper bag containing $8,000 into a roadside ditch. Some days later the bag was found by a member of a prison road gang. He shared it with three other prisoners who, like himself, were due for release. They had spent only a few bills when they were picked up.

Meanwhile Urban Johnson had been arrested for drunken driving. Other phony bills, which he had thrown from his car, were quickly traced to him.

Lynn, the high-priced teacher in the art of counterfeiting and mastermind of the ring, is now serving 10 years in the Federal Penitentiary.

A somewhat different case was that of an ex-army captain, 37-year-old John M. Simpson of Newark, N.J., a lone-wolf operator specializing in $5 bills. He took up counterfeiting as a "challenge."

His career lasted only 11 days, during which time he passed $65 bills in Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York. Simpson took his "work" seriously. He spent hours in libraries reading technical books on printing, photography, paper, ink and the history of counterfeiting. When he thought he had learned all he could about the technique, he set to work and printed approximately 1,000 $5 notes.

The Reluctant Bridegroom

In an attempt to age them he used such unlikely material as sun-tan lotion, weak tea and a cola drink. But Simpson was not happy with the quality of his first issue nor with the result of a cost analysis he prepared. This showed that if he passed all the bills he prudently could, his traveling expenses would leave him with a maximum income of $100 a week.

Selecting 150 of his best notes, he packed the rest, along with some of his equipment, into a metal can and tossed it from a bridge into the Passaic River. He thought it would vanish in the mud forever, not reckoning with a strong current that washed it ashore in a matter of hours. There it was found, opened and delivered to Secret Service agents who, step by step, traced it back to Simpson. He was arrested last August 26 in Savona, N.Y., just as he was getting ready to go to his wedding rehearsal. He still had 92 of the counterfeit $5s in his possession at the time of his arrest.

Lone-Wolf Simpson is now serving a seven-year sentence.

Not all the counterfeit money is made to be passed to the public. Confidence men use it to impress the gullible by flashing a big roll and persuading them to put up an equal amount of good money in some get-rich-quick venture. Gay blades and lotharios sometimes use counterfeit to dazzle the eyes of their lady friends. The Mexican police recently turned over to us an American sailor who had passed fake bills on a drunken spree in a border-town bar. The sailor admitted making his own money but insisted that he did so merely to impress his buddies. He had genuine money on him at the time of his arrest and said it was only because he was intoxicated that he had peeled the wrong bills from his roll.

Even some businessmen in difficulty have resorted to fake money to cover shortages or to use as collateral. They feel safe because they have no intention of putting it in circulation. The money is there to be shown, usually at a distance, to unsuspecting associates.

But almost inevitably something goes wrong and their scheme falls through.

Knowledgeable possession of counterfeit money is a criminal offense punishable by the same penalty as counterfeiting itself—15 years and a $5,000 fine.

Up in the Big House

The wiles and ingenuity of the counterfeiters are endless. Fake bills have even been made in prison. One-dollar notes have been bleached and reprinted as $100 notes. Two convicts some years ago photographed onto steel plates the front and back of a genuine $20 bill—without a camera or any film. They made an emulsion from food and other items smuggled into them and smeared the plates with it. They then peeled the $20 bill in two and placed the oiled halves, now almost transparent, on the plates. They then held the plates up to the sun at their cell window, moving them back and forth to prevent the image of the bars being reproduced. Soon they had a photograph from which they could etch the steel.

Incredible? Using bleached $1 bills for paper, they went on to print 150 $20 bills with a household iron as their press.

This is a measure of the mind of the counterfeiter. He is resourceful, patient, persevering. With his new armory of modern reproduction techniques, he grows potentially more dangerous and more numerous every day of the year.

There has never been a perfect counterfeit U.S. bill. There never will be.

But with $32-billion worth of notes in circulation today, it is clearly impossible for the Secret Service to stamp out counterfeiting altogether. That would require policing every note that changed hands.

The record shows that the Secret Service can usually run the counterfeiters down in short order. But we must depend on an informed and cooperative public that knows its money. The counterfeiter is no hero. In blunt terms, he is a heel.

In the words of former Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson, "Counterfeiting is an offense never committed by accident, nor by ignorance, nor in the heat of passion, nor in the extremity of poverty. It is a crime expertly designed, by one who possesses technical skill and lays out substantial sums for equipment. It is not a crime of courage. It is a sneaking offense. It is a crime against the sovereignty, and it cheats small tradesmen and unsuspecting people who have not the skill or experience to detect the imitation." ■

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

A SMALL CHANGE in fashion is making big news for the little woman who hovers around the 5-foot mark. No longer does she have to wear childish clothes or spend her money on alterations. Designers now are making clothes in measurements proportioned to her height, with all the style and sophistication of regular misses' dresses. These newly sized fashions are called "junior petites," and go from sizes 3 to 13.

And crackers just naturally taste good with soup. That's Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup in our twins' soup bowls today. It's so appetizing, wholesome and nourishing and just makes you feel warm and good all over.

Have you had your soup today? Campbell's (M'm! M'm! Good!)

Q. How old is Greta Garbo, and will she ever film again?—Harriet Keller, Madison, Wis.

A. Garbo is 54. Hollywood doubts that she will ever return to the screen.

Q. I understand that in the past three years more than 3,000 secret documents of the West German government have been delivered to the Communist headquarters in East Germany. Is this true?—Gerhardt Hoehn, New York, N.Y.

A. Unfortunately, yes. Two messengers, Willi Knipp and Joseph Paul, employees in the West German Ministry of the Interior, photographed most of the secret files with a miniature camera, forwarded them to Communist authorities in East Berlin. Both men have been convicted of treason, sentenced to 10 and nine years respectively in prison. As a result a drastic security reorganization is now under way in West Germany.

Q. Who said: “There's only one bad thing the press can print about you—an obituary notice”?—Viola Sands, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Playwright Brendan Behan.

Q. When Kirk Douglas first suggested filming Spartacus, didn't the executives at Universal-International think Spartacus was the name of a detergent?—Kenneth Townes, Chicago, Ill.

A. Yes, according to Milton Rackmil, chief of Universal-International.

Q. What happened to an actress named Virginia Mayo?—Peter D., Erie, Pa.

A. She's been making films overseas.

Q. How come Romano Mussolini, son of the former Italian dictator, is regarded as the No. 1 jazz pianist in Rome when his father banned jazz from Italy as decadent?—Barbara Ralson, Miami, Fla.

A. Romano's elder brothers used to smuggle jazz records into Rome from Switzerland. Romano would listen to these intently while his father was off playing the violin for his mistress, Clara Petacci.

Q. Supposedly actress Laraine Day has never smoked, drunk alcohol, tea or coffee. Is that why she and her ex-husband, Leo Durocher, couldn't get along?—Bill Barash, Oakland, Calif.

A. The reason Miss Day does not smoke, etc., is that she is a practicing Mormon. Her marriage to Durocher foundered when Durocher developed other interests.

Q. Is it true that the Pope really has an automobile equipped with a throne?—Newman L., Santa Fe, N.M.

A. Recently, Fritz Koenecke, president of the Mercedes car company in Germany, presented Pope John XXIII with a special car that has a built-in throne instead of a back seat.

ON YOUR ROCKER

by OLGA CURTIS

Parade women's editor

DO YOU KNOW what has become the newest style in home furnishings? The old-fashioned rocking chair. Nobody is sure why we've revived the lazy art of just "a-sitting and a-rocking," but English physician R. C. Swan has a theory: he says that "rocking chairs provide exercise, encourage circulation, promote respiration and encourage sleep." And with no side effects, either!

Whether you want to improve your health or just forget the atom age with a few rock-a-bye daydreams, furniture makers are ready to help. For the first time in many years you'll find rockers prominently displayed in stores, in styles ranging from early American to modern.

As comedian Dick Van Dyke shows here, each type of rocking chair has its own kind of magic. In a few gentle creaks, the star of the hit Broadway musical Bye Bye Birdie plays imaginary roles from Daniel Boone to Sherlock Holmes. Switching rockers, he is alternately gay, thoughtful, debonair. The happy relaxation a rocking chair provides may be the secret of its comeback. The chairs here are priced from $42 to $90—pretty cheap for therapy or for daydreams. ■

Treats for the COOKY

by BETH MERRIMAN

THERE'S NO EXCUSE for a cooky-less household when you have recipes like these to turn to. All three start with a package or two of mix. Add another ingredient, or two or three, and you come up with something really different in the way of cookies. You'll have to keep them on hand for small visitors, tuck several in a lunch box or set out a plateful to meet after-school appetites and greet the neighbors.

Macaron-Oatmeal Cookies

Heat oven to 375°. Combine 1 package coconut-macaron mix and 1 package date bar mix (date filling mix and crumbly mix) with 1/2 cup hot water. Drop by teaspoonfuls about 2" apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake about 8 minutes. Makes about five dozen.

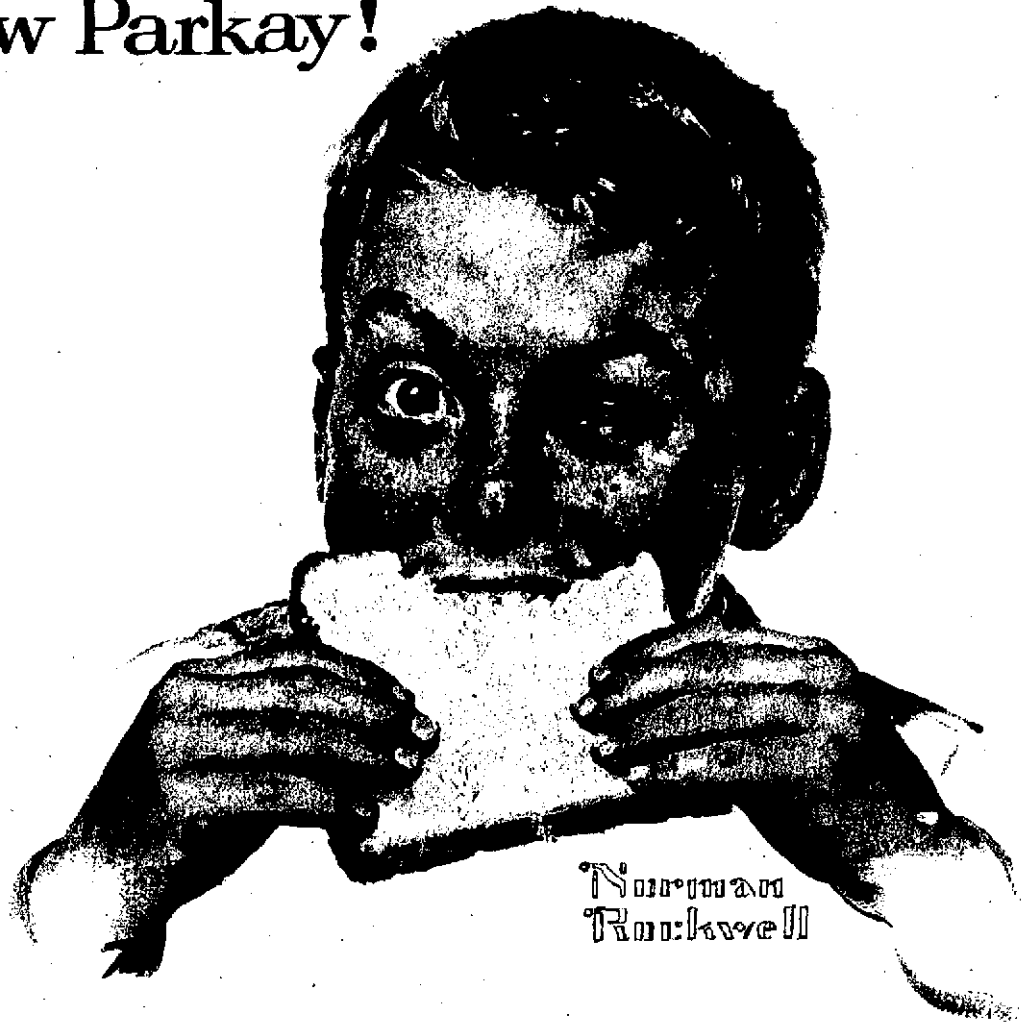

Date-and-Apple Cookies

Heat oven to 400°. Mix date filling from 1 package date bar mix with 1/4 cup hot water. Blend in crumbly mixture, 1 egg, 1 cup finely chopped apple and 1/2 cup chopped walnuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Makes about four dozen.

This brown-eyed, black-eyed boy knows goodness when he tastes it. The extra goodness he's tasting in new Parkay comes from a new Kraft flavor ingredient. It gives Parkay a sweet, delicate, natural goodness no other margarine has. And no other leading spread provides such extra nourishment either. In fact, new Parkay contains more Vitamin A, more Vitamin D, more protein and more calcium, than any other leading spread. New Parkay even contains important polyunsaturated liquid vegetable oils. Who but Kraft could deliver so much extra nourishing goodness at no extra cost!

Brownie-Peanut Cookies

1 egg
1/2 cup chopped peanuts
3 tablespoons peanut butter
1 package brownie mix
Heat oven to 375°. Add egg, chopped peanuts and peanut butter to mix. Blend with hands, adding a few drops of water if necessary. Press and make into long roll, about 2" in diameter. Slice 1/4" thick. Bake about 5 minutes on ungreased baking sheet. Cool slightly before removing from pan. Makes about four dozen.

Missionary family plans its return to Africa in temporary Indiana home. From l. are Annabeth Ellis, 6; Rev. Don Ellis; Becky, 3 (seated); Dane, 10; Mrs. Betsy Ellis, and Tonda Lee, 2.

Brutally attacked six months ago, this family heads Back to the Congo

by the REV. HILLYER H. STRATON

Minister, First Baptist Church, Malden, Mass.

FOR MANY AMERICANS, 1961 will be just another year, not very different from 1960. For Don and Betsy Ellis and their four children, however, 1961 promises to be a year of pioneering, potential danger, strife and uncertainty. They are resolutely looking forward to resuming life in the chaotic Congo—one of the most troubled spots in a troubled world.

Already Don, 34, an American Baptist missionary, is on his way to the new African nation. Betsy, 38, will wait impatiently for school to end in June. The next day, she and the children will end their exile in the U.S. and board a plane for the mission station 60 miles west of the Congo capital of Leopoldville.

Yet just six months ago, the Ellises were forced to flee the former Belgian colony in terror. In a raid by a band of mutinous soldiers, Don was clubbed, kicked and beaten and barely escaped with his life. Betsy was cuffed and suffered personal indignities. Little Becky, 3, was forced to watch the whole shattering episode.

The Magnetic Congo

After this terrifying experience, why in the world are the Ellises going back to the Congo?

"It's as though there were a powerful magnet pulling us back," Don says. "Our place is there. We feel that our lives were spared for a reason. God must want us to serve in the Congo."

Like the United Nations officials now striving to keep peace in the disturbed land, the Ellises believe that the Congolese desperately need help. The nation is woefully short of doctors, technicians, teachers.

But no one knows today what role Westerners and missionaries will be permitted in the Congo—or how much danger missionaries will be in simply because their skins are white.

Yet, like the Ellises, American missionaries are streaming back to the Congo. At the time Belgium granted it independence last June 30, more than 1,000 U.S. missionaries were serving in the new nation—more than half of them women. After the first outbreak of violence, all but about 250 were evacuated.

But today, the number is edging back toward 500.

In two years at Banza Manteke mission station Don and Betsy Ellis had fallen in love with the country and its people. When their youngest daughter was born, on Thanksgiving Day, 1958, they named her Tonda Lee—Kikongo for "Thank you."

A civil engineer as well as a minister, Don handled the station accounts, including a 230-man payroll, ran the hydro-electric plant, directed maintenance and repair of a fleet of trucks. He ran the carpentry school, taught algebra and physics in the high school and was director of 34 village schools in the area—the closest of them 60 miles away over unpaved roads. Betsy supervised the hospital laboratory and taught home economics in the high school.

Like many of the missionaries, the Ellises weren't involved in Congolese politics. On Independence Day, however, they joined the Congolese in a huge celebration. The missionaries furnished 40 pounds of beef, soft drinks and rice. The Congolese contributed a sheep and fruit and other food. They listened to radio speeches by Belgium's King Baudouin, Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu and Premier Patrice Lumumba. The men dug out flintlock muskets (the Belgians had forbidden modern weapons), loaded them with triple charges and banged away. The celebration lasted two days.

A week later, the first rumors of disorder reached the Ellises. The railroads shut down. Word spread that the Congolese army had rebelled, and everyone was warned not to travel.

Rumors and Panic

On July 11, the Ellises were startled to find hundreds of panicky Congolese streaming past the station in trucks and on foot. Refugees reported that the Belgians had dropped an atomic bomb on the port city of Matadi. Belgian troops were said to be "advancing this way, slaughtering all the Congolese they catch." No amount of persuasion by the missionaries could squelch these wild reports.

The next day, a native teacher told Don that Congolese soldiers had arrived at a Belgian sisal plantation seven miles away. At this moment a truckload of 25 soldiers pulled up outside. Don got up to greet them. As he reached the door, he heard his daughter screaming.

"I picked her up and one of the soldiers motioned to me to put her down," Don recalls. "They didn't speak Kikongo and I couldn't make them understand. Somehow I thought that as Americans we were immune. I tried to assure them there were no Belgians here. I half-opened the screen door. As I did, one grabbed me by the belt and others slammed me in the chest with a rifle butt."

At that point, Betsy arrived. "When I saw them attack Don, I screamed at the top of my voice," she says. "One of them began knocking me around with his rifle and beating me. They kept saying, in pidgin French, 'Belgian apes' and 'Belgian monkeys.'"

Prodded and pummeled, the two were driven outside. Don was knocked off his feet, kicked in the stomach, then dragged upright again. He was shoved toward the road. Betsy, holding onto Becky, was forced back into the house, where she was held prisoner.

Meanwhile, a soldier stripped Don of his watch. "He indicated he'd slash my hand off if I didn't give it up," Don says. He was marched, with three other missionary couples, to the road and forced to lie face down. The others—one badly cut about the forehead—lay down with him. One soldier trampled them, marching to and fro across their backs.

"I wasn't afraid, exactly," Don says, "I was just resigned. There didn't seem to be anything I could do. I remember a fellow missionary who once said he had a call to work, not to be martyred. If he should happen to be killed, he said, he wanted his tombstone to read: 'Here lies a man who didn't want to be martyred.' I kept thinking, as I looked at the soldiers, that I hoped mine would read: 'Here lies another!'"

The Beautiful Helicopter

Several native teachers tried to intercede, but they could not be understood by the soldiers and were brushed aside. Finally a Congolese teacher turned up who could speak the soldiers' dialect. He reminded them that Kasavubu and Lumumba had told them not to harm Americans. Sheepishly, the soldiers swung their guns away from the missionaries' heads.

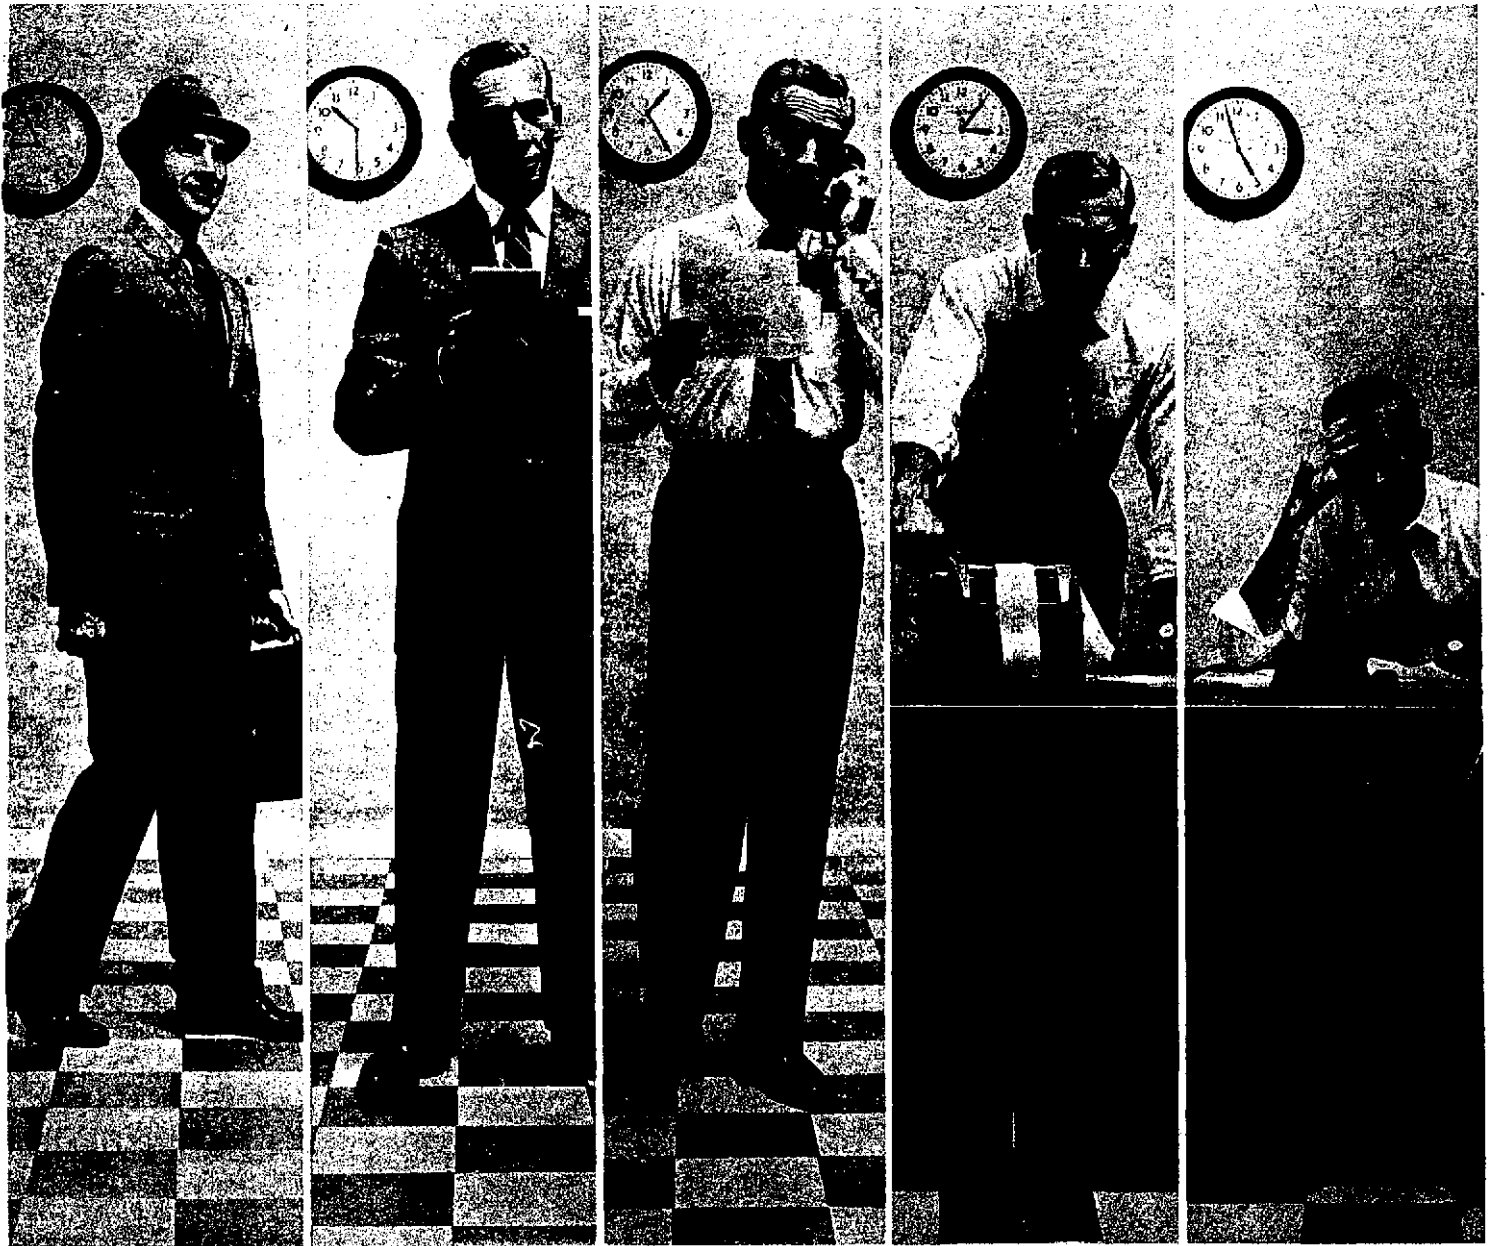

That night, the missionaries holed up in a house for mutual protection. The next day passed in ominous quiet, although the new Congolese administrator of the territory came to apologize. On July 14, still frightened, the station personnel were startled by what Don remembers as "the most beautiful and unholy noise I ever heard—a helicopter with a big U.S. star."

"That lieutenant seemed to have gold wings and the helicopter a halo," Don recalls. The helicopter whisked seven adults and 11 children to Brazzaville. From there they progressed to the U.S. to wait until the situation calmed down. In the meantime, Don accepted an interim pastorate in Bluffton, Ind., near Fort Wayne.

"But even when we were boarding the helicopter," Betsy Ellis says, "we were planning to go back. Certainly the situation in the Congo is still unclear. But it is hard to explain the call a missionary feels."

"It would be foolish to say I'm not worried," Don says. "After all I have a family, and they could be in danger. But the Congolese are our friends, and they need us. If my call to serve God was valid before, it is even more valid now."

Sally in 1933 wowed 'em with Chicago World's Fair fan dance.

The indestructible SALLY RAND

by LLOYD SHEARER

SALLY RAND is incredible. Here she is 58 years old and still doing her fan dance at $1,500 a week.

In supper clubs from Denver to Houston, from Toronto to Washington, she slithers across the stage, her marvelously preserved body provocatively undulant, her $500 pair of fans deftly covering and uncovering, her entire act designed to arouse a man's blood pressure and a woman's envy. And always succeeding.

How does she do it—continue to do it since 1933, when she and her wagging fans first broke in at the Chicago World's Fair?

She has never had her face lifted. No plastic surgeon has as yet renovated her body. She subjects herself to no crash diet. She uses no special cosmetics. And yet she exudes youth.

What is her secret?

"The secret of prolonged youth," she insists, "lies in the individual's refusal to conform to society's general attitude concerning time.

"For example," she asks, "why should any woman feel old at 50 merely because society expects it? So many of us are cowards to conformity. Why can't a woman radiate sex appeal at any age? The answer is she can. I think I'm living proof of that.

"To remain young in mind, outlook and spirit—and don't worry, your body will follow your mind—you must not identify with any era or time-segment.

What Society Expects

"Take the girl or the man freshly-married. Immediately he believes he's settled down and must act accordingly. Society expects him to develop a pot belly, so he develops a pot belly whether he wants one or not. His wife gives birth to a child. She becomes matronly, but not because she feels matronly. Maybe she feels more adventurous, more vital, more alive with love and enthusiasm than ever before, but this is not the way a married woman is supposed to feel or behave. Society expects her to generate a restrained, mature attitude, so she develops a broad bottom.

DODGE

Sally in 1961 poses in Las Vegas home. An art lover, Sally paints, reads poetry, collects recordings.

"Time is a man-made measurement, and it is subject to change by man. So why don't you change it for yourself right now? Why not say, 'I will never grow old'; or as I say to myself all the time, 'It's fun growing old, so long as you stay young.' By that I mean one gains wisdom with age, wisdom born of experience, but one must not anticipate physical degeneration. Accept it when it comes but do not anticipate it. Stay young in mind, in tune with the latest developments in living, surround yourself with young people.

"If you want to feel old, limit yourself to old people who are merely existing, not living. There are plenty of those. They congregate in retirement centers. Then there are people like Pablo Casals and Bernard Baruch and Lynn Fontanne and Leopold Stokowski and Sophie Tucker and Casey Stengel. These are the ageless people—happy, healthy and busy. There are also Joan Crawford, Irene Dunne, Barbara Stanwyck, Greta Garbo, Hedda Hopper—ageless because they won't conform to society's generalization about age.

'It's fun growing old, so long as you stay young'

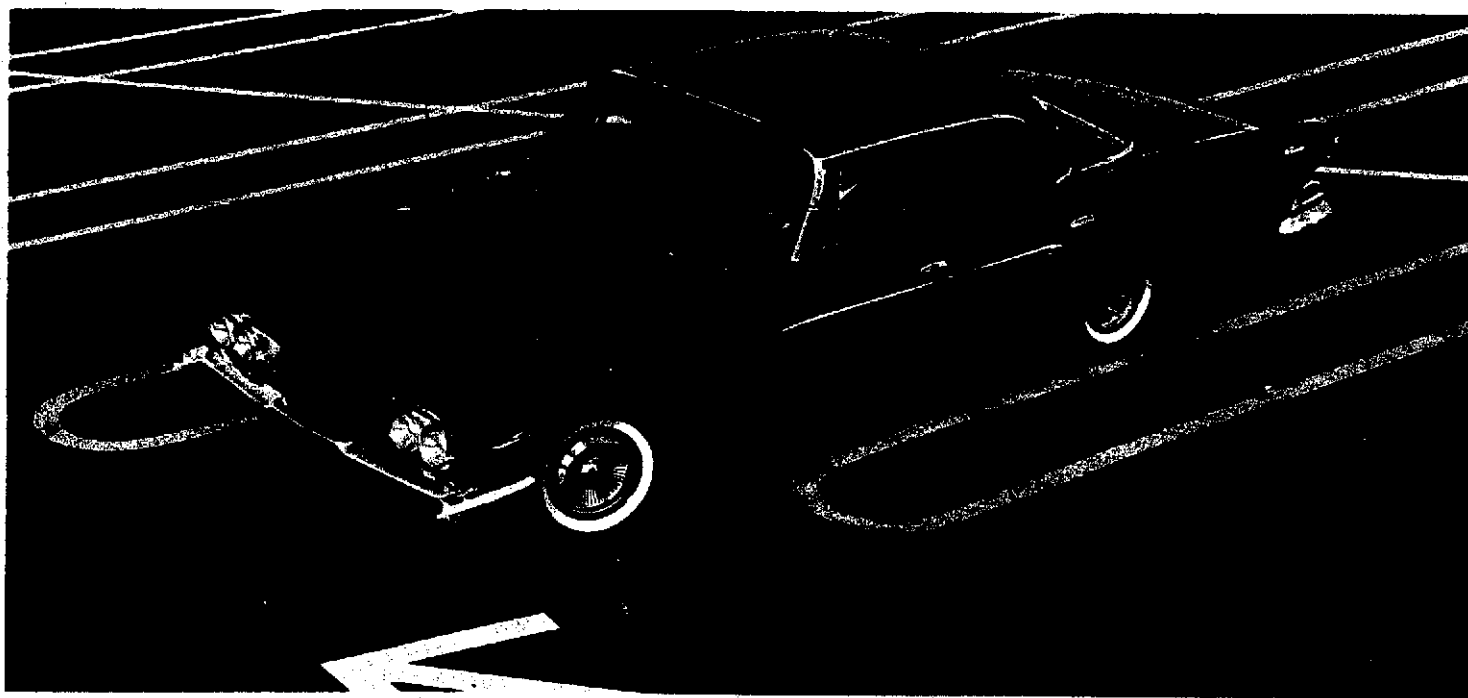

"All of these people are active either physically or mentally, or both. Activity is a requisite of youth. I work pretty nearly all the time. Without work I would wither. And the reason that I still work as a fan dancer is that it fills a psychological need for me.

"When I was a child of 8, my father, a colonel in the U.S. Army, in the cavalry no less, walked out on his family. He left me and Mother and a brother—it was a simple case of desertion—but to me it became more than that. It became a case of rejection. I never thought, 'Father has rejected Mother.' Never that. It was always, 'Father has rejected me, Helen Beck,' which is my real name.

"I grew up thinking that no man would ever want me, and that's why when I was very young I joined the chorus line. I hungered for some masculine attention, some masculine applause. I always needed and I still need to be loved and wanted.

"Off-stage, men regard me as matronly, a nice, pleasant, intelligent woman. But on-stage, whirling and twirling my fans, I become an object of their secret thoughts. And being able to do this does wonders for me. It's a kind of therapy. And I only hope I can keep it up forever. Because I must give love and be loved, for all my life I've been running away from rejection, and I just can't stop running."

SALLY RAND

Sex symbol of a generation ago, Sally Rand starred in films and B-movie spectacles.

Las Vegas audiences are fascinated by her famous fan act

From talking to her you get an idea of what the real Sally Rand is like. She is intellectual, bedeviled and eloquent.

Like many entertainers who make a living by showing their bodily charms—Gypsy Rose Lee is another prime example—Sally compensates by reading omnivorously and cultivating her mind.

She says she comes by this naturally, her mother having been a school teacher. Sally was born on her grandfather's farm in Hickory County, Mo., but at an early age was moved to Kansas City, where she attended grade school and then Central High School.

As a child she studied ballet. When she reached 13, however, she joined the Al and Lole Bridge Stock Company as an actress of sorts, later took the name Sally Rand from Rand, McNally.

Shortly afterward she entered vaudeville under the guidance of Gus Edwards. Mostly she danced and acted, and did well enough to feed and clothe herself. She was an attractive young woman, 5 feet 4, 116 pounds, with a well-turned figure that measured 35-23-36.

In 1932, when Chicago was preparing for its World's Fair, Sally acted in a play called The World Between. She recalls it as a critical success but a financial failure. "Hardly anyone in Chicago had any money," she remembers, "so I was reduced to dancing in small speakeasies. One day I was en route to the costumers when I spied a pair of large fans, the kind opera stars use. I had always wanted to do a dance with scarves or veils like Isadora Duncan—in fact I'd practiced a very ethereal dance modeled after the flight of herons on my grandfather's farm—but I was flat broke at the time."

Fans from Her Fans

"Anyway, I ordered the fans from a feather manufacturer in New York, thinking I'd be able to pay for them after working a few weeks for Frankie Howard at the old Paramount Club on Chicago's near North Side."

The manufacturer sent the fans C.O.D. but Sally didn't have enough money to pay for them. Fortunately, a few friends helped her, "so I opened at the Paramount Club on the Gold Coast for $75 a week.

While there I met a Chicago politician who told me he was going to have the beer concession at The Streets of Paris exhibition."

A day before the Fair opened she hired a horse and crashed the Fair as Lady Godiva, her long blonde hair covering the more revealing parts of her figure. The stunt made most of the front pages in Chicago, and Sally was hired at $150 a week to star in The Streets of Paris.

Her now legendary fan dance became the smash hit of the Chicago World's Fair. In the process Sally Rand became a celebrity. Once the Fair closed, Paramount Pictures signed her to co-star with George Raft in Bohemia. Previously she had worked for Cecil B. DeMille's stock company and she knew her way around Hollywood.

Financial Follies

The next few years found her capitalizing on her publicity. Accompanied by her mother, with whom she was very close—"too close, in fact"—she played several world's fairs, also starred in summer stock with such then-young players as Humphrey Bogart, Vincent Price, Tallulah Bankhead and Gertrude Lawrence.

In the 1930s Billy Rose signed her for his fabulous shows at Fort Worth and New York, and Sally Rand was well on her way to becoming a millionaire. Unfortunately she had no money sense. Just a week before a national publication had described what a shrewd financial cookie she was, how cleverly she had managed to multiply her loot, Sally Rand filed for bankruptcy.

"I thought," she says, "I was going to mint a small fortune from the Fair at San Francisco. Instead, I was taken to the cleaners like Grant took Richmond. But that experience taught me a valuable lesson—people who become friends because you have money are no friends at all, merely fungus growths who will drop off when they can no longer feed on you."

In all the years of her prime, Sally Rand, the national sex symbol, failed to marry. She met hundreds of men, several well-bred, who were eager to take her as a wife. But always she said no.

"I was afraid," she says, "of a husband's eventual rejection. I was afraid that sooner or later a man would discover that I wasn't at all like the fan dancer he'd seen on the stage, that I was a fraud who used the fan dance as a psychological crutch."

Finally in 1942 she summoned up enough courage to marry Turk Greenhow, a rancher, who subsequently went off to war. According to Sally, "the marriage was disastrous, and I obtained my freedom in 1946. Today, Turk lives in Las Vegas, as do I. He's remarried and I believe works as a deputy somewhere at one of the clubs, but I never see him. It's better that way."

In 1948, "because I wanted so desperately to give love and because I could have no children of my own," Sally adopted a son, Sean, now 12. A few years later she married Fred Lalla, a plastering contractor 15 years her junior.

They were divorced in Las Vegas, Nev., on August 12, 1960, but are still the closest of friends and a reconciliation may be imminent. Sally, for example, continues to look after Lalla's son, Michael, by his previous marriage.

Direct Appeal

Basically, she's a woman who must give herself to be fulfilled. Eddie Fox, manager of the Silver Slipper in Las Vegas, says, "I booked Sally for 26 weeks in 1959 and 12 weeks in 1960, and I'd like to book her for another 26 weeks in 1961, because she always increases our business at least 25 per cent. You know why? Because she knows how to establish a rapport with an audience. She says, 'I'm up here, dancing and twirling about for your pleasure, your amusement, your entertainment.' She makes every man in the joint feel that she's playing directly to him."

"Her basic appeal now is that she arouses the curiosity of people who want to see what a celebrity looks like. She's still glamorous and she has still maintained the illusion of youth and sex appeal."

"Her big personal problem, of course, is that she wants to be wanted and loved for her mind. But the men she meets and the men she marries—well, let me put it this way, in my opinion they are not particularly interested in philosophy, psychology or physics. To them Sally Rand spells eternal sex."

'These are my funniest'

...says SCOTT TABER

"AS YOU CAN SEE from the self-portrait at left," says Scott Taber, "I started sketching cows and chickens on a barn in Illinois. When people first began to laugh at my crazy animals, I knew I'd wind up a cartoonist." Scott now lives in Northport, N.Y., where he turns out a stream of humor for the country's magazines. He hopes his comics will be a contribution of chuckles to "a world sadly in need of laughter."

"I've been keeping my eye on you, Martin. Do you play pool?"

"I got on the school bus by mistake."

"Hi. We haven't had a nice visit since you put the fence up."

"Darling, you won!"

My favorite jokes

by BUDDY HACKETT

THE OTHER AFTERNOON I walked into a psychiatrist's office. "Doc," I said to the head-shrinker, "do I really have an inferiority complex?" The doctor spoke to me for a few minutes, quickly said: "You don't have any complex, Buddy. You're really inferior."

A WEALTHY MANUFACTURER of 72 married an 18-year-old model. They honeymooned in Miami. After the honeymoon the manufacturer came down with a coronary. He was hospitalized and placed in an oxygen tent. His 18-year-old wife came to visit him.

When he saw her, the manufacturer began to speak. "Darling," he said, "I don't want you to worry about the future. My will has been made. You're going to get all my stocks and bonds, our house in Larchmont, the three cars, the property in Chicago, the villa in Monte Carlo and a million-dollar trust fund."

Tears welled up in the wife's eyes. "Oh! Fred," she mumbled. "You've been so sweet to me, so kind. Tell me, husband dear, isn't there something I can do for you?"

"Yes," said the husband. "Take your finger away from the opening and let some oxygen into the tent."

NOBODY HAS made a fuss about it, but the doctors in Beverly Hills are pretty expensive. A few weeks ago I fell down a flight of stairs and hurt my leg. So I went to the doctor. He fixed me up and said, "Don't worry! You'll be walking before the day is over." He was right. He took my car.

I WAS 13 when my mother called me over one afternoon and said, "Buddy, let's have a heart-to-heart talk." I answered, "Okay." So my mother got right to it: "Why," she asked, "don't you run away from home?"

A FAITH-HEALER was walking down Main Street one Sunday afternoon when he ran into Billy Jones. "Billy," he began. "How goes it with you and your family?"

"Well," answered Billy, "I'm all right but my Uncle Hector is sick."

"Pshaw," said the faith-healer. "I know your Uncle Hector. He's not sick. He just thinks he's sick."

A week later the faith-healer again ran into Billy. "How's Uncle Hector?" he asked. Said Billy: "He thinks he's dead."

A FRIEND of mine was going around town, his mouth open, gasping for breath, his eyes popping out. So he went to the doctor, and the doctor told him he had only three months to live. He decided therefore to spend all his money. He bought everything he could think of. Then one day he ambled into a haberdashery shop and said, "Give me a dozen shirts, size 14½ in the neck, 32 in the sleeves."

"Wait a minute," said the salesman, "you'd better let me measure your neck." He threw a tape measure around my friend's neck.

"You need a size 16," he announced. "If you took a 14½, you'd be going around all the time with your mouth open, gasping for breath, your eyes popping out."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Buddy Hackett started out in life as an apprentice upholsterer in his father's Brooklyn shop. Since upholstery failed to satisfy his creative instincts, he got a job in a WPA theater group. Upon discharge from the Army he starred in Call Me Mister on Broadway, played night clubs, was signed by Universal-International. A Mr. Five-by-Five, he used to weigh 250, but has dropped 50 pounds since appearing on the Perry Como, Arthur Godfrey and Jack Paar TV shows. Buddy, 36, is married to former dance teacher Sherry Cohen, has three children. Recently he finished All Hands on Deck with Pat Boone, Barbara Eden and Dennis O'Keefe. Here are his favorite jokes:
